Prohibition, Farewell. Work for 4,000,000? —Goody. Farley Is Not So Easy. Chapter Two in Radio.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PROHIBITION is dead, the voters of Pennsylvania, Ohio and Utah completing the necessary thirty-six states. Another dangerous experiment in control of the majority by a minority, another effort to change by law the customs of men and the habits of centuries, comes to an end for the present.

Unfortunately, while prohibition dies the crime wave and the bootlegging that finances crime survive. But, with the cause abolished, the government will find a way to remove the results.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT announces a plan to find jobs for four million idle, taking them off the public dole system, supplying them with work on self-sustaining federal, state and local public works.

The $400,000,000 to be devoted to this task will be well spent, if the undertaking is successful.

The President hopes that 2,000,000 will be employed on the new work in the course of this month, and two million more before the end of December.

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY, head of the New York Democratic state committee, selected McKee as his candidate and advocated his election.

The New York Times calls McKee's defeat a "smashing blow for Farley," but those who know the Postmaster General know that to "smash Farley" is not so easy as that.

He is not fragile, mentally or physically, and will not admit that an American citizen can properly be criticized for choosing his candidate and advocating his election.

A FEW years ago Marconi said that he could send a message through the air across the ocean.

Scientists on the western shore, with receiving apparatus ready, waited anxiously and doubtfully for a definite sound, one letter of the alphabet, that was to come to them through the air across three thousand miles of ocean.

It came, and that was the beginning of the radio industry, taken as much for granted now as the bicycle, flying machine or fireless cooker.

In the Radio Corporation of American Building in New York's Rockefeller Center, David Sarnoff, president of R. C. A., and Merlin H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, will inaugurate the world's greatest, most amazingly complicated broadcasting enterprise, with twenty separate broadcasing studios, one of them "large enough to stage a prize-fight," which, in America, means an enormous hall.

From these many studios, speeches, songs, sad stories and modern "wisecracks" will pour forth, no studio knowing what the other studio is doing, the patient ether gathering up and taking the assorted sounds to their millions of destinations.

IN ADDITION, the Rockefeller broadcasting center laboratory will continue working at the problem of "television" that, in time, will enable those that "tune in" actually to see those to whom they listen.

Perfection of television is not here. It may be far away, certainly several years. But when it comes, the great new broadcasting station will be ready for it, equipped with appropriate scientific devices, and a laboratory to hasten its coming.

Mr. Sarnoff and Mr. Aylesworth are to be congratulated on work done for the education and pleasure of the public, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for providing so magnificent a residence for the most important of modern discoveries.

IN TUESDAY'S election the voters expressed the general dissatisfaction by putting out those that were in and by putting in those that were out.

In New York they put out the Democrats and elected Republicans-Fusionists, beating not one Democrat ticket, but two.

In Philadelphia also the voters put out the Republicans and put in the Democrats. That had not happened in fifty years.

THE PHILADELPHIA incident worries some "best minds" because the Democratic victory is looked upon as a victory for Gifford Pinchot, and his eccentric notion that governments in city, state and nation should be run for the benefit of the majority of the citizens.

The successful Democratic managers in Philadelphia were allies of the Pinchot program.

THE GAME of "see-saw" goes on, with the gold-less dollar sitting on the end of the plank, stocks and commodities on the other.

Yesterday the dollar went down, so stocks and commodities went up, stocks as much as five dollars a share, cotton two dollars a bale, wheat four cents a bushel. Inflation was in the air again.

The other end of the see-saw may be on the ground a little later, for nobody really knows anything.

THE INCREASED price of wheat had something to do with

ABC Threatens to Sack American Property As Rebellion Rages

HAVANA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Leaders of the ABC, the radical and secret revolutionary society, broadcast a warning today that they intend to sack American property and provoke intervention by the United States, if their two-day battle for the control of the government is not decided today.

At the same time they warned the public to stay off the streets as they intended to fly airplanes over the city and bomb the palace of President Grau San Martin.

They also said they would dynamite all vehicles found on the streets.

Artillery went into action at 9 a. m. today as loyal government attacked the famous old Atares Fortress where more than 2,000 rebels defy the government.

The bombardment was preceded by a scattered rifle fire from the fortress which was replied to by the soldiers in the army of Col. Fulgencio Batista.

REBEL FIRE CONTINUES

Around noon the artillery fire trained on the fortress grew desultory, but the defenders steadfastly continued to man their guns.

Col. Batista, leader of the army, placed two more field pieces in Belascoain street near the Ford motor agency and other pieces at street crossing, from where they were fired in three directions

Several American families including that of Howard Tewesbury, assistant commercial attache in the United States Embassy, were warned that their homes were in danger of being sacked.

The rebels had smuggled arms and munitions throughout the night into Atares Fortress, consolidating their positions on the second day of their uprising.

The strong position of the fortress, atop a hill overlooking the capitol city led military experts to believe a sanguinary battle was in prospect.

FLEE TO FORTRESS

The consolidation in Atares was accomplished before dawn when the rebels fled from Dragones and San Ambrosio fortresses after Batista's men had threatened to bombard those strongholds from the land and the sea. Loyal troops moved into the abandoned forts immediately.

Wild schemes of looting followed the federal capture of Dragones. The populace sacked the

Boxer Leaves Paris To See Mrs. Dick

PARIS, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Enzo Fiermonte, handsome Italian boxer who has announced his forthcoming marriage to Mrs. William K. Dick, the widow of John Jacob Astor, has left Paris secretly for New York, it was learned today.

Mrs. Dick returned to New York recently from Hamilton, Bermuda, where Fiermonte first announced his proposal of marriage to the society leader.

Girl Held by Police Keeps Name Secret

Efforts were to be made today to open the sealed lips of a 14-year-old girl held in the Juvenile Court detention rooms after she had been taken into custody by police while begging food in the Hazelwood district.

Police believe the girl is a runaway. She steadfastly refused to reveal her identity.

Liquor Flowing Freely as U. S. Scoffs at 'Law'

Associated Press.

The rattle of cocktail shakers sounded an obligato to the national scene today.

From coast to coast—including the rockbound one up Maine way and the sun-kissed one in Florida—the speakeasies and the bars of Volsteadian inception were blossoming out to bask in the warmth of Tuesday's repeal election results.

Although the sale of anything with a greater kick than 3.2 is still illegal, and will be until December 5, the boys who handle the "fizzes" and "straights" were openly sliding them down the bars of a half dozen of the largest cities.

You can buy a cocktail almost anywhere in New York — the Ramos gin fizz and Sazerac cocktail were readily available in old New Orleans—Cleveland's "speaks" were doing a brisk open business —Newark, N. J., San Francisco, Washington, Chicago, all had the same story.

But the Justice Department and Washington warned bar and speakeasy operators that "the law is still there" and it is the policy of the department to enforce it until it is legally nullified.

There appeared to be no attempt on the part of local authorities, however, to act against those who have jumped the repeal gun.

Cleveland authorities, admitting there was open sale, appeared to sum up opinion when they asked, categorically: "What are you going to do about it."

Dumbauld to Enforce Law Until Repealed

3 CHILDREN MAY DOOM MOTHER

Fatherless Brood Called to Testify At Murder Trial

With regret, the state will have to ask Mrs. Meta Miller's three children to tell a jury that she killed their father, Visiting Judge James A. Chambers was informed today. Their testimony may send their mother to the chair.

Before a jury of seven women and five men taking of testimony began in the trial of the 50-year-old Greenfield woman, who is accused of shooting her husband, Frederick Miller, 61, in their home, 4315½ Stanley street, August 9.

Assistant District Attorney Meredith B. Reid told Judge Chambers and the jurors:

"We expect to show that the son, William, heard shots and ran to the stairs to meet his mother ascending. We will show that he saw her carrying a gun and heard her say:

"'He had it coming to him'.

"Then, William will tell us, she obtained her Bible, went to her room and sat there reading Scripture until police came."

The state's star witness, William, is 12. His sisters, Laura, William's twin, and Dorothy, 9, also will be called to testify.

Mrs. Miller's daughter by a previous marriage, Gertrude Wright, 18, will not testify.

When police investigated the slaying they alleged Mrs. Miller had accused Gertrude of more than filial feelings for her stepfather.

3 Districts Missing In Count on Sheriff

BULLETIN.

In 940 of the county's 942 districts, the vote for Sheriff is Heinz 164,374; Gollmar, 163,522.

One of the missing district's ballots are thought to be in the river, and the other, being counted in he courhouse, indicaes a lead of 300 for Henz.

John Heinz, Demomcrat, was leading his opponent, Frank I. Gollmar, incumbent, by 900 votes today in the election for Sheriff.

He forged ahead, with only three of the 942 districts missing, after two days of slow-counting in which both contestants see-sawed into and out of the lead.

The missing districts are the eighth of the Seventeenth Ward, the first district of Ross Township and the first district of Whittaker.

At midnight last night, deputies from the sheriff's office brought the election board of the Whittaker district into the Courthouse, to continue the counting there.

Unofficial returns indicated that the Gollmar vote from the First of Ross Township was 121 Gollmar, 73 for Heinz.

PA. RUM PLAN NOT DECIDED

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Another conference between Gov. Gifford Pinchot, legislative and political leaders before the General Assembly convenes in extraordinary session next Monday noon was in prospect today.

Declining to reveal the nature of discussions on methods of controlling hard liquor when repeal is officially proclaimed in December, the Governor said satisfactory progress was made.

Gov. Pinchot's message to the joint session of the Legislature probably will not be delivered until about 3 o'clock next Monday afternoon, legislative officials said today.

Presiding officers of the two Houses, Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon, president of the Senate; Speaker Grover C. Talbot of the House; A. Boyd Hamilton, secretary of the Senate, and S. Edward Moore, parliamentarian of the House, met today to discuss the procedure at the opening day.

The session will be convened at noon. Routine business will be transacted before the Governor presents his message.

Disinherited Son's Will Fight Lost

Judge Thomas P. Trimble, of Orphans Court, today sustained Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell in probating the will of Patrick F. McKnight, Soho political leader.

In his order he also dismissed the petition of McKnight's son, Felix, who sought to upset his father's will because he was disinherited. Madeline McKnight, daughter of the Republican leader, was made the sole heir of the estate valued at $125,000.

Wife Sees Garavini Fall In Duel With Ex-Mate

'Bookie' Held After Midnight Battle Near Hotel

A hacker, a bookie and a red-haired woman they both wanted.

You could bet even money something would happen when those three met.

Something did.

Iggy Swartz the bookmaker, and Andy Garavini, the hacker, collided outside the William Penn Hotel in Grant street a few minutes after midnight.

The red-haired woman was there, too. She is now Mrs. Garavini. She used to be Mrs. Swartz.

The bookie and the hacker slugged each other with fists and the butts of revolvers. A half-dozen shots were fired. Caravini was shot, perhaps fatally.

ACCUSES EX-MATE

Today, in Central Police Court, the red-haired woman defended her husband and pointed an accusing finger at her ex-husband.

In tears, she pressed her hands against her fur coat and gave Magistrate Thomas D. Jones the latest news from the Mercy Hospital:

"He's dying."

An eyewitness, Beatty Glenn, Negro doorman at the hotel, described the shooting:

"Iggy came up to me and was going to give me a tip for taking care of his car when Andy and Mrs. Garavini came out of the hotel. The trouble started right away. There were six or

TWO-INCH SNOW BLANKETS CITY

Early morning automobile travel was hampered by an icy film under the snow, but this melted rapidly. Minor skidding accidents were reported.

Crews of the State Highway Department were cindering dangerous stretches. Drifts were reported in the mountains of Westmoreland and Somerset counties, but all roads were open.

The low overnight temperature was 26 degrees. Slightly colder weather may be expected by tomorrow, Observer W. S. Brotzman stated. No long cold snap is in store, he said, as the northwest is warming up.

Schumann-Heink Facing Operation

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 9.—(INS.)—X-ray pictures will be made tomorrow to determine if Mme. Schumann-Heink, 72, famous singer, must undergo an operation for appendicitis. She has been in a hospital since last Friday with an intestinal infection.

SON SUCCEEDS SLAIN KING

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A sorrowing youth of 21 occupied the Afghanistan throne today as the nation mourned the death of his father, King Nadir Shah Ghazi, who was slain by a traitor yesterday.

Though plunged into mourning, the nation "unanimously declared allegiance to a new monarch, Mohammed Zahir Shah," said a message to the Afghan consulate here.

The boy king was married two years ago to a cousin, daughter of Sarsar Ahmad Shah Khan.

At New Delhi, India, a blood feud between the exiled former King Amanullah and his uncle, Mohammed Nadir, was blamed for the latter's assassination by Maj. W. K. Fraser Tytler, acting foreign secretary of the India government.

ROME, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Former King Amanullah, of Afghanistan, here in exile, offered today to return to Afghanistan if the people are ready to accept the program of western reforms which he said caused his downfall in 1928.

Amanullah denounced Nadir Shah's regime as one of terror, saying:

"We lost so many Afghans under him, I can't help feeling a little glad he is gone. Yet I cannot be altogether glad for he, too, was an Afghan."

French Mass Flight On 2nd African Hop

CARTAGENA, Spain, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The French air armada of 30 planes en route to French Africa took off from Cartagena after an overnight stop early today.

Twenty-seven planes began the long flight at Istres Airport, near Marseilles, yesterday morning. They were joined by one more at Perpignan, France, their first stop, and by two others here.

'Never Caught Running Around,' Says Husband

His wife accused him of passing his time with other women, Frank Cocco told Judge Samuel H. Gardner today in a plea for divorce from Marie Cocco. Judge Gardner queried:

"Well, did you run around with other women?"

Came back Cocco:

"She never caught me!"

MARY TO DROP 'PRINCESS'

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Mary McCormic, the opera singer, made a brief stop here today on an airplane trip to Los Angeles to "get rid of my title of princess," as she explained it, adding:

"My lawyers say we must be in court there Monday in my suit against my husband, Prince Serge Mdivani, and I must hurry and get there and rehearse my lines."

The suit is for separate maintenance, but she indicated it would be changed to a divorce suit.

Miss McCormic declared emphatically:

"Don't ever call me princess. Diva is bad enough, and madame has broad applications not without merit, but princess —no."

She said she planned to stop at Amarillo, Tex., to visit briefly with her father.

Pickford, Fairbanks Reconciliation Seen

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Variety, the theatrical publication, said this week that Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks have adjusted their differences and that there will be no divorce. Miss Pickford was quoted as saying that she will not sell Pickfair, her Hollywood home.

2 BANKS TO BE OPENED SOON

Reopening of two more national banks in the Pittsburgh district, freeing an additional $1,500,000 in deposits, is expected within the next few weeks.

Stock sales necessary for reorganization have been completed by the First National Bank of Braddock, and the new Crafton National Bank.

At Braddock, approximately $1,100,000 will be made available to depositors, and at Crafton almost $400,000.

Stock in the new Braddock bank was largely oversubscribed, more than 1,000 citizens of the borough becoming stockholders. The new institution will make available 65 per cent of the deposits. At Crafton, 60 per cent of the deposits in the old First National Bank of Crafton will be freed.

In both new banks, depositors in many cases became stockholders by waiving portions of their freed savings.

Oil Code Test Suit To Be Held Monday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia today set next Monday as the date for a hearing on a suit challenging the constitutionality of the oil code.

The suit, brought by Harry Victor, and other Detroit filling station operators was to have been heard Tuesday, but was postponed because attorneys in the case were unprepared.

Man Killed as 15 Leap From Truck

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Fifteen relief workers dived from a speeding truck suddenly out of control yesterday and one of them was killed.

Two others were seriously injured after the driver told the men to jump because some part of the machinery was broken and he could not stop on the steep hill.

Philippines Grant Women Franchise

MANILA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Women were extended the right to vote in the Philippines after January 1, 1935, in a bill passed today shortly before adjournment of the ninth Insular Legislature.

Filipino women will be the first in the Far East to enjoy the right of the franchise.

Death Bares Adoption, Son Seeks Mother

Eight months ago he buried the woman he had known as his mother for nearly 28 years, but today, Paul Lydon, 28, of 319 Thirty-seventh street, asked the Missing Persons Bureau to help him find his real mother.

After the death of Mrs. Bertha Lydon, last March, Paul told bureau workers, he received a letter from a friend in Detroit telling him to look for a paper in an old trunk in the attic, proving he was an adopted child.

The paper, produced by Paul, read, in part:

"Be it known that I, Elizabeth Lucas, have this day given my child to Mrs. V. Shir for her to place said child in a good home with a view to final adoption."

The statement was dated August 18, 1905.

Paul said he wants to find his real mother, although Mrs. Lydon had been "as kind to me as any mother could possibly be."

LABOR BOARD MEETS TO ARBITRATE NRA CLASHES HERE

FIRST DISPUTES TO BE HEARD MONDAY

President S. S. Baker, of Carnegie Tech, Heads Group

Labor and employers met today in the latest effort here to prevent labor disputes and to effect quick agreements, at the first meeting of the Pittsburgh Regional Labor Board under chairmanship of Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The Pittsburgh board is one of 18 created by the National Labor Board in the principal industrial centers of the country to expedite the work of the national board and heal complaints arising in Western Pennsylvania, and possibly in nearby Ohio communities and the Panhandle district of West Virginia.

CODE RULINGS

John M. Carmody representative of the National Labor Board told the meeting of industrial executives and organized labor heads:

"It is your responsibility to interpret the codes and to build a foundation for intelligent relations between labor and employers, and to prevent and settle strikes."

The board will meet next Monday at 10:30 a. m. in the Chamber of Commerce to settle a number of disputes already filed with it.

TEN ON BOARD

Membership of the board consists of George A. Blackmore, president of the Union Switch and Signal Company; George T. Ladd, president of the United Engineering and Foundry Company; Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Consolidated Ice Company; Arthur C. Kaufmann, president of McCreery's; J. E. Lewis, president of Harbison Walker Refractories Company; John J. Kane, of the Pressmen's Union; John Hochn, of the labor trades department of the A. F. of L.; Louis Leonard, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America; Sam Wehofer, of Bakers' Local No. 12, and P. T. Fagan, president of the Central Labor Union and District No. 5, U. M. W. of A.

Dr. Baker was selected as impartial chairman of the board.

FARMERS BURN THIRD BRIDGE

International News Service.

PORTSMOUTH, Ia., Nov. 9.—Flames destroyed the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad bridge one mile south of here early today in what authorities said was another effort by farm strike pickets to prevent farm-to-market shipments.

The fire burned away most of the bridge superstructure before Sheriff's deputies and railroad hands arrived on the scene.

It was the third railroad bridge destroyed in the state this week in the farm strike.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 9.—(INS.)—Opposition to the farm strike gained headway today in Northwest Iowa as 500 farmers of Plymouth County stood ready to enforce their decision to keep the highways open "at all costs."

Pickets were being withdrawn from the farm-to-market highways in the region of Sioux City following a meeting of hundreds of anti-strikers at Lemars.

JOHNSON FINDS WEST CORDIAL

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson carried his plea for support of the Blue Eagle into new territory today, cheered he said, by his welcome to the agricultural centers of Des Moines and Omaha. He speaks in Kansas City today. He said in Omaha last night:

"Unless I miss my guess you are going to feel the concentration of all these powerful influences out here in a few weeks."

The "powerful influences" to which he referred were the NRA, the AAA, the Farm Loan Administration and other relief programs started by President Roosevelt, who said Johnson, had already "lifted us one-fourth of the way to the correction of a 12-year blunder and the crash and ruin thereof."

Work for 4,000,000 On Relief Aim of U. S.

State Leaders Meet To Hasten Huge Works Program

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Governors of states, state relief administrators and "quick-action" executives from private life, today were summoned to meet Harry L. Hopkins next Wednesday, before starting a 30-day drive to provide work for 4,000,000 of the present unemployed now receiving relief with the help of federal and state funds.

Hopkins has switched his nation-wide relief organization into state agencies for employment, under President Roosevelt's new civil works program.

The new organization will not supersede the huge public works administration under Secretary of Interior Ickes, disbursing the remnants of more than $3,000,000,000 for employment-giving public buildings and highways.

400 MILLION FUND

Instead the new civil organization will absorb some $400,000,000 of public works money for immediate employment on projects of its own. No contracts will be let, there will be no hitch such as held up public works employment in state after state.

The public works administration will continue to pass out millions for such projects as it approves, of which thousands are pending or already authorized.

Much of the preliminary setup will be complete before the conference Wednesday. Hopkins will tell his conferees what the President wants, explain the new organization and tell them to go back home and put men to work.

REMAIN ON DOLE

Meanwhile, some million or more heads of families will remain on relief rolls. In six states the federal government has assumed complete responsibility, Kentucky having been added to the others.

The government will proceed with its surplus commodity purchases for relief purposes. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said he expected the new plan to help agriculture rather than hinder recovery through possible curtailed government purchases. There was no indication today the government plans any retrenchment in this direction.

So far bids have not been received for the full amount of surplus beef for which bids were asked, and dissatisfaction is evident among officials at the packers' neglect to state what they intended to pay the producers for their cattle.

COUNTY TO ASK U. S. FUNDS

Allegheny County will apply for a grant of $31,108,000 from the Federal Public Works Administration through the administration's state advisory board.

A resolution authorizing the application was passed yesterday by the County Commissioners. The application, according to the resolution, is to be made in the name of the Allegheny County Authority.

The Commissioners yesterday also instructed the Law Department and the Federal Aid Commission of the county to continue applications for loans already filed with the state board. These loans total $20,000,000.

U. S. Relief Board Asks Bid on Beans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Emergency Relief Administration today asked for bids for 5,000,000 pounds of beans to be distributed to needy persons, who also will receive allotments of pork, beef and other supplies being purchased through the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation.

League Committee Pushes Arms Work

GENEVA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The League of Nations' steering committee, renewing its work today after a recess, decided to pursue disarmament negotiations actively.

Technical questions are to be left to a sub-committee and the more thorny political matters are to be handled by special reporters.

SEEK TO SPREAD MINE STRIKE

WILKES-BARRE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Thomas J. Maloney, president of the striking United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, said today that unless he hears from the federal labor board today, the strike will be carried into the Hazleton, Pottsville and Shamokin districts.

A labor board investigator recently returned to Washington with a report of his findings in the strike situation in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties and Maloney said today that "I was promised action within a few days."

While Maloney was issuing his statement, reports of disorders in the Scranton region reached headquarters. State police and sheriff's deputies were called to Dunmore and Dickson City as pickets attacked workers entering collieries of the Penn Anthracite and Pittston Companies.

Police said pickets were clubbed at Dunmore and that noisy crowds at Dickson City were dispersed.

Illinois Assembly Ends Relief Session

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The special session of the Illinois Legislature adjourned sine die this morning. In six weeks, the Assembly voted for a $30,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief and passed several bills to enable local governments to cooperate with the Roosevelt recovery and public works programs.

A second special session will be called by Gov. Horner to deal with liquor control.

STRIFE LOOMING OVER MINERS' ELECTION

Hitch Develops as U. S. Agents Lay Plans for Poll

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 9.—Dispute over terms of the captive miners' election today periled the four-day peace which has prevailed in the Connellsville coke region. There was no assurance that the election of the miners' representatives, to be supervised by the National Labor Board, would be held before next week, nor that the men would vote for unrestricted representation by the United Mine Workers of America.

The operators, the H. C. Frick Coke Company in particulars, have refused to concede the right of their employes to vote for United Mine Workers of America recognition, which many miners claim was promised by the President and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

It is the contention of the operators that representatives may or may not be agents of any union and that the recent agreement does not state that the employers must recognize any union.

Unrest is spreading although there is no immediate threat of another walkout, but observers pointed out there is no signed agreement to prevent the "captive" miners from striking such as was signed by the commercial operators and the United Mine Workers.

Jesse I. Miller, assistant to the chairman of the National Labor Board, and Dr. William E. Leiserson, secretary, and state and Federal labor department representatives in the Western Pennsylvania coal fields say that the election problem is one for the Labor Board to solve and explained the delay in miners' election is caused by the necessity of finding suitable polling places.

10-Day Delay Seen In Vote at Mines

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Unforseen details in setting up the machinery for the miners' elections in Western Pennsylvania coal fields may delay them for 10 days or possibly longer, it was stated today by officers of the National Labor Board.

Dr. William Leiserson, technical adviser of the Labor Board, and Jesse I. Miller today are engaged in preparing a code of instructions governing the elections at which the "captive" miners will name their candidates for collective bargaining. Dr. Leiserson said:

"Both miners and operators realize the magnitude of our work and I am happy to say that we have enjoyed willing and courteous co-operation in our efforts. We have heard no complaint as to delay."

Once preparations are complete, he said, the balloting and tabulating will require only a day, and the elected miners' representatives will be certified by the National Labor Board.

After miners' candidates have been named, a list will be printed and posted, ballots will be printed, polling places obtained and election boards engaged, Dr. Leiserson explained. He emphasized that the balloting will be secret.

BORICH HELD NRA CHALLENGE

Mary van Kleeck, director of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York, here yesterday completing a study of the Department of Labor's efforts to deport Frank Borich of Pittsburgh, secretary of the National Miners Union, said the case offered a challenge to the NRA.

Miss van Kleeck will address the Hungry Club on Monday.

Borich, through his attorneys, is expected to file an appeal to the United States Supreme Court today or tomorrow to prevent the deportation order from being carried out.

U. S. AND RUSSIA REACH BASIS FOR ACCORD

Hull and Litvinoff Lay Foundations At Parley

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Foundations for an American-Soviet understanding, embracing diplomatic and economic implications, were formulated at a two-hour conference today between Secretary Hull and Maxim Litvinoff.

The next event in the swift succession that has suddenly brought relations between the countries to focus after years of aloofness will be presentation of the situation to President Roosevelt later.

No further State Department meeting is planned.

It appeared not unlikely that the indicated Hull-Litvinoff accord forecast the early establishment of a more or less close relationship between the United States and the Soviet.

At the conference, the Secretary of State was advised by the same five associates who were with him yesterday, while Litvinoff had Ivan Divilkovsky as his advisor.

American experts were Undersecretary William Phillips, Assistant Secretary R. Walton Moore, William Bullitt, special assistant to Hull; Robert Kelley, chief of the Eastern European division, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

Secretary Hull later honored Litvinoff at luncheon, the guests including government officials, Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and members of the commissar's party including Boris Skvirsky, chief of the Soviet information bureau and Litvinoff's host in Washington; Peter Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, and Konstantin Umansky, chief of the information division of the Soviet commissariat for foreign affairs.

FORD UNDERBID ON U. S. ORDER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The War Department today awarded a $214,863 contract for 300 1½-ton trucks to be used in Civilian Conservation Corps camps to the Chevrolet Motor Company, of Detroit, the lowest of seven bidders.

A $96,834 contract for 100 ambulances to be used in conservation camps was awarded to the Fargo Motor Company, of Washington, sales agency of the Chrysler Motor Company.

The order for the 300 trucks is not connected with the 1,600 trucks which the Agriculture Department will buy for the corps for use in the forests.

The Northwest Motor Company, of Bethesda, Md., a Ford agency, submitted the lowest bid for the 1,600 trucks.

The Ford bid on the 300 trucks contracted for today was $750.54 each compared with the Chevrolet bid of $716.21 each.

Newspaper Man, Ill, Ends Life By Poison

He left letters to his estranged wife in New York and his parents in Canada ascribing his act to illness and fear of a complete breakdown in health.

CUTTEN BARES $12,000,000 POOL PROFIT

Insiders Gained Huge Fortune Without Investing a Cent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Disclosure that the New York Stock Exchange is investigating a huge oil stock pool in 1929 through which insiders received $12,000,000 profit without putting up any cash was made today to the Senate Banking Committee.

Arthur Cutten, noted trader, who managed the pool, told of the operations of the huge account in Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company stock, replying briefly in a low voice to questions by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

HUGE SINCLAIR SPLIT

He said he did not know why $300,000 was paid out of the pool's profits to William S. Fitzpatrick, an official of Prairee Oil, which then was a competitor of the Sinclair Company. Pecora asked:

"Is that the first time you have been an involuntary Santa Claus?"

The gray headed, tacitturn trader, nodded his head in assent.

Profits from the pool to Harry FL. Sinclair, an ocicial of the oil company who negotiated the transaction, were listed by Cutten at $2,632,962.

Other participants of the pool and a companion trading account included Albert H. Wiggin, then chairman of the Chase National Bank; H. P. Whitney, and a number of noted traders, including Matthew C. Brush and George Breen.

Before Cutten took the stand, John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, appeared voluntarily to explain a syndicate in which he, Alfred E. Smith and others participated during 1929.

He said the syndicate was formed by directors of the County Trust Company to protect its stock on the market and to prevent a run on the bank after the suicide of James J. Riordan, president of the institution.

SMITH MAKES DENIAL

Raskob denied the syndicate had conducted market operations and testified the account is now closed and its obligation paid.

Smith said in a statement in New York last night that the syndicate was composed only of directors of the trust company, of which he is chairman of the board, and that it borrowed money simply to "buy the stock of our own trust company."

Evidence that the Chase National Bank made a loan of $1,171,800 in December, 1929, to a syndicate dealing in Detroit and Canada Tunnel Company bonds was placed before the investigators.

Pecora did not take up the loan fore xamination immediately, it merely being included in a list of Chase loans to several syndicates.

LOAN TO DAWES BANK PROBED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Information on the status of the $90,000,000 loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation last year to the Dawes bank in Chicago and loans to mortgage companies and others will be sought by a Senate Banking Subcommittee.

Chairman Fletcher, of the subcommittee, composed of the same members now constituting the stock market investigating group, announced after a long executive session yesterday that all details on the existing status of the loan to the Central Republic Bank and Trust Company, headed by former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, would be asked of Jesse H. Jones, corporation chairman.

Fletcher was quick to add that the Dawes loan was "in good shape" and that about $24,000,000 of it had been repaid. He said Senator Couzens, of Michigan, a Republican member of the subcommittee, had requested the new information.

Jones was with the committee for two hours yesterday in executive session.

the repeal of prohibition. An end of prohibition means increased demand for grain, in addition to the mysterious "general cheerfulness," that of itself is supposed to make times better.

MR. RUFUS DAWES, whose admirable work for the "Century of Progress" exposition deserves the nation's thanks, announces that the exposition will be reopened. It should be kept open

More than 22 millions have already seen the exposition this year, a greater number will go next year, thanks to what, let us hope and believe, will be greater prosperity.

The "Century of Progress" is the first exposition to open since the beginning of the automobile era. Everybody wants to see Chicago, everybody should see the exposition, and it should remain open at least one year more.

GOLD PRICE UP, DOLLAR DOWN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The administration watched its gold operations club the dollar to a record low level today and then added another dime to the price it will pay for the metal when newly mined in the United States.

London dispatches told of an overnight drop of 4⅜ cents in the exchange value of the dollar as against the pound, opening at $4.98½. As the trading progressed the dollar fell $5.01½.

Meanwhile, the price of gold at London was reduced, but the change in the dollar-pound relationship caused an increase in this quotation when converted into dollars. Today it was $32.76, at the $5.01½ point of the exchange quotation, compared with $32.63 yesterday.

The domestic quotation was increased from $33.05 to $33.15. While yesterday's quotation was 69 cents above the London figure, today's was 52 cents.

As for purchases of gold abroad, the administration is covering its operations with the greatest possible secrecy to prevent information from leaking to speculators both here and in Europe.

New Housing Project Gets Approval Here

A new housing development for the North Side to include approximately 167 homes has been tentatively approved by the City Planning Commission and is being sought for the project at Washington.

The proposals are being made by the Georgian Land Company, Inc., with which Evans and Newham, builder, are connected.

The plan represents the largest business project in Pittsburgh since the development of the Buhl Foundation buildings on Mt. Washington. The cost has not been announced, but it is expected that it would represent an investment of more than $800,000.

The location of the new houses would be on land on both sides of Mac Nab avenue near Berthina road, portions of the site adjoining the David B. Oliver High School.

The dwellings are planned in buildings containing from one to four units, of the same modern type in attractive style, according to sketches submitted to the Planning Commission.

Roosevelt's Son Home, Finds Europe Cheerful

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—James Roosevelt, son of the President, returned on the liner Rex today from a six weeks' vacation tour of Europe, which included social calls on Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain; President Lebrun of France, Premier Mussolini of Italy, and the Pope.

He said he didn't believe foreign officials would be anything but polite about his father to him, but he added that "they did seem enthusiastic about his program."

He added to that "we didn't really discuss things, though."

Roosevelt was accompanied by his wife, and others of the party were Arthur Houghton, Mrs. J. P. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Cord Meyer.

He said he was much impressed with the cheerfulness displayed in England and Italy. He said:

"There they are on their way go, and they seem to be in no particular hurry about it.

"There is a greater desire on the part of the man in the street, for peace than ever before. The attitude is 'we don't want to fight and even if we do who is going to pay for it?'"

He said all Europe seemed rather glad" the United States is repealing the Eighteenth Amendment, and he added that high hopes were manifest in France because of the possibility of wine exports to the United States.

GRUESOME RIDE PICTURED IN MURDER MYSTERY HEARING

MULLS DENIED RELEASE FROM JAIL

Sleuth Gives Weird Account of Girl's Slaying

A corpse lay limp on the seat beside him, pale in the headlights of passing cars, lurching now and then with the roll of the car—

But the man at the wheel drove on through the night, looking for a likely place to unload his bleeding cargo.

For hours he drove, over dirt side roads and paved highways. But no place seemed safe enough.

Then, as dawn grew gray, the car pulled up in Allegheny River boulevard beside a sewer opening. The corpse a girl, bereft now of all but undergarments, was bundled out and thrust down the sewer.

That was the weird picture County Detective Michael McDermott had to tell today of what occurred before the morgue's mystery girl, Margaret Schwickrath, was thrust on public attention.

That, too, was part of the case which the county detectives refused to reveal entirely today when their three prisoners—Roy A. Mull, his wife, Grace, and son, Elmer, were denied release from jail.

The Mulls' attorney had asked Judge Sylvester Snee to release them on a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Snee denied the petition, but he agreed detectives could not take the prisoners from the county jail for questioning again.

The writ was asked yesterday afternoon after charges of murder had been made against the three Mulls by Detective Peter Connors.

The detectives said their case was still far from complete, but they were certain the girl had been murdered far from the sewer where she was found.

Mull was taken from his cell again yesterday, this time to be handled off to Westmoreland County to re-enact his movements on the Sunday afternoon and evening he and his family left Pittsburgh with Margaret.

The investigation has produced neither the gun with which the girl was shot nor her clothing. Neither could detectives elicit any statements from the Mull family concerning who shot the girl and stuffed her into an Ohio River boulevard sewer drop.

Detectives are awaiting the county chemist's verdict on the stains which detectives said they found on Mull's clothing and in his automobile.

Further identification of the murdered girl was made by Dr. I. A. Lichter, of Cedar avenue, who stated yesterday he had been attending her since last March.

FIREMEN HURT FIGHTING BLAZE

Two firemen were injured and several families routed from their apartments in night attire during a fire in the basement of the Meley Building in Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, shortly before last midnight.

Dave Colclasir was knocked unconscious and suffered head and leg injuries when he fell down an air shaft. P. F. Rynd suffered a wrenched back in a fall from a fire truck. Both are volunteer firemen.

Although the blaze was confined to the basement of the three-story brick building, several families were driven to the street by smoke.

Damage was estimated at $250. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

GIRL FEARED SLAIN ALIVE

BALTIMORE, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Florence Howmiller, one of the two girls feared slain last week by New Jersey gangsters, was located here last night by police.

She said she knew nothing about the "murder" report and said she would communicate with her mother at Johnstown, Pa., at once. Another young woman, Nancy Lang, was with Mrs. Howmiller when she was located.

Dispatches last week said that two young women were supposed to have been in an automobile in which two gangsters were shot near Downington, N. J. Neither could be found later and Mrs. Howmiller's mother expressed the belief her daughter had been slain.

'Last of Mohicans' Dies in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Death, in the county hospital, has stilled the activities of Maq-Qua-Pqy—self-styled "Last of the Mohicans," 76-year-old Indian known to the modern world as plain William Dick.

Dick was one of the few, if not the last person who knew the musical speech of the Mohicans, and obliged scientists a year ago by speaking many of the phrases of the language into recording devices.

ARMY LAWYER TO AID MURREL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Army today came to the assistance of Lieut. John H. Murrel, former West Point football star, charged with criminal assault on Blanche Ralls, with the appointment of Capt. J. F. Reynolds Scott to the array of defense attorneys.

Capt. Scott was named at Licut. Murrel's request, stated an order issued by Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, commanding the 8th Corps area.

The order to Capt. Scott said:

"In order that this officer may have the benefit of military counsel and in order that the interests of the Army may be safeguarded, you are hereby designated to assist in such defense for the purposes above outlined, but at the forthcoming trial your activities in court will not include examination of witnesses. That matter will be left to the civilian counsel."

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Richard Barthelmess, film star, became an Indian chief in the Sioux tribe yesterday. He was named "Walking Pasunke," which in the Sioux language means "Thunder Horse."

The honor was conferred by Chief Standing Bear and five tribesmen, who are working in a picture with the actor.

U. S. CHARGES 'TORTURE' OF INDIANS

Seeks to Close Asylum Where Wards Were Chained, Abused

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Efforts of the administration to abolish an Indian insane asylum at Canton, South Dakota, described in official reports as a medieval torture house today hinged upon federal court interpretation of a finely drawn legal point.

The federal district court for Southern South Dakota took under advisement a brief filed by Attorney General Cummings and Secretary of the Interior Ickes asking that a temporary injunction against removal of 94 Indians now in the asylum be withdrawn.

The injunction was obtained by the Canton Chamber of Commerce, which declared the asylum was created by congressional act and challenged the right of Ickes to close its doors.

CHAINED LIKE BEASTS

The chamber won the first round of its legal battle despite affidavits from noted medical authorities that horrible conditions have prevailed at the asylum for years, with Indians or normal mentality chained like wild beasts.

The affidavits and reports were based upon first-hand investigations begun in 1929.

Dr. Samuel A. Silk, medical director of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in the national capital, submitted data to substantiate the charge that many Indians, subjected to barbarous cruelties at the asylum, are entirely sane and never were mentally afflicted.

This data pictured the asylum as a dumping ground for Indians who aroused the ire of officials on the various reservations or caused annoyance by engaging in petty disturbances.

SCORES TREATMENT

Dr. Silk declared:

"They were placed in the asylum after some slight difficulty at school or on the reservation. Not more than 25 or 30 patients are suffering from mental diseases requiring institutional care because of their mental condition."

On the basis of Dr. Silk's reports, verified and reinforced by two other investigators, Ickes summarily dismissed Dr. Harry R. Hummer, superintendent of the asylum since 1906.

A scathing indictment of Hummer was contained in the formal charges leading to dismissal, Ickes charged:

"For a number of years and down to this date you have permitted an incredibly bad condition to exist at the Canton Hospital. Reference is here made to acts of needless cruelty such as the chaining of Indians to beds and water pipes; the locking of Indians for periods of time within rooms and dormitories, with no attendant at hand (the Indians thus being liable to extermination in the event of fire); and the neglect of sanitation, ventilation and elementary medical attention."

Reynolds Threat Case Meets Delay

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Because no grand jury has been called to serve at the current term of United States Court here, John Thomas Lanier, held on a charge of attempting to extort $10,000 from Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., under threat of kidnaping Mrs. Reynolds, will be called to trial at Wilkesboro.

A term of court begins there November 20.

RING OF STEEL GUARDS TOUHY MOB TRIAL

Kidnaping Suspects Hemmed in to Prevent Break

ST. PAUL, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A steel circle of armed guards patrolling courtroom corridors and deputy sheriffs gripping tear gas guns hemmed in four Touhy mobsters today as their trial on kidnaping charges started in Federal Court.

A moment after Federal Judge J. M. Joyce convened court, the four defendants—Roger Touhy, leader of the Chicago gang; Willie Sharkey, Gustav (Gloomy Gus) Schaefer and Eddie (Father) McFadden—filed in, flanked by deputy sheriffs.

William Hamm, Jr., millionaire St. Paul brewer who was kidnaped, the government claims, by the Touhy gang last June 15, was not in the courtroom. He had, however, promised authorities he would co-operate in every way to aid the prosecution.

The government had taken elaborate precautions to prevent any outside attempts to rescue the men.

The curious who came to the eighth floor of the county courthouse, outside the trial room were asked their business, and unless they produced passes or credentials, were ordered to leave immediately.

A barrier was set up 15 feet from the courtroom doors so crowds could not congregate close to the doors.

Sergt. Frank Reynolds of the state's attorney's office at Chicago, arrived with warrants for the four defendants on charges of kidnaping of John Factor in Chicago.

They were turned over to Sheriff Moeller for service in case the defendants should be freed in the present trial.

Plot to Kidnap Indiana Governor Revealed

DANVILLE, Ind., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A map, directing the way to the executive mansion in Indianapolis and giving instructions in kidnaping Gov. Paul V. McNutt for the purpose of forcing him to sign a pardon, was in the hands of authorities here today.

On the map's margin was written:

"Force Governor to sign pardon. Release uninjured Junction 43."

Authorities, while not greatly impressed by the paper, began an investigation on the theory it might have been lost or thrown away by some of the convict-bandit gang that has been hunted since the prison break at Michigan City, September 26.

Gov. Ely Guarded, Threats Denied

International News Service.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—State troopers in plainclothes today guarded the corridors outside the offices of Gov. Joseph B. Ely at the State House, although attempts to learn the reason were met by denials that the life of the Governor had been threatened.

Gen. Daniel C. Needham, commissioner of public safety, said the troopers "will be kept on their special duty for awhile as a precautionary measure."

Other troops were posted in the vicinity of the Governor's hotel. An official bodyguard also accompanies the Governor at all times. State troopers also guarded the Governor's home in Westfield.

Wins Divorce

JENNIE R. M'CAUSLAND, 18

MARRIED AT 15, WINS DIVORCE

Accused by her husband of flirting, using too much lipstick, resulting in her spouse abusing her, caused Jennie R. McCausland, 18, to ask Judge W. Heber Dithrich to divorce her from John R. McCausland, which he granted yesterday.

At the time of her marriage, December 25, 1930, Mrs. McCausland was a student at Langley High School and was only 15. They eloped to Wellsburg and were married and then went to live with McCausland's parents at 3111 Landes street, Sheraden.

Mrs. McCausland, who lives with her mother at 2922 Zephyr street, Sheraden, testified before Judge Dithrich that when she went to the McCausland home, they discharged the maid, adding:

"They asked me to help and I agreed. I got the breakfast for all of them at all hours of the morning until noon. His mother went to town and clubs and let me do everything."

Once at a dance, Mrs. McCausland said her husband became angry because she danced with someone else and dragged her off the floor and half way home. They separated June 1, 1932.

Tex Guinan's Body Passes Montana

The night club hostess and actress died Sunday in Vancouver, B. C. Members of her troupe and a brother are escorting the body.

M'CREADY BABY GETS NEW GUARDIAN

Trust Co. to Help Fight for Child's $150,000 Fund

Four-year-old Margaret Luella McCready had a new protector today to help her retain a $150,000 trust fund set up for her and her mother by her father, Harrison R. McCready, twice-divorced clubman-playboy.

Judge E. C. Chalfant appointed the Fidelity Trust Company guardian of the child on petition of Attorney O. K. Eaton, who set forth as the reason the further safe-guarding of the little girl's interests.

McCready is seeking to nullify the trust fund on the ground he was in a befuddled mental state at the time and didn't understand what he was doing when he set aside the fortune for his divorced wife No. 1, now Mrs. F. H. Welfer, of 1028 North Highland avenue, and their baby.

McCready was unable to appear at a hearing on his petition to upset the trust fund two weeks ago, because, physicians testified, he was recovering in St. Francis Hospital from a spree. The hearing was postponed until November 20.

NOBEL AWARD GIVEN RUSSIAN

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Nobel prize for literature today was awarded the Russian author, Ivan Alexeyevich Bunin, 63.

Bunin is a poet and novelist, born October 10, 1870, of a noble family of Voronesh.

He won the Pushkin prize, the highest academic distinction under the Czar for his poetry which he started publishing in 1889, and won it again for his translation into Russian of Longfellow's Hiawatha.

His poetry is described as impassive and of classic simplicity.

His most recent book "The Well of Days," was recently published in England.

An exile from Soviet Russia, he was reported, in March of 1927, to be ill and in poverty in Paris.

MARRIAGE BAN SET UP IN WILL

If E. A. Palmer, of 217 Carnegie place, Homewood, remarries, he will not be a beneficiary of the $25,000 estate of his wife, Oreta Porter Palmer, whose will was filed for probate today.

In her will the wife directed that as long as Palmer remains unmarried and when her son, Edward Arthur, Jr., arrives at the age of 30, the two shall receive part of the estate now in trust in the Union National Bank.

Her son shall receive one-half of the estate and her husband the income from the balance. If Palmer remarries, the remainder of the estate goes to Edward.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's majority for prohibition repeal passed the million mark today as late returns from Tuesday's election brought the total votes to 1,493,550 for repeal to 474,700 opposed.

Those were the figures with 6,536 of the state's 7,925 districts reported, and apparently showed that prohibition's enemies would carry the commonwealth almost 4 to 1.

Thirteen counties show a majority against elimination of national prohibition, but some of them are so close that it may take the official counts to determine their stand.

The 13 are Bedford, Butler, Centre, Forest, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Jefferson, Juniata, Perry, Snyder, Union and Wyoming, mostly rural counties.

Philadelphia's vote stands more than 8 to 1 in favor of repeal, and Allegheny County figures approximate 6 to 1 in favor.

The 15 delegates elected to the state convention to vote on repeal will meet at Harrisburg December 5 to carry out the mandate of the voters.

Repeal Assured Dec. 5 As Kentucky Votes Wet

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment by December 5 was virtually assured today. Repeal was leading by 23,051 votes in Kentucky when the Blue Grass State continued its second day of ballot tabulation.

The vote in 973 precincts out of 4,204 gave repeal 82,245 votes to 59,194 against. Sixty precincts out of 636 in Jefferson County (Louisville) reported 8,818 for repeal and only 561 against. Most municipalities voted heavily for repeal, while the race was nip and tuck in the rural districts.

Kentucky's repeal convention is November 27. Had the state voted dry, national repeal would have been delayed until December 6, the date set for the Maine convention. December 5 is the date for the conventions in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah, which will make the required 36 states.

Volstead Silent On Repeal Victory

GRANITE FALLS, Minn., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The death knell of national prohibition failed today to bring comment from Andrew Volstead, co-author of the federal enforcement act bearing his name.

With few exceptions, Volstead has declined to make comment on the issue in connection with which his name has become well known.

Wife Beats Hubby For Office He Doesn't Care

UNIONTOWN, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Figuring it's all in the family anyway, there's one defeated candidate in Fayette County who isn't down-hearted.

Ewing Swaney, Republican, ran against his wife, a Democrat, for tax collector of Georges Township, and lost, 131 to 1,441.

Said the husband:

"Ma will make a mighty fine tax collector."

NATIONAL VOTE 3-TO-1 WET

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Voters representing seven-eighths of the nation's population have favored repeal of the prohibition amendment by a vote of almost 3 to 1.

The six states which voted Tuesday represented about one-fifth of the total population. Their answer to the question was a vote of slightly more than 2 to 1 in favor of repeal.

The 33 states which previously had voted went slightly more than 3 to 1 for repeal.

Of the country's total population of 125,693,000—voters representing 110,685,000 have passed upon repeal.

North Carolina and South Carolina, the only states which have rejected repeal thus far, have a combined population of 5,025,000, or about one-twenty-fifth of the country's total.

U. S. TO PAROLE RUM VIOLATORS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Prohibition is over so far as the local office of the United States Attorney is concerned, it was learned today.

The Eighteenth Amendment, Assistant District Attorney David Marcus, in charge of the Prohibition Bureau, said was officially regarded as repealed when the last of the necessary 36 states voted Tuesday to discard it.

Prisoners arrested on prohibition charges, he said, will be eligible for immediate parole provided they show they are not habitual criminals and that they can show their offense is not a crime with repeal in effect.

Those charged with illegal manufacture or smuggling of liquor, however, will not be paroled, Marcus said.

Repeal Will Leave Washington Dry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Repeal of the prohibition amendment December 5 will leave the capital as one of the dry spots of the country until Congress, which makes the laws for the District of Columbia, enacts control legislation.

Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, chairman of the District of Columbia Committee, has promised to call a meeting as soon as a majority is available to consider such legislation.

LIQUOR SALES IN MANY CITIES UNDISTURBED

the status of the prohibition law pending ratification of the repeal amendment December 5. Until then the law will be enforced by this office. We cannot do otherwise."

But, in reply to a question, Mr. Dumbauld said no liquor prosecutions had been filed since he assumed office as federal prosecutor six weeks ago.

At the office of the federal prohibition enforcement office it was said agents here were awaiting word from Washington. The local office has done little to curb retail sales of liquor recently. District Attorney Andrew T. Park said:

"We will continue to prosecute any violations under the Snyder act until such time as that act may be repealed."

Repeal of the Snyder act will be one of the issues to be come before the forthcoming special session of the general assembly.

G. P. O'Brien, manager of the Pittsburgher Hotel and chairman of the Pennsylvania Hotel Men's Association said there would be no change for the present in sale of liquor by members of the association. He added:

"We certainly will not sell it openly while the law remains on the books. We expect to confer soon regarding regulations to govern the sale when existing laws are no longer in effect."

LIQUOR CONTROL PARLEY HELD BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt consulted with a special committee of cabinet officers today to map a federal liquor revenue policy after repeal next month.

Views of the State, Treasury, Justice, Commerce and Agriculture departments were sought to co-ordinate the government's activities.

The President had before him a lengthy report by a special committee making recommendations on liquor taxes and tariffs and outlining specifically the situation as it will stand when the Twenty-first Amendment becomes effective.

The program includes plans to keep and those states that did not vote to ratify repeal, and may revive the sending of the much-feared pre-prohibition revenue agent into moonshine areas.

TEMPERANCE PROGRAM

Objectives of the program are temperance and methods of dispensing alcoholic drinks without the return of the old-time saloon. In addition, steps are to be taken through the Coast Guard to prevent smuggling of foreign liquor across the eastern and southern coasts where rum fleets are reported concentrated in a move to evade the $5-a-gallon import tax.

The House Ways and Means Committee will open hearings on liquor taxation legislation November 27 to prepare a bill for early congressional action in January. Nobody yet knows, of course, how much money the taxes will raise.

The present tax is $1.10 a gallon on whisky, gins and brandies. Although it has been predicted that this will be increased to as high as $3 a gallon, members of a sub-committee studying the question claim it will not exceed $2.20. They say a higher tax might encourage the bootlegger to continue in business.

IMPORTERS WARNED

Meanwhile, inquiries from foreign governments and importers about the exact status regarding importations in view of prospective repeal, led Secretary Hull and Acting Secretary Acheson to join in a statement warning that illicit imports will be penalized.

Until December 5, imports will be governed by the provisions of the tariff law of 1930 and the regulations of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol.

Although James M. Doran, commissioner of the bureau, has been besieged by importers for permission to bring in huge quantities of spirits, they have been consistently denied permits to do so.

DRY CAROLINAS HAVE 'ALIBIS'

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Why did the Carolinas vote dry when 37 other states voted wet, most of them by large majorities?

Here's the answer as given by two editors in their newspapers.

Of North Carolina's more than 2-to-1 vote against repeal, the Charlotte News said:

"It is to be regretted, and is deeply regretted here, that we found it necessary to vote a hearty no on the question of repealing the Eighteenth Amendment in order to have it understood that we mean yes when it came to retaining the Turlington Act (the state's bone-dry law)."

The Columbia (S. C.) State explained the dry margin in that state, approximately 3,000 votes in a total of 70,000, as follows:

"The result in South Carolina is not a surprise. The opponents of repeal did some active work, while the advocates took repeal for granted, and contented themselves with rather unconvincing talking. The smallness of the vote attests the absence of much interest."

French Wine Dealers Fear Poor U. S. Sale

PARIS, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Wine sellers are sad instead of joyful at the end of prohibition in the United States because, it was explained today, they believe imitations masquerading as vintages will kill the taste for French wines before they start marketing them.

Further, the sellers were said to fear that renewed prospects for another French default on the war debt payment, December 15, will stimulate an anti-French feeling.

'KICK' IN BREWS TO BE BOOSTED

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—With the effective date of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, December 5, many brewers may increase the alcoholic content of beer, it was revealed today.

A high official said there was a divided sentiment in the industry as to whether beer should remain at 3.2 per cent or should be boosted to as high as 5 per cent.

It was anticipated that the alcoholic content would be increased. Whether there would be a uniformity was uncertain here. The alcoholic limitation written into the beer and wine law automatically is eliminated with the repeal of the amendment.

Officials said that ales, stouts and porters would be increased to the pre-war alcoholic content ranging upwards of 12 to 14 per cent.

AARON ATTACKS SCHOOL TAX SYSTEM

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—Pennsylvania's tax laws were described as antiquated and a "disgrace to our civilization" by Marcus Aaron, president of the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education in an address before the annual Education Congress today.

UNFAIR TAX BURDEN

Aaron said:

Years ago, when the school tax millage generally was approximately half the present rate, we pointed out that real estate was bearing an unfair proportion of the tax burden; that Pennsylvania was one of the most backward states in the union in its contribntions to public schools in proportion to its wealth; that too large a burden was thrust upon real estate so that the state might retain its antiquated and archaic system of taxation that was out of date over 50 years ago.

"The excessive burden on real estate will never be settled or permanently solved until our taxing laws are thoroughly revamped and revised."

HITS REACTIONARIES

Hitting at those who criticize present-day courses of study in the public schools, Aaron asserted:

"In some districts reactionary groups are attempting to eliminate the so-called 'fads and frills' and force all pupils of the high schools to study only subjects which were common in 1900—Latin, algebra, geometry, ancient history, English, chemistry and physics.

"When we consider the wide range of ability and the variety of interests found in the enrollment of pupils in a modern high school, to attempt to force upon them the curriculum of 1900 is just as foolish as to order the destruction of all our automobiles and return to transportation by horse and buggy."

As to reduction of the school term, the speaker declared:

"No suggestion for so-called economy is more dangerous or more reactionary than the suggestion to cut the school term so that money may be saved in teachers' salaries."

Rising in Movies

MARY CATHERINE BRACKEN

GIRL PLAYING FILM ROLES

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9. — Mary Catherine Bracken, Pittsburgh's own child movie star, who formerly lived near upper Federal street, is forging ahead on the movie lots of Hollywood.

Three years ago Mary was known on the North Side as a dancing and speaking prodigy. She performed at various affairs in the city. Her movie career started from a visit to friends in Los Angeles, during which she entered a contest conducted by the Los Angeles Herald-Express. She won and was awarded a film contract.

Since then she has played in "The Brahman's Daughter," "The White Sister," "One Hour With You," several operas and numerous plays and has made appearances in theaters and hotels. At present, she is under contract to play with Dolodes Del Rio in a new picture "Flying Down to Rio Grande." She has also signed to play with Benny Rubens.

While on the movie lot Mary Catherine, now 17, has a tutor. She graduated from Hollywood High School last February. She is continuing her education in junior college.

Gen. Pennypacker Statue Site Moved

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Gen. Galusha Pennypacker's statue won't be erected in front of the new Benjamin Franklin Memorial and Franklin Institute after all.

Complaints that it would mar the architectural beauty of the building, and sentiment that any statue there shall be one of Franklin himself, led to a decision to place that of the military hero on Vine street, near the parkway.

LAWYER TELLS OF SLAYING

IRONTON, O., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The fatal shooting of Mrs. Nan Moreland, says Prosecuting Attorney John Porter of Lawrence County, occurred when he attempted to wrest from her grasp a gun which he had brought to her apartment.

Porter, recovering from a bullet wound in the forehead received at the same time Mrs. Moreland was mortally wounded, described the shooting in a written statement offered to Coroner Harry Jones.

It relates that Mrs. Moreland picked up the gun and started toward Porter, "looking wild." When he tried to disarm her, the gun was discharged, the statement continues.

Rex Lease's 'Ex' Will Wed Doctor

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Within the next two weeks Eleanor Hunt and Dr. Frank G. Nolan, Hollywood physician, will be married, the stage and screen actress said today. Miss Hunt is the former wife of Rex Lease, film actor.

LINDY QUAFFS CHAMPAGNE

GENEVA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh received an old-time reception of official toasts and cheering crowds today.

The famous American flying pair, who flew here from Rotterdam yesterday, were officially received by members of the national and city governments in the historic Alabama room of the city hall. Lindbergh drank a glass of champagne and Ann was handed a bouquet of chrysanthemums. Afterward, they were guests of United States Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson before visiting the halls of the League of Nations during the forenoon.

Auto Crash Victim Dies in Hospital

Albert Hill, 69, of Liverpool and Sedgwick streets, died in the Presbyterian Hospital today of a fractured skull caused when he was struck by an automobile on October 26, the Coroner reported.

Policeman Foils Woman's Suicide Try

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(INS.)—A policeman early today frustrated the attempt of a young woman to hurl herself into the Delaware River from the lofty Delaware River Bridge.

The girl, identified as Maria Gross, 24, was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital. She refused to explain her suicide attempt. The policeman halted her as she was climbing out onto a pier after riding to the bridge in a taxicab.

BISHOP TO HEAD ST. PATRICK'S CELEBRATION

Commemorated by a pontifical high mass with the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, as the celebrant, Old St. Patrick's Church will observe the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding next Sunday morning.

The original St. Patrick's was located at Liberty avenue and Eleventh street. The present edifice at Seventeenth street and Liberty avenue is the third church erected since the original and dates back to 1865.

Sunday morning's service also will take the form of a home-coming for former parishioners. Among those who have been particularly invited are Mrs. Mary Gallagher, 2812 Center avenue, Ingram, who is now 85 years old and was baptized by Father Gaylord at St. Patrick's, and also Mrs. Margaret Hudson, 108 Elmont street, Crafton Heights, who was the last child baptized in Old St. Patrick's in 1852.

The officers for the pontifical high mass, assisting Bishop Boyle, are to be the Rev. Celestine Fallen, arch-priest; the Rev. C. A. Sanderbach, deacon; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, sub-deacon; the Rev. Father Lechner and the Rev. John R. McKavney, honorary deacons; the Rev. James Garrahan, master of ceremonies. The Rev. Father Owen J. Kirby, of Monessen, will preach the sermon.

Father James R. Cox recently observed the tenth year of his pastorate at Old St. Patrick's. During all this time his parish has been the center of extensive welfare activities.

HEINZ LEADING GOLLMAR FOR SHERIFF

SWEEP IN CITY

A resume of Tuesday's election further showed:

Democrats won every city office, one seat in the legislature, the Juvenile Court judgeship, were leading for sheriff, and won many borough and township offices.

The Republicans held three Common Pleas and two county judgeships and the Coroner's office.

Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment got a six-to-one vote in the county. In Pittsburgh and other municipalities in the county, with few exceptions, the people voted by large margins for Sunday baseball and football.

But William N. McNair was Mayor-elect by a 27,000 majority. With only one of the 408 districts missing, and the returns from it reported thrown into the Monongahela River, the vote:

McNair	102,658
Herron	75,304

It was the second time in the history of Pittsburgh that a John Herron served for Mayor—no longer than a year.

Back in 1849, a John Herron was Mayor for that year.

BIG MAGEE VOTE

William A. Magee, running as Democrat and Republican, and the four Democratic teammates won by a substantial majority over the four Republican candidates. Magee got 20,000 more Democratic votes than Republican.

With only one district missing, the councilmanic totals were:

Magee	162,765
Huston	96,491
Kane	94,164
Gallagher	93,537
Demmler	91,003
Duggan	73,579
Little	72,603
English	72,274
Oliver	70,719

WIDESPREAD REVOLT

Magee's place on the Democratic slate was made possible by the withdrawal of George E. Evans, who will undoubtedly be one of the leading figures in the reorganization of the city government when McNair becomes its executive.

How widespread the ballot revolution was came with the total figures today. The Republican city slate won only the first six wards, the Ninth and the Twenty-second, the Democrats taking all the others.

The Third, Sixth, Ninth and Twenty-second wards gave the Democrats a good vote.

The fight for Common Pleas Court found Judges M. A. Musmanno, Ralph H. Smith and Harry E. Rowand leading. The vote in 863 out of the 942 county districts gave:

Musmanno	290,983
Smith	176,103
Rowand	148,995
Kennedy	143,291

Dean A. Marshall Thompson, of the Pitt law school, trailed Kennedy, getting 138,133 votes in the same number of districts.

Musmanno had both party nominations.

SCHRAMM EASY WINNER

Gustav L. Schramm, Pitt professor and Democrat, won the newly-created Juvenile Court seat from Charles A. Lane, Jr., Republican candidate. In 841 districts, the figures were:

Schramm	181,427
Lane	108,702

Unless the Legislature at the session beginning next week provides for the $10,000 salary for this office, Schramm will find the job payless. The last Legislature, in creating it, neglected to provide compensation.

Judges Benjamin Lencher and Frank A. Piekarski, of the County Court, retained their seats, although pressed closely by James F. O'Toole, Jr., and Austin Staley, two youthful Democrats.

Lencher and Piekarski have been sitting judges for less than a year, having been appointed by Gov. Pinchot to fill vacancies. The promotion of Judge Musmanno to the Common Pleas Court will leave another vacancy in this court January 1.

The returns for 841 districts gave:

Lencher	165,754
Piekarski	143,378
O'Toole	128,041
Staley	124,568

M'GREGOR WINS

Of the 942 districts, 902 gave:

McGregor	171,499
Marino	140,419

And Mrs. Villa Henderson, who succeeded her late husband on the County Poor Board, won over William S. Cooper, Jr., Democrat.

The vote in 438 of the 434 districts was:

Mrs. Henderson	68,339
Cooper	57,654

The repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment found the county overwhelmingly anti-dry, 830 districts giving 249,135 votes for repeal, and 47,147 to retain prohibition.

Allegheny County voted for all the 12 amendments to the constitution, although the state only carried 11. The second, regarding the assessment of abutting property, was defeated.

Democrats today were considering plans for reorganization of the city and many small governments throughout the county. From a political viewpoint, the city itself, with 5,000 jobs, and the organization of a cabinet, presented a huge task.

G. O. P. DEMORALIZED

The result of the landslide left the Republican organization in a demoralized state.

Some groups privately blamed the present leadership—other groups felt the people wanted to push out the "ins" and predicated their opinions on other big city upsets.

In the Legislative fights, Democrats and Republicans split. Thomas Conley, Democrat, won from Peter W. Murphy, Republican, in the Third Legislative District where the death of Charles T. Dwyer made a vacancy, while William Gallagher, Republican, won from J. C. Brennan, Democrat, in the Second District. George Metzler, Republican, had resigned to become a Herron-appointed police magistrate.

President Art Rooney, of the Pittsburgh Pirates professional football team, announced that there would be a Sunday game in Forbes Field. Councilman Harry Little, who had a city ordinance prepared to push through Council, where it will get a 7 to 1 vote, it was said, will present it Monday. The bill is expected to set a fee on professional games, ranging from $10 to $50.

The Pittsburgh baseball club also announced the first Sunday baseball game April 20 of next year.

Woodin Improved, Visits Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Secretary William H. Woodin, who has been ill, conferred today with President Roosevelt at a luncheon conference. Woodin said he was feeling much better and was ready to carry on. He is still subject to the attention of doctors.

Detroit Symphony Conductor Honored

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., Nov. 9.—(INS.)—An honorary degree of doctor of music was conferred yesterday upon Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, by President Mary E. Wooley at the annual Founders' Day exercises at Mount Holyoke College.

PA. DEMOCRATS TO MAKE DRIVE FOR SENATE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's triumphant Democracy, having seized the Republican fortress of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, casts a hopeful eye toward next year's senatorial and gubernatorial battles.

Republican leaders, however, regarded the Democratic upsets as local expressions and United States Senator David A. Reed, said he was confident the Keystone State still is strongly Republican in national issues.

In Philadelphia, where the cohorts of the veteran Republican leader, William S. Vare, are smarting under their worst trouncing since he assumed control, jubilant Democrats looked to youthful John Bernard (Jack) Kelly, political newcomer, for a new deal in civic politics.

KELLY'S PLEDGE

One-time international rowing champion, Kelly succeeded the ousted John O'Donnell as chairman of the independent Democratic committee and is recognized by the national and state organizations. Kelly said:

"I will not assume the role of a reformer. We hope to do the duties entrusted to us in a sensible, business-like manner—just as one would conduct his own business. In other words, put Philadelphia on a paying basis.

"If we don't do this job in a straightforward manner, allowing for a few honest mistakes, then we are not worthy of support. Further, let me say that if we ever get half as bad, half as corrupt or half as stupid as the gang in this city, then throw us out just as you did to the band of brothers yesterday."

Political observers in Washington surveyed the results in Pennsylvania as indicating the possibility that Gov. Pinchot would enter the lists in opposition to Senator Reed.

PINCHOT'S PLANS

Independent Republicans, who long have supported the Governor, played an important part in the Democratic victories throughout the state.

Although Pinchot has maintained a strict silence as to his political plans, insistent reports assert he will be a candidate for the United States Senate at the next primaries.

Associates of Reed, however, said they felt his chances for re-election as strong as ever.

Reed himself expressed disappointment over the outcome of Tuesday's voting in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Democrats in the latter city defeating the Mellon mayoralty candidate. Reed said:

"So far as national affairs are concerned, however, it is a mistake to think that Pennsylvania is not just as staunchly Republican as it ever was."

Democrat Elected Trafford Burgess

In Trafford, Elmer Henderson, Republican, candidate for burgess, has conceded the election of J. W. Burroughs, Democrat, by a margin of 35. Early returns had indicated Henderson a winner.

Dead at Home

INSURANCE MAN, EDUCATOR DIES

Wickliffe C. Lyne, 83, a resident of Pittsburgh 57 years, and prominent in educational, religious and civic activities, died yesterday at his home, 5314 Westminster place.

He was born in Richmond, Va., September 22, 1850, and was a graduate of Bethany College. For many years he was engaged in educational work, later entering the insurance business. At the time of his death he was manager of the Union Central Life Insurance Company for Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Lyne was a founder of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association and served as its second president. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution and was a past president of the Pennsylvania Society; the Third Presbyterian Church, the Men's Oxford Bible class, Duquesne Club and Chamber of Commerce, and at the time of his death was the oldest member of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity in Pittsburgh.

He leaves two sons, Wickliffe B. and Robert A. Lyne, and two daughters, Sarah H. Lyne and Mrs. J. O. Chambers, all of Pittsburgh.

CURRY SCORES FARLEY'S PART IN ELECTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Tammany Tiger surveyed today the wreckage left by Mayor-elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia's smashing Fusion victory and marshaled its shattered forces to see if the damage could be repaired.

The prospect of a bitter fight in the city's Democratic ranks was seen in a statement by John F. Curry, Tammany chief, accusing Postmaster General James A. Farley, state and national Democratic chairman, of disrupting the party in the city, and asserting that if Farley remained in party office, the Democrats could not look for victory in next year's election.

Farley also came in for criticism from Samuel Seabury, who fathered the Fuison movement. He called Farley's backing of the Recovery party of Joseph V. McKee "wanton interference, prompted very largely by the ambitious political designs of Farley and the group for whom he spoke."

LaGuardia planned a vacation to recuperate from the hard-hitting campaign in which he rolled up a 262,000 plurality. Graft is to go, and expenditures cut to the bone, he pointed out. He also aims to revise the city charter, abolishing the Board of Aldermen and making other fundamental changes.

WESTMORELAND ROUTS G. O. P.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Clerk of Courts Arthur E. Ewing was the only Republican to win in Westmoreland County's election. Democrats sweeping every other county job balloted upon.

Richard D. Laird, Spanish-American war veteran, won a spirited fight for District Attorney over Fred B. Trescher, Republican and Pinchot candidate, 38,397 to 29,313.

John H. McElveen ousted Alex McConnell as Prothonotary, 31,344 to 28,291.

Sentiment for Sunday sports was strong and Vandergrift was the only outstanding borough which voted against permitting play on the Sabbath.

Because of closeness in the mayoralty race in New Kensington, where Mayor Dannie Burns was defeated by 39 votes by Dr. R. A. Wolfe, Sheriff William Humes impounded the ballot boxes in the First and Second wards.

Republican Leads In Louisville Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Tabulation of 117 of Louisville 568 precincts in the nip-and-tuck mayoralty race showed Col. Dan Carrell, Republican, had regained the lead over Neville Miller, Democrat, and led 11,960 to 11,639.

Sure of 7 Votes, Machine Gives Him None

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—J. Thomas McNerny has his doubts.

He ran for alderman in Tuesday's elections and when he went to vote, he said, the first lever he pulled was for himself. What's more he lined up six more votes from members of his own family.

Imagine his surprise when the official returns from his precinct showed a great big zero opposite his name. The Honest Ballot Association, to which he complained, promised today to look into the matter.

Beckman Elected Mt. Oliver Burgess

In one of the hardest-fought political battles in the history of Mt. Oliver, Charles W. Beckman, automobile dealer, defeated the incumbent, John A. Wagner, for Burgess. Wagner has held the office for several terms. Beckman's majority was 359 votes.

Mr. Beckman

The three Councilmen elected were Norman Stoehr, Henry B. Mutschler and Arthur Vossberg, on the Democratic ticket, the fourth place being a close contest between William Holzer, Republican, and Louis Marloff, Democrat.

Taxpayers' League Asks M'Nair Support

Mayor-elect William N. McNair today was asked by the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League for co-operation for a further reduction in the city tax rate. The league also asked the administration's support in obtaining legislation lifting the burden of taxation from real estate for the support of the public schools system.

Clarion Democrat Elected to Bench

CLARION, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Clarion County Democrats elected Albert Geary judge over the Republican incumbent, Judge Harry M. Rimer, by 33 votes. The vote was: Geary, 6,690; Rimer, 6,657.

Six precincts in the county voted for Sunday sports and 45 against, and four voted in favor of licensing the sale of beer and seven opposed.

Something New for Little Sister
Pattern 1647
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

Of course little sister needs lots of crisp, comfy frocks—she's at the age when playing means more than being a neat little lady—but her clothes needn't cost a lot. You can make this pretty little model in one afternoon — the pattern with its Instructor is so easy to use—and all you need are a few yards of inexpensive cotton print. The yoke and front panel are cut in one, you may have either long or short sleeves, and you'll love the irresistible touch of ruffling on the panel and collar. The cat is made from Transfer Pattern 719.

Pattern 1647 is available in sizes 4, 5, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 takes 3⅜ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern; 15c additional for Transfer Pattern 719 (30c for both). Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Chiropractor Freed In Attack on Doctor

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A jury in District Court last night acquitted Dr. W. H. Hedberg, St. Paul chiropractor, of a charge of assault with intent to kill Dr. E. J. Engberg, St. Paul physician.

Dr. Engberg had testified he was positive the defendant was the man who attacked him last July 11, after he had been lured from his home by a telephone call, seized and asked to perform a mutilating operation. When he refused, he alleged, he was beaten and drugged.

SUNDAY SPORTS WIN BIG VOTE IN STATE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Sunday baseball comes to Pennsylvania on the tide of ballots which made the state a keystone in the arch of national prohibition repeal.

In Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and practically all large cities, voters who struck at the Eighteenth Amendment and the most powerful political organizations of the state wiped out the Sunday ban imposed against baseball, football and all "wordly" activities by the Blue Law of 1794.

The concerted metropolitan attack assured better balanced schedules and more profitable seasons for the Athletics, Phillies and Pirates in the major circuits, and the five state teams in the New York-Pennsylvania League, Reading, Williamsport, Harrisburg, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and York all voted to permit licensing of baseball and football games from 2 to 6 p. m. Sundays.

BOROUGHS LIFT BAN

With these scores of other cities and large boroughs voted for Sunday sports, Allentown, Erie, Lancaster, Lebanon, Norristown, Oil City, Franklin, Meadville, Titusville joined the parade of the cities.

In the townships, comprising the largest part of the 2,504 municipalities which voted on the issue, the returns of yesterday's election told a different story. There, particularly in the upstate rural districts, the voters remained loyal to the 139-year-old law which court decisions have modernized somewhat but which remains on the books in the language of the state's founders.

OPPOSE THE TREND

Several cities voted against the general trend of the populous centers. Altoona, Washington and Coatesville refused to permit baseball and football within their boundaries on the Sabbath, though Loan Township, in which Altoona's main ball park is located, created a nearby mecca for Blair County fans by voting "yes."

Interior counties like Union, Blair, Tioga, Snyder and Mifflin turned strongly against the proposal. Others, including Lancaster, Dauphin, Northumberland and Crawford, became patchworks of approved and prohibited Sunday sport municipalities. In Northampton County, Easton, Bethlehem and 14 boroughs voted "yes" while three boroughs voted "no."

COLLEGE TOWNS DISAGREE

College towns disagree on the desirability of Sunday sports. The municipalities in which Bucknell University and Lebanon Valley College are located rejected the plan; Selinsgrove, home of the Lutheran Susquehanna University, approved it.

The general result, however, is that all cities, boroughs and townships—except those in Huntingdon County—last night were on record as for or against licensing Sunday sports.

Under the Schwartz Act, by which the referenda were held, each will remain that way for three years. At the end of that period, any or all of the municipalities which voted yesterday can take another poll of its citizens.

INJUNCTION BALKS VOTE

A temporary injunction prevented Huntingdon County from voting Tuesday. The Huntingdon County Sabbath School Association, which obtained the restraining order, contends the Legislature violated the constitution in enacting the Schwartz law. This may lead to a Supreme Court test of the act, but modificationists are confident of the outcome.

Meanwhile, some of the less patient communities are ready to exercise their new privilege by licensing Sunday football games this year.

The larger communities in Somerset County were sharply divided on the Sunday sports issue. Somerset, Berlin and Rockwood voted against it while Windber, Meyersdale and Boswell decided in favor of the measure.

Bedford, Coaldale and St. Clairsville are the only communities in Bedford County that approved Sunday sports.

WINS IN WESTMORELAND

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—Practically all larger towns and communities in Westmoreland County favored Sunday sports, complete returns from Tuesday's election show.

Among those favoring the proposal were Greensburg, Jeannette, Latrobe, New Kensington, Monessen, Adamsburg, Export, Hyde Park, North Bellevernon, North Irwin, Penn, Smithton, South Greensburg, Sutersville, Trafford, West Newton, Youngstown, Lower Burrell Township, North Huntingdon Township, Penn Township, Salem Township, South Huntingdon Township, Unity Township and Upper Burrell Township.

State Curb Urged By Liquor Dealers

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9. (AP.)—The Pennsylvania Licensed Beverage Dealers Association plans to ask the State Legislature to continue prohibition in some form until proper liquor control legislation can be enacted.

The legislation committee of the organization at a meeting last night decided to make the request. Neil Bonner, president of the association, stated a bill to regulate and control liquor was being prepared by the committee.

Repeal, Sunday Sports Carry by Big Margin

With only four districts missing, the four cities of Allegheny County showed an overwhelming vote on repeal of the prohibition amendment and revoking part of the Blue Laws to permit Sunday sports.

In the four cities the prohibition repeal vote was 160,874 to 21,171. The vote for Sunday sports in the four cities was 168,169 to 26,509.

The borough and township vote was:

U. S. DRYS CALL RALLY JAN. 3

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—With their 20-year battle to bring about and retain national prohibition lost, leaders of the nation's dry organizations will assemble here on January 3, to map a future policy.

The meeting was called by the conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment which embraces all of the leading dry units of the country.

Leaders in the dry cause, keenly disappointed by the speed of the repeal movement, are spill upon the future course of dry organizations.

While some called for abandonment of a political battle and emphasis upon temperance and total abstinence, others urged the drys to realign their forces for a new drive toward national prohibition through state elections and a dry Congress.

All dry leaders here conceded that national prohibition is impossible again for years, but some of them believe the nation will quickly tire of legalized liquor and open the way to a new constitutional amendment.

JOB FIGHT MAY GO TO COURT

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—A court fight over the office of register recorder for Crawford County loomed today after the election of Ray Smock, Republican county chairman, by more than 1,000 votes over Pitt Davis, a Democrat.

C. Victor Johnson holds the office having been named to fill a vacancy caused by death. Johnson's appointment was until January 1, 1935, and Smock was elected to take office January 1, 1934.

Harry Nichols, Republican, defeated his Democratic opponent for Sheriff by more than 5,000 votes.

Scattered shots, being fired throughout the city in minor skirmishes were drowned into oblivion by the awful artillery bombardment.

The loyal troops had unlimbered at least four 3-inch field pieces and operated them "at will." They were operating the field pieces rapidly and scoring about one direct hit on the fortress out of five shots.

Atares' defenders answered the artillery fire with machine guns and rifles.

Once the assailants missed their target and the stray shell killed a woman watching the battle from the balcony of her house more than a mile away.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS

The defenders of Atares Fortress soon added anti-aircraft guns to the torrid fire from their machine guns and rifles.

The soldiers who had captured San Ambrosio retaliated by using that fortress as a vantage point from which to direct additional guns against Atares.

Civilian members of the ABC revolutionary group occupied vantage points on rooftops overlooking San Ambrosio and sniped busily at the soldiers there.

Meanwhile the government still contended it had the situation in hand in the interior of the country, although reliable information from the provinces was impossible to obtain because of disrupted communications facilities. The rebels, however, said the rebellion was under way in Matanzas, Camaguey and Oriente Provinces.

Capital Asked to Protect U. S. Interests in Cuba

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Threats from Cuban revolutionary factions to sack American property unless the battle over control of the government is settled quickly today brought appeals for protection to the State Department from United States interests in Havana.

Officials in close touch with Ambassador Welles, in Havana, said he had not informed them of the warning there that efforts would be made to force American intervention unless President Grau San Martin retires.

Silence was maintained at the State Department pending the official receipt of such word.

American owners of sugar mills and other enterprises in Cuba, nevertheless, came forward with appeals to the department for protection.

Samuel R. Berton, New York banker, and other representatives of American interests in Cuba talked today with Jefferson Caffery, assistant Secretary of State, who is giving his undivided attention to the island crisis.

He is in frequent communication with Ambassador Welles by telephone and cable.

The department has given notice of adhering firmly to the policy of non-intervention, unless American lives are endangered. No indication wa sgiven of any change in that policy.

Meanwhile, the Navy epartment made known that there are now 19 American war vessels in or near Cuban waters, including the battleship Wyoming with a training battalion of marines off Tampa, Florida, and the cruiser Richmond at Havana.

Police Rescue Man In Saw Mill Run

Eugene McCormick, 30, 1964 Greenleaf street, was found partly submerged in Saw Mill Run, at the foot of the Alexander street steps early today by Police Lieut. Arch Marone. McCormick was taken to South Side Hospital suffering from exposure.

McCormick told police he had been celebrating the birth of a son and didn't know how he had fallen.

Big Fire Imperils Phila. Waterfront

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9—(INS.)—A section of the city's waterfront was threatened today by a three-alarm fire that destroyed a five-story paper warehouse and damaged two other buildings.

Firemen fought the blaze almost three hours in near-freezing weather. No one was hurt.

Verosky Defeated in Braddock Vote Upheaval

A defeat for Michael J. Verosky, former political chieftain of Braddock and county purchasing agent in the Armstrong administration, is seen as the result of a hard fought election in Braddock.

The results of the fight for Burgess is still in doubt, with Independents insisting that Fred Seim has been elected by a small margin. The organization is claiming the election of James H. Rose, Republican, by a margin of 13 votes.

In the fights for Council the Verosky candidates in all but one instance were defeated. In the Second Ward, Michael A. Swersay and Edward McDonough, Republican and Democrat, defeated Joseph S. Styk, the Verosky candidate running on the Braddock and Fairplay ticket.

In the Third Ward, J. E. Davis and J. A. Pytka, Democrats, defeated James L. Sheekey and Ira C. Harris, Republicans; in the Fourth Ward, C. L. Edstrom, Republican and Democrat, defeated Samuel Escher, Fairplay and Braddock ticket.

SLEUTH VICTOR

In the First Ward, Albert Shedlock, county detective, was the only Verosky candidate successful in any of the Council fights. He defeated George Mehalik, Independent.

In the fight for school director, William C. Roderus and Charles D. Little, Republicans, defeated Fannie L. Pachtman, Democrat. The Democrats have threatened to ask for the impounding of three boxes in this contest.

For tax collector, John Whitfield, Democrat and Independent, defeated Thomas L. Howard, Republican.

Late returns in other boroughs follow:

DORMONT

Complete figures in Dormont showed the entire regular Republican ticket victorious. For Burgess, Charles Chamberlin defeated Charles J. Thomas, Democrat, 2,023 to 1,478; for Council, Earl Llewellyn, 2,018; J. Elmer Evans, 1,825; Charles Cooke, 1,638, and Arthur L. Miller, 1,576, Republicans, were elected; C. K. Miller, Democrat, running fifth with 1,418; for School Director, John F. Golden, Republican and Democrat, 2,154, and J. Leigh Shields, Republican, 1,904, were named; C. C. Briggs, Democrat, the runner-up, polling 1,205; for Tax Collector, Robert S. Golden, Republican, defeated Charles J. Meyer, Democrat, 2,234 to 1,142; for Justice of the Peace, Martin K. 11 AMENDMENTS CARRY; NO. 2 TRAILING

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Returns from more than half the state indicate approval of 11 of the 12 proposed amendments to the state constitution.

The one amendment trailing is No. 2, which would have assessed abutting properties for highway improvements.

Amendment No. 8 authorizing the state to borrow $25,000,000 for unemployment relief and other expenditures won nearly 2 to 1 support in 4,859 districts of the 7,925 in the state.

The proposed amendment authorizing a $50,000,000 bond issue for soldiers' bonuses was favored by about a 2-to-1 vote.

Veterans of the World War, Spanish-American War, Chinese Boxer expedition and Philippine insurrection are eligible to participate in the payments.

Returns received show:

N. KENSINGTON VOTE DISPUTED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Nov. 9.—Plans for a recount of New Kensington's vote in all seven wards for Mayor were being made today, following the impounding of 10 ballot boxes. Sheriff deputies collected the boxes on the order of Squire Jenkin Howell.

New Kensington becomes a city January 1.

New Deal party officials, supporting Dr. R. A. Wolff for Mayor, on learning that their candidate had lost to Burgess Daniel Burns, Republican, in the First and Second wards by 51 votes, asked a recount. It was then that Police Chief Sam J. Zeloyle suggested the boxes be placed under police guard.

According to the count of the ballots Burgess Burns received 2,574 votes and Dr. Wolff 2,523.

M'NAIR VICTORY HAILED BY VANN

Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General Robert L. Vann, editor of the Pittsburgh Courier, today hailed the election of William N. McNair as mayor as the end of the American Negro's traditional affiliation with the Republican party.

Vann, Negro Democratic leader here, said:

"We have won our political freedom at last. We have overcome that old tradition which held us in bondage to a single party. We are free; the rest is easy.

"I extend my deepest congratulations and thanks to every man and woman who struck a blow for freedom Tuesday."

NEW COUNCIL TO 'SIT IN'

The newly-elected Democratic councilmen will be invited by Mayor John S. Herron and president of Council Harry A. Little to "sit in" on Council's 1934 budget sessions.

Little said yesterday that he would send letters to the successful candidates several days before Council started work on next year's budget. Little explained that the "guests" would have the opportunity of making suggestions regarding the new budget and acquainting themselves with the various city departments.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

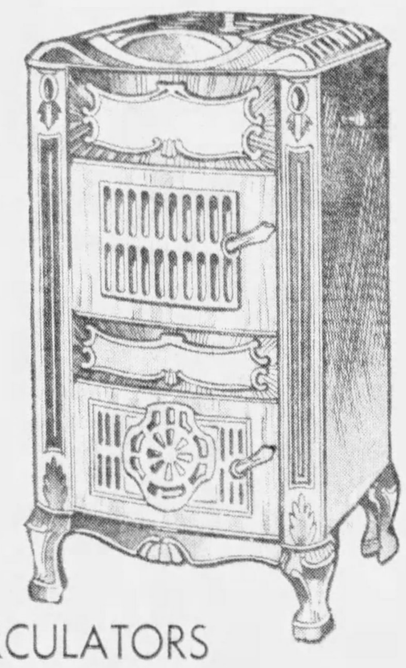
Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.



CIRCULATORS

to keep the sniffles out of your house

You'll be glad all winter long that you bought this fine circulator. Built like a furnace, and burns any kind of fuel. With oversize Feed Doors and cast-iron Firepot. Finished in beautiful Walnut Porcelain Enamel, to look like a piece of furniture.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE AMERICA'S GREATEST STUNT GIRL

A SUDDEN NERVE-RACKING swing upward from a racing auto into a hurtling plane... It's all in the day's work for Mary Wiggins, famous stunt girl who also dives on fire into fire and does the suspension glide in mid-air while hanging only by her teeth. It means something when she says, "Camels never give me edgy nerves even when I smoke a lot."
CAMEL
A MATCHLESS BLEND

JOE: I'm so glad to see you, Sue. Were you nervous during your first flight?

SUE: Not a bit. I smoked Camels all the way, and I never felt better! I haven't worried about nerves since I took your advice and changed to Camels.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

LISTEN TO MARY WIGGINS, greatest of all girl stunt performers. She says:

"I have to be sure my nerves are healthy to do my stunts, changing from a speeding auto to a plane, the high dive on fire into fire, wing walking while up in a plane, and the high-altitude parachute jump. As to smoking, I've found that Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves. I've tried all the brands. Camels are milder and better in flavor. They do not give me edgy nerves even when I am smoking a lot."

You'll like that rich Camel flavor and mildness. And your nerves will tell you the difference there is in Camel's costlier tobaccos.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

COURT VERDICT ON KEILLY AWAITED

Judges George V. Moore and John P. Egan, having finished hearing testimony in the disbarment proceedings against David S. Keilly, are awaiting transcribing of the record, after which a decision is expected.

Keilly, cited for professional misconduct by the Allegheny County Bar Association and now said to be in California, owes clients and others thousands of dollars, testimony indicated.

He was accused of employing "runners" in ambulance-chasing practices, and with failing to settle with clients after he had collected damage awards.

Answering an inquiry by the court, Keilly's counsel, R. Murray Gibson, Jr., said he would offer no defense for him, continuing:

"The day before he left, Keilly told me the allegations were true and said there were other cases. I think he offered his resignation to the court to stop trial. I believe that if this had been a criminal case he would have pleaded guilty."

It had been testified Keilly had offered his resignation to the board of judges, but it was refused.

Witnesses yesterday included other attorneys and insurance men, who told of the settlement of cases with Keilly, on behalf of his clients.

Miss W. Maud Newman, Valley Hospital, Sewickley; Helen E. Murphy, Children's Hospital; Hilda B. Murphy, Mercy Hospital; and Marguerite Tusse, St. Margaret's Hospital, testified as to the status of some of Keilly's cases. Some of them also told of his failure to pay hospital bills of clients.

Boy Gets Wound From Gun He Finds

Edward Miskevich, 11, of 2521 Carey way, found a revolver in a vacant lot near his home yesterday and fired it three times. One of the bullets struck him in the leg. He was taken to South Side Hospital.

Junior Patrol

Be interested in your government, fellows.

Day before yesterday, the city elected a new Mayor and new councilmen and the voters elected many other offcers and decided many important questions.

Just as soon as you can, you should be interested in finding out about your right to vote and what it is all about. Your teacher will explain to you just how the government works, city, county, state and national governments.

In the Pittsburgh schools, before the real election, they held a straw vote among the school children, and it was remarkable how like the real vote the children's vote was. Above all, you want to learn to think for yourself about how to vote. Try to find out which is the best man, and vote for him every time.

Are you helping around the house, fellows? Most all of the leaves are off the trees now, and we hope that every Junior Patrol member is helping his father to clean up his yard, clean and ready for the winter.

Don't forget that you should help your mother. Run her errands and help her as much as you can. Girls, especially, should learn to help their mothers cook, sew and clean, they can learn to be good housekeepers. Perhaps, some day, when they have homes of their own, they will be glad they did learn housekeeping from their mothers.

We have heard that some Junior Patrol members are riding bicycles, and we were glad to hear it. Riding a bicycle is good exercise and requires courage and skill. But you should remember one thing. When you ride your bicycle on the streets and highways, you should be just as courteous as though you were driving your own car.

When a car blows its horn to come past you, you should keep close to the edge of the road. Many serious accidents have happened because boys and girls were too smart riding their bicycles. They wobbled into the path of an automobile and were smashed up.

So be careful, fellows. Look behind you before you turn out or in, watch intersections, and keep your eyes on the road ahead.

DON'T NEGLECT COLDS

RUB soothing, warming Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours. What gratifying relief!

Musterole is NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other valuable ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—ease in 5 minutes, and relief in 5 hours, as a rule. It penetrates, stimulates, warms and soothes the congested parts, drawing out the pain and infection. Used by millions for 25 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

ARMISTICE DAY FESTIVITIES ARRANGED

A series of entertainments, dinners and reunions in the city will mark a day of pre-Armistice celebration tomorrow.

Veterans of the 111th Infantry, 28th Division, will open reunion headquarters in the Fort Pitt Hotel. A reunion banquet is set for the night.

A dance will be held by the Arthur C. Woestehoff Post No. 435, at Webster Hall. Albert G. Baker Post 86, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will give an entertainment in its rooms, Steuben street, East End.

Saturday's crowded program includes the parade in the morning and the annual military ball of the American Legion in the William Penn Hotel that night.

BISHOP TALKING AT M. E. MEET

With authorities on preaching and hymnology listed to speak, the second and last day's sessions of the conference on preaching and church music were being held today in Christ Methodist Episcopal Church.

Bishop Adna W. Leonard was to speak on "Some Things That Make or Break a Preacher."

Last night a model service of worship was given with a selected choir and a sermon by Bishop Leonard.

Ambulance Unit Reunion Tomorrow

The fifteenth annual reunion of Ambulance Company No. 109, 28th Division, will be held in the Keystone Athletic Club tomorrow at 6:30 p. m.

Members of the unit, one of the first from Pittsburgh to go to camp in 1917, saw active service in France under Capt. W. J. Sterrett, taking part in battles from Chateau Thierry to the Argonne.

Good-bye COLD!

When This Famous Remedy Gets on the Job!

It's just too bad for a cold when you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For this famous tablet soon has the cold on its way. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine acts quickly and decisively because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside.

Complete relief is had with Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine because it is a complete treatment. It does the four things necessary. It open the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is courting danger. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and resent a substitute.

COOKING IS ART, RECIPES SHOW

Menu Ideas Prove Of Great Interest To Women

According to the many and delicious recipes sent in daily to Prudence Penny, women of the Pittsburgh district have transformed cooking from a task to an art.

If their letters form a criterion, they really enjoy it, especially since the Sun-Telegraph has come to their aid by providing menu variety with its prize winners.

Take Mrs. Walter C. Smith, of Charleroi, for instance. She writes:

"I always enjoy the recipes and look for them every day. They prove a great help to me."

Some recipe you use may be greatly appreciated by other women who are not acquainted with it. Mail it to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and perhaps you will be one of the winners of the daily $5 prize or one of the 10 $1 prizes.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. D. E. BOWN,
1650 Crafton Blvd., Crafton.
OLD-FASHIONED APPLE DUMPLINGS

Pare quarter and core the apples, then make a stiff rich biscuit dough roll, and cut in squares and take four pieces of apple to each dumpling and wrap in a square of the dough, pinching the ends together. Put a quart of water in a pudding or baking dish with a cup of sugar and a piece of butter; let it get to boiling on the top of the stove, place the dumplings in and bake until both the crust and apples are done in a hot oven.

BISCUIT DOUGH

One cup flour.
One tablespoonful shortening.
One-quarter teaspoonful salt.
Two teaspoonfuls baking powder.

TEN ONE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. JOSEPH R. WEAVER,
R. D. No. 1, Irwin.
SOUR CREAM RAISIN CAKE

One cup sour cream.
One cup sugar.
Two eggs.
Two cups flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One cup raisins cut in pieces.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Mix sugar with sour cream; add beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift flour, soda, salt and spices and combine with cream and sugar. Add raisins and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in tube pan 45 minutes in a moderate oven.

MRS. H. HEINEN,
8 East Orchard ave., Bellevue.
POT ROAST OF BEEF WITH VEGETABLES

Three and one-quarter pounds pot roast.
One tablespoon beef drippings.
Four tablespoons flour.
One teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.
One cup diced celery.
Two Spanish onions.
Two sweet green peppers.
Four tomatoes.
Six medium carrots.
Six medium potatoes.

Sear pot roast in hot skillet and then put into a large covered kettle or Dutch oven. Pour off all but one tablespoon of beef drippings, then stir in flour and seasoning until smooth; add water, stirring constantly. Quarter onion and seeded green peppers into strips, halve tomatoes and peel potatoes and carrots. Arrange with diced celery around the meat, pour liquid over all and cover closely. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 degrees Fahrenheit for two and one-half hours or until done. Serves six.

MRS. E. S. BRUCE,
23 Hiland ave., Burgettstown.
BAKED EGGS

Two eggs.
One-half cup milk.
Two tablespoons bread crumbs.
One tablespoon butter.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon paprika.
A little pepper.

Butter two small molds and break an egg in each. Mix salt and pepper in milk and pour half the mixture over each egg. Put buttered crumbs over each egg and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes.

MISS MARGARET DI NATALE,
Banning, Box 61.
STONE JAR MOLASSES COOKIES

Three cups sifted cake flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon ginger.
One cup molasses.
One half cup butter or other shortening.
One-half teaspoon soda.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and ginger and sift again. Heat molass, remove from fire, add shortening and soda. Add flour gradually. Chill until firm enough to roll. Roll one-eighth inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with floured cookie cutter. Bake on greased baking sheet in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., 10 minutes. Cool. Store in stone jar. Makes 3½ dozen cookies.

MRS. FRANK C. REX,
442 Union ave., Ingram.
LIMA BEANS

Boil one (1) pound lima beans and an onion until the beans are soft. Then place beans and the water they are cooked in in a casserole or bake dish with a large piece of butter. Add also one-half cup of brown sugar. Cover the beans with strips of bacon. Bake in a moderate oven until the bacon is brown. Just before serving cover with marshmallows and brown under the broiler.

MRS. I. SWANSON,
5119 Duncan street.
POTATO UNIQUE

Four cups mashed potatoes.
One-half cup cold meat.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon nutmeg.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.
One teaspoon minced onions.
Two tablespoons minced parsley.
One-quarter pound bacon, sliced thin.
One egg.
Bread crumbs.

Add seasoning, except one-half of the parsley to the potato; mix well. If too dry, add a little milk. To the meat, add One-half of the parsley and a little salt and pepper. Flatten out a large spoonful of potato and lay a teaspoon of the meat in the center. Fold the potato around the meat and form a roll about three inches long, being sure the meat is entirely covered. Roll in bread crumbs, then in beaten egg, then again in bread crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat. Remove from fat when a medium brown; place on wax paper to take up the fat. Fry the bacon carefully so it is not burned, but is crisp. Garnish a platter with lettuce or cress. Place the rolls with a strip of bacon on each one. Serve.

Awarding of Cash Prizes for Best Continues

MRS. NANCE HATHAWAY,
3416 Portola street.
DRIED BEEF AND TOMATO RABBIT

Melt two tablespoons butter in skillet and add one cup minced dried beef. Stir until meat looks a little crispy, then add one cup tomato puree and one-half cup grated cheese. Stir until cheese is melted then add three beaten eggs and stir furiously. Serve at once on hot buttered toast.

MISS GRACE FORDING,
3104 Universal street.
RICE PORCUPINES

One pound ground meat.
One-half cup washed raw rice.
One small onion cut fine.
Salt and pepper to taste.
One can tomato soup.

Method—Mold meat, rice, onions, salt and pepper into balls. Place in a pan with two cups boiling water. Cook one hour. Then add tomato soup and cook another half hour. Carrots may be cooked in with it if desired.

MRS. JOSEPH BODALI,
1000 S. Braddock ave., Swissvale.
STUFFED ARTICHOKES

Six artichokes.
Three cups grated bread crumbs.
One-half cup grated Italian cheese.
One large onion, chopped.
Chopped parsley.

Cut off tips of artichokes. Mix bread crumbs, grated cheese, onions, parsley and brown a little in oil. Stuff each leaf of artichoke with mixture and place in baking pan. Pour over artichoke one-half cup olive oil and bake in oven until you can pull a leaf from artichoke easily. Serves six.

MRS. C. J. KOBUS,
131 Forty-third street.
A FULL PLATTER

Lamb and Carrot Balls, So Tasty, Served With Rice.

One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One egg.
Four tablespoons crisco.
Three tablespoons flour.
One and one-half cup hot stock or water.
One cup rice.

Buy inexpensive cut of lamb, trim off waste, put through grinder, put onion and carrots through grinder (makes one and one-half cups), add seasonings and egg. Mix, shape into small balls, roll in flour. Melt crisco in skillet, fry meat balls until brown. Add one-half cup hot water. Cover skillet. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Remove meat to warm place, add flour to sauce in skillet, brown smoothly. Add slowly one cup hot stock or water. Cook until gravy thickens. Pour over meat balls in meantime. Boil rice rapidly in boiling salted water. When done, drain and arrange around meat. Sprinkle rice with paprika. Decorate with mint jelly.

HIT-RUN DRIVER KILLS 2, HELD

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Arrested by detectives who traced him through a missing automobile door handle, Seymour Knopp, 19-year-old chauffeur, today was to be arraigned on a homicide charge in connection with the death of two 16-year-old roller skaters.

Detectives said Knopp was the driver of the car which struck and fatally injured Mary Greenhill and Richard Reinertsen, both of Brooklyn, and sped on without stopping.

Knopp, employed by Abraham Cohen, an importer, told police he had taken Mrs. Cohen to Lakewood, N. J., police reported, and that he was on his way home when he "lost his head," struck the skaters and fled.

FEELS YEARS YOUNGER!

Look at him! Used to be so grouchy . . . now he's the livest fellow in the crowd

You never saw such an improvement in anyone. He used to be so irritable his own family wondered how they could stand it. And naturally! For he felt himself slipping. Achy, pepless, he simply couldn't figure out what was wrong. Yet in a few weeks he shook off years. Now he acts and looks like a new man.

What was wrong with him? And with millions like him—dragging along only half-alive—wondering, worrying? The answer is simple.

It's ASTHENIA

(Run-down condition, usually caused by Constipation)

That's the insidious thing about Asthenia . . . it drags you down, slows your mind, robs you of your joys and pleasures, yet you hardly realize you're slipping.

Would you like for once to brush the cobwebs from your eyes—be ready and eager for any task—experience all the glories of this glorious old world? Then rid yourself of Asthenia and stay rid of it.

You think that you're not the least bit clogged—you say that you're "regular" as can be—but physicians will tell you that it is only too easy to deceive yourself in this respect and stay doped with poisons. Thus millions of micro organisms accumulate in the intestinal tract and produce that dull, achy, pepless feeling known as Asthenia.

Decide right now to turn the tables on Old Man Gloom. Take Pluto Water every morning for ten mornings, and see a new world in ten days!

Gentle, Effective

Gently and thoroughly cleanse your system of every vestige of health-destroying impurities. Then you will understand why for nearly ninety years, from all over the world, people have traveled to French Lick Springs for this ten-day Pluto Water treatment. And why physicians everywhere recommend it as a mild and effective laxative—non-irritating and non-habit-forming.

Two sizes—20c and 45c—at all drug counters. Bottled and sealed at French Lick Springs.

The NEW TASTELESS WAY TO TAKE PLUTO

Taken as directed—one-fifth glass

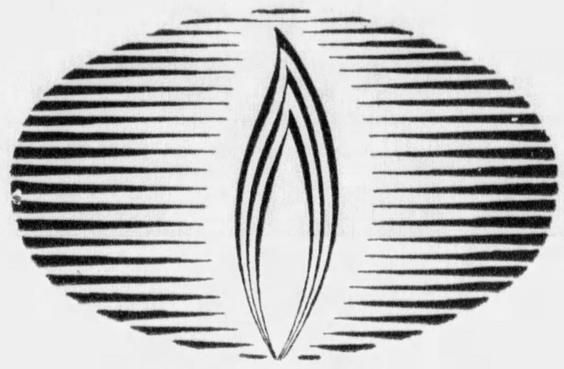
PLUTO WATER
America's Laxative Mineral Water

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS HOTEL
French Lick, Indiana . . America's greatest health resort, and the home of Pluto Water . . is noted for its lavish comfort, its perfect cuisine. Two excellent golf courses . . splendid riding facilities . . . as well as other outdoor amusements are provided.



I AM NATURAL GAS

I am Natural Gas—Nature's perfect fuel. ¶ Like the slave of Aladdin's lamp, I am always ready, always at your call. The movement of a finger puts me to work. ¶ I am the friend of cleanliness, the foe of dirt and dust and smoke. I help to protect your health. I save your time and energy. I help to make your home more comfortable, your work easier, and your leisure more enjoyable. ¶ I can heat your home, cook your meals, cool your food, heat your bath, burn your refuse and dry your laundry. ¶ Pound for pound, I have more heat value than any other fuel. Yet I am your most economical servant. I can cook a meal for a family of five at a cost of no more than a penny. For two pennies a day I will refrigerate your food. And I can heat your home, under the rates now in effect, at a cost so low it will surprise you. ¶ Of all great cities, Pittsburgh—and the Pittsburgh district—has known me longest. Here I am most used, most useful, and my cost is only one half, one third or one fourth what it is in many other cities.

¶ Use me wherever heat is required, for I am the modern fuel—and I never fail you. I am Natural Gas!

'Life of Crime' Dramatized

The life story of a British lad, who, through benefiting from all that riches and a good home could offer, becomes a confirmed crook and is involved in first minor, then major evil conspiracies, is dramatized over 10 radio stations in the tri-state area today and tomorrow.

Adapted from a feature story in next Sunday's American Weekly, big magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "My Life of Crime," is heard on the following stations:

Today—WFBG, Altoona, 3 p. m., and WKBN, Youngstown, 8:15 p. m.

Friday—WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2 p. m.; WALR, Zanesville, 5 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15 p. m.; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15 p. m.; WAIU, Columbus, 7:15 p. m.; WADC, Akron, 7:45 p. m. and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

Voice From The Past Speaks

By AIRCASTER

It's the little things in radio, sometimes, that give us simple-minded listeners the biggest thrills.

Tuesday night, listening to Spencer Dean's "Sleepy Hollow" Crime Clue, on KDKA, I sat up in my deep-cushioned chair with a start, and cocked an attentive ear to a fog-horn sound effect in the program's background.

"What's wrong?" a fellow-listener inquired.

"Hear that fog-horn?" I asked. "That's Cape Elizabeth, down on the coast of Maine, outside Portland harbor!"

My companion looked a bit skeptical.

"That sort of grunt at the end of each blast! There's no other fog-horn like that!" I insisted.

"But it's supposed to be a Hudson River horn," my friend pointed out.

"I know," I said, "but it must be a mechanical recording of Cape Elizabeth. Time the blasts and see! It'll blow a three-second blast every 12 seconds, I'll bet something pretty!"

And it did, as regularly as clockwork.

NBC verified it by wire this morning.

I ought to have known that fog-horn's voice. It had sung me to sleep, foggy and snowy nights, for years, when I lived beside the lighthouse on the Cape.

Speaking of sound effects, there ought to be a Code for over-worked Chinese gongs.

The four Mills Brothers become NBC artists next Monday, broadcasting from Canada, and later taking over several sustaining spots a week.

NBC will turn back history's pages November 18, by featuring on a single program all available pioneers in broadcasting, including Norman Brokenshire, Ted Husing, Vaughn De Leath, Tommy Cowan, Graham McNamee, Jones and Hare, Creighton Allen, Harry Reser, Harry Horlick, Vincent Lopez, Wendell Hall, Goldy and Dusty, Joe White, the Silver Masked Tenor, Whispering Jack Smith and Breen and DeRose.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Let's get better acquainted with our newest globe trotter, William N. McNair, the successful candidate for mayor.

Inviting him over to the broadcast I found him in his little new office in the Bakewell Building working at the profession of being a lawyer, not excited at all over his tremendous victory at the polls.

His law work must be a labor of love. He doesn't relish the idea of relinquishing private practice for his new executive position. In fact, with his plain-spoken bluntness, he said:

"My building and loan informed me that they expect me to continue examining titles, mayor or no mayor, and I'm 'gonna.' After all, in case I don't last long in that office, I'll always have this to come back to. When I first started to be a lawyer my father made me learn paper hanging, so that if I got disbarred, or anything, I'd have something to fall back on."

And then as an afterthought, he added:

"The mayor's job won't take up any time. After all there is no money to spend over there."

He says things like that, not so much, I take it, that he means them, but for the pleasure he gets out of seeing your startled expression. And if you don't catch the subtle twinkle in his otherwise serious demeanor some of his remarks might leave you a little breathless.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

—With— Patricia Pitt

This year the Cinderella Ball committee members had so many decisions they didn't know what to do. But now they've arranged everything under the direction of young Mrs. James McKay.

Of course, you know the feature of the Cinderella—the date's Thanksgiving Eve this year, and the place the University Club, as usual—is the debutante dance.

But with 50 some deb's! Here's how it was planned groups of the girls will appear in different feature dances, and the studious deb's, they do it by class pictures and what not, will sell cigarettes and ushe

One of the dances will be the Big, Bad Wolf, in which debs Virginia Evans, Andiana Beeson, Barbara Verner, Sally Jane Fields, Elenor Jane McKennan and Betsy Taggett will appear.

Then there'll be a checkerboard dance, to be given by Constance Drake, Frederika Holbein, Margaretta Oliver, Caidi Marshall, Margaret Rowe, Mary Edwards, Margaret Taylor, Shirley Tunnell, Alice Ladley and Katherine MacConnell.

In a waltz will appear Mary Gordon, Margery Hillman, Anne Brown, Gretchen Lange, Alice Brown, Louise Colbert, Peggy Mitchell, Antoinette Vilsack, Peggy Robinson and Annette Chester.

In the March of the Mannekins will be Florence Willock, Anne Hamilton, Dorothy Clark, Mary Sutton, Evelyn Eisaman, Peggy Griffiths, Frances Plumsted, Patricia Witherow, Eloise Dorrance and Marnie Hodge.

Mannekin March

And they're rehearsing now the ball's only about three weeks off—with Mrs. James McKay at the University C——

Here's a budget of deb news—the William Larimer Mellons will give a small dinner-dance in their home December 9 for their debutante niece, Margaret Taylor, the junior William G. Costins will entertain at a small dance in the Pittsburgh Club January 2 for Mary Gordon; and Mrs. C. Waterman, of Detroit, will give a tea December 6 in the Reed home, Fifth avenue, to present her debutante niece, Mathilde Reed, daughter of the William McK. Reeds.

Both the deb's mother and her aunt made their debuts in the same home at 4900 Fifth avenue.

The daughter and the son of two old families in little Washington are betrothed. Mrs. Harry Scott Grayson, of Monongahela road, Washington, Pa., is announcing today the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth Grayson, to Alexander Murdoch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Murdoch, of Morgan avenue, Washington, Pa.

Engaged To Wed

The National Park Seminary Alumnae's benefit November 17 at the Pittsburgh Field Club is going to be a choose-your-favorite-entertainment party.

There'll be a boxing match, a dance and bridge. And at a breakfast the guests can meet to eat and talk over what they've been doing during the evening.

There are going to be aides galore—Eleanor and Willa Smith, Rebecca McCready, Dorothy Meyer, Betty and Helen Davison, Genevieve Wright, Helen Mossman, Betty Daugherty, Virginia Bialas and Florence Gilliland.

Aides Galore

Patronesses include Mrs. R. R. Braun, Mrs. H. K. Holmes, Mrs. William M. Duff, Miss Ruth Gregory, Mrs. William N. Zortman, Mrs. Harry Davison, Miss Esther Anawalt, Miss Jane Hineman, J. G. Klinginsmith, Mrs. C. A. Rehtmeyer, Mrs. R. C. McAteer, Mrs. D. Hicks, Mrs. Fred Mercer, Mrs. C. J. Nieman and Mrs. F. Craig Dickson.

Mrs. Charles C. Ramsey of La Jolla, Cal., formerly of Sewickley has announced the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth Ramsey, to Hans Alexander Kingsbrunn, of Washington. The wedding's to take place early in the summer, it's planned. Elizabeth's fiance is with the RFC in Washington, and they expect to live there after their marriage.

Engaged To Marry

Distinguished guests will arrive for the holidays. They are the Marchese and Marchesa Alfred Dusmet de Smours, of Rome, Italy, who've sailed on the Rex, and are expected here the end of the week. They'll visit the Marchesa's mother, Mrs. James B. Oliver, of Shields.

Miss Burdis Has Church Nuptials

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning in St. Joseph's Church, Carnegie, Miss Jeanne Burdis became the bride of Joseph A. Portman Jr. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Burdis, of Carnegie and she married the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Portman.

Officiating was the Rev. William Vogt. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white tansparent velvet with a velvet turban and carried white roses. Her sister, Miss Margaret Celeste Burdis, was maid of honor and wore amethyst velvet and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Joseph McCraley was the best man.

The wedding breakfast was served in the Burdis home. The bride is a graduate of Pittsburgh Academy and the bridegroom of St. Francis Preparatory School and attended Duquesne University.

Horse Show Opens in Gotham

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Amid top hats by the long ton and ermine wraps by the carload, the Golden Jubilee National Horse Show opened last night in Madison Square Garden.

Diamonds gleamed as they did at the first horse show in the old Garden on Madison Square; as they did more recently when Consuelo Vanderbilt became Duchess of Marlboro, and hats were as big as cartwheels.

Across the arcade into the ringside boxes came the John Hay Whitneys and the George B. St. Georges, the William du Ponts and E. Victor Loew. The David Wagstaffs arrived. Mrs. Wagstaff in trailing blue velvet.

It was the formal opening of a social season variously called "the Mae West era" and "the revival of elegance." Evening gowns molded on siren lines appeared—little trains that trailed—big-topped sleeves and much velvet.

Dinner parties entered, replete with smiling escorts, silk hats, canes, gold-braided officers, orchids and perfume. Joseph V. McKee, defeated candidate for mayor, was there.

Blondes were seen all in white—in trailing white gowns and ermine coats. There was, too, that great new shade, mulberry.

Conspicuous among the white gloves and gardenias was a dusty blue "tree-bark" suit, floor-length, with a great gray fur collar and muff.

Mink coats came to the horse show by the hundreds, and long black velvet wraps, many with ermine collars. Jeweled tiaras were seen in the hair of young girls.

Several gowns had a waist to floor flounce of fringe. A mauve-tipped blue boa was worn high about the neck of a crinkled velvet. Another dramtic costume was chartreuse, cut high in front, worn with a queenly brown velvet cape bordered in fur.

Brilliant red sandals showed under a black and white checked velvet. Bright blue gauntlet gloves were worn with a metallic dress and a long-trained velvet coat.

It was a golden jubilee for metallic fabrics.

And then, of course, there were the horses

Greenbrier Polo Field Will Be Enlarged

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Extensive plans are now being made to meet the increasing popularity of polo here. The Greenbrier polo field will be improved this winter by the installation of a watering system, and added turf of the native blue grass. A practice field will be constructed for off-schedule games, and a club house to be known as the Greenbrier Polo and Skeet Shooting Club located near the polo field and shooting range is under consideration.

The old White golf course, remodeled last year, will remain open for play through the winter, and work has been started on the reconstruction of the Greenbrier course, which will extend it by a number of yards, add to it several bunkers, and supply greens for next year covered with the preferred Seaside creeping bent grass.

Golfers this week have included H. E. Sheldon, president of the Allegheny Steel Corporation, and W. F. Detwiler, and F. H. Stephens, general manager and treasurer, of Pittsburgh, also J. M. Lockhart, J. P. McKelvy, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mason and A. Iversen, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baker, of Sewickley, Pa.

Mrs. James B. Eisaman and Miss Catherine Eisaman have returned to Pittsburgh and Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Fetterhoff to Meadowbrook, Pa.

Burgwins to Be Hunt Club Breakfast Hosts

The J. O. Burgwins, of Sewickley Heights, joint masters of the Sewickley Hunt, will be hosts at the annual breakfast and dance which the Sewickley Hunt Club will give Saturday for district farmers over whose land the Hunt rides.

The breakfast will follow the Armistice Day hunt, at which both the men and women will wear formal silk hats, and the men their pink hunt coats, which are called pink, but are really red.

Julia Barany Married in Church

Miss Julia Barany, daughter of Mrs. Clara Barany, of Burns street, and Robert Shaner, son of Mrs. Grant Shaner, of Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, were married this morning in St. James Church, Wilkinsburg, by the Rev. Stephen Walsh.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Shaner will be at home in Peebles street, Wilkinsburg.

Vernadean Webb Is Married to H. V. Groves

Yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church parsonage, Carnegie, Miss Vernadean Webb married Hugh V. Groves. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Webb, of Lydia street, Carnegie and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Groves, of Glenmore avenue, Dormont.

The bride wore blue chiffon velvet with a matching hat and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Betty Webb, her sister's maid of honor, wore rust velvet with a hat to match and carried fall flowers. Dr. F. Nelson Groves served as his brother's best man.

There was a luncheon in the Webb home after the ceremony for the families. Mr. and Mrs. Groves will motor to Miami, Fla., on their honeymoon and after December 1 will be at home in Piedmont avenue, Dormont.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha.

What would life be without at least one new . . . and here goes a shop offering us TWO of them with . . . plain overs . . . pumps we buy there! Seems that there is some kind of hurrah going on at this spot, and this is one way of celebrating . . . $2.45 for the shoes and the bows free.

Also, ive ear to this! That evening bag are back now for the same price, too . . . $2.45 . . . absolutely breathtaking values we know, for there's nowhere else in town that you can get such shoes at this price. They are tintable cut-out sandals of satin faille, or crepe . . . with silver or plain gold piping . . . and T-strap effects. Plain silver kid oxfords or sandals for this price as well! And if this doesn't rate exclamations from you, then you aren't the girls we thought you were! In other words . . . get your mind down on the ground and go a-shoeing!

Fashions . . . Football . . . and Flowers—the three F's which are the A-B-C of every woman's life today. And since we have talked about fashions pretty much of late . . . and since we wouldn't be knowing all the fine points of a lateral pass . . . we're going on about some flowers which are scoring a touchdown with feminine fancies these days!

Pompom corsages, these . . . gay little knots of fresh posies tied up with a flourish (and ribbon) and costing but 15c if you know where to go for them! An idea for the bridge club . . . for luncheon favors . . . or just for yourself because you like them and they're inexpensive!

Step right up and cut yourselves a piece of pie, ladies . . . but do it with the new pie server which we found for you! Such an improvement over the old cut-as-you-can type (which often ended up with your pie broken or in your lap.) This bright and shining pie server has a stainless blade (or should we say "shovel") . . . a wooden handle . . . and a little gadget which slides the pie off to the plates with an airy gesture. For $1.25.

Here's where baby gets what's coming to him . . . little mischief that he is! A 3-piece baby set that will keep him warm and cozy regardless of his wriggles. It's all-wool (no, NOT a "yard wide") . . . with silk and wool bandings in pink or blue on the white of the garment . . . and consists of bootees, sweater, and snug little cap. At a good news price, too . . . 69c!

* * *

Psychologically speaking, breakfast either makes or breaks the average day . . . so, if you are fortunate enough to be one of these creatures who can eat peacefully instead of on the leap for the train, you'll find these Chinese crepe breakfast clothes will do a lot for the appearance of your table, if not for you! In colors, of course (being Chinese), size 60 x 60 . . . and tuned to the low pitch of 59c!

Club to Learn How to Tell Mushrooms

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In his talk on "Mushrooms" before the Rockledge Garden Club on Monday, H. S. Wieand will tell how to distinguish the mushroom from the harmful members of the same family. Mrs. S. M. Young will be hostess for the meeting at her home in Richland lane, with Mrs. Frank G. Love, Mrs. E. G. Horigan and Mrs. H. S. Rogers assisting her.

Another interesting feature of the afternoon will be an exhibit of a miniature picnic grounds before and after a visit from city picknickers, which was displayed at the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention last month. Mrs. J. E. Roth, a Rockledge member, won a prize for her winter bouquet exhibited at the federation display.

The December meeting of the garden club being omitted, the next session will be on January 8 at Mrs. A. C. Pollock's home, also in Richland lane.

Ambridge Juniors Sponsor Movie For Charity

The Ambridge Junior Women's Club will sponsor the motion pictures at the Penn Theater, Ambridge, from November 20 to 24, inclusive, the proceeds to be used for local welfare work.

The pictures are: November 17-21, Maurice Chevalier in "The Way to Love;" November 22-23, Richard Arlen and Chester Morris in "Golden Harvest," and November 24, Janet Gaynor in "Paddy, the Next Best Thing." An added attraction includes Walt Disney's "Three Little Pigs," from November 17 to 23.

Two Parent-Education Classes for Langley

Langley Parent-Teacher Association's program for this month includes two parent-education classes, the first on Monday when "Piloting the Modern Youth" will be discussed, and the second on the twentieth. Dr. Martin P. Chworowsky, of the Falk School, will address the latter, speaking on "The Parent-Teacher Partnership Job."

A round table discussion follows the talks.

Book to Be Reviewed For Wilkinsburg B. P. W.

Miss Anna Fulton, chairman of the educational committee of the Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women's Club, will present at the meeting Tuesday evening, a review of Harold Rugg's "The Great Technology." The book is divided into six phases, which will be discussed by Miss Anna Downton, Miss Anna Myers, Miss Helen Kregar, Mrs. Beulah Russel and Mrs. V. V. Snyder.

ROUND-TOED SHOES TO FLATTER THE DAINTY STREAMLI NED FOOT

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVERY woman whose foot is on the long side knows that a short-vamp shoe would look perfectly lovely on it—but try to get one that fits! One cannot crowd a long vamp foot into a short vamp shoe any more than one can wear a left shoe on a right foot. But what the determined shopper can do is to sleuth out shoes built to fit the long foot, but with their streamlines slightly subdued by rounded toes. They work like a charm; they are as comfortable as gloves; they can be very ornate or purely utilitarian in their style. And—they take off illusionary inches from number 8's and longer sizes!

One of the seasonal successes in shoes for the long foot is the plethora of eel gray models. There is a color which has none of the hazy, magnifying indefiniteness of a pale gray shoe which tends to make any foot look larger, and on top of that it is also a shade which can be worn with many other gray tones, and with brown or black clothes.

The costume sketched at right shows an eel gray velvet skirt topped with a silvery gray satin tunic, and footed with eel gray seven-eyelet oxfords, size eight-and-one-half. From top to toe, literally, it is a softly gleaming example of the very wearable long sleeved costume for dining out.

A dressy version of the gaiter shoe, made of soft black suede is shown left above. It is an oxford with two side buttons. Second, a T-strap afternoon sandal of suede with cut outs underlayed with matching patent is sketched. Third, a seven-eyelet oxford made of suede which fits like a glove. Upper right, a stubby suede two-eyelet oxford with pipings and underlays of patent. Note that on all heels slimness, not height, gives grace.

Pastors to Speak At World Order Conference

Four ministers will appear on tomorrow's program for the conference on a planned society and a planned world order which 30 organizations are sponsoring at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

The Rev. Edward Bleakney will preside. Bishop Francis J. McConnell, of the New York area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will discuss "The Attitude of Religion to the Present Industrial and Social Situation," and in the afternoon he will preside at a round table discussion.

Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer is to have "What Should be the Attitude of Religion to NRA?" as his subject, and the Rev. Theodore Miner, of Saltsburg, will talk on what the church shall do in case of conflict between capital and labor over the collective bargaining phase of the NRA.

R. Templeton Smith with "Business Looks at the Contemporary Scene" as his subject, and Attorney Joseph A. Beck, talking on "Reconstructing the Social Order—An Interpretation of the Papal Encyclical," are other speakers.

New England Colony Reception on Monday

Other officers and directors will receive with Mrs. J. Barry Diven, president of the Pittsburgh Colony of New England Women, at the reception in the College Club Monday afternoon. The program will be given by Eva Wright Heinze, who will be accompanied by Mrs. Florence Ludebuhl, and by Chester Marvin Wallace, who will read a play.

Lincoln Avenue Church To Give Minstrel Show

The young people of the Lincoln Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church are offering as their first production of the year, a minstrel show, which will be given tomorrow evening under the direction of Frank Niggl.

The cast includes William Dawson, William Norris, Clarence Swartzwelder, Jr., Kenneth Boohrer, Sr., Paul Ketz, Dick Wagner and John McCrea Neel.

University Women Form Socio-Economic Group

A study group to investigate socio-economic problems has been organized by the American Association of University Women under the chairmanship of Miss Minnie M. Duffield. Mrs. E. A. Staniland is arranging for a conducted tour of the International Art Exhibit on Wednesday.

Miss Dorothy M. Cameron is heading a study group in the drama and Miss Dorothy Kanrich is interviewing interested members for a dance group. Mrs. C. E. Manwiller has charge of the child development and parent education discussion group. All of which indicates increased activity among A. A. U. W. members.

Preceding the branch's meeting Saturday at which Dr. Kathryn McHale, national director, will speak, she will be the guest at a board luncheon. The 1:30 international relations group will hold its meeting with the morning conference at the sessions of the council for peace and social action in the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

"I don't need to rub clothes thin in order to get them white!"

exclaims this efficient mother

"I'm a dyed-in-the-wool Chipso fan," laughed Mrs. Philip Luthy of Bloomfield, N. J. "All my neighbors know it! Many's the compliment I've had from them on my lovely white washes! That's not boasting, either. I always tell them CHIPSO does my washing for me! It saves boiling and rubbing. And it's safe for everything—from Walter's sweaters to Claire's pretty silk dresses.

"I use Chipso altogether," Mrs. Luthy continued. "I like it for dishes. It makes them sparkle. And a handful of Chipso in my scrubbing pail makes washing down the woodwork ever so much easier. There's another reason, too, why I always recommend Chipso to my friends. It's this. Chipso keeps my hands so smooth and soft."

Chipso suds soak a big wash snowy-clean in a jiffy. No need for the rubbing that's so hard on good clothes—and on you, too. And Chipso goes after the dirt without fading colors! You can trust your nicest things to Chipso suds. They'll come up bright and smiling time after time.

Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their color. Chipso loosens dirt harmlessly by RICHER SUDS. That is why Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

Don't endanger the clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Get Chipso from your grocer. At its low price, Chipso is the biggest value in rich, safe soap on the market today!

Quarrelsome Atmosphere Hurts Youngsters

That, of course, doesn't apply to merely selfish, excitable fathers and mothers, who need to get on their job, and who could make a success of it if they would. Such parents should be held on that job by every possible form of force and persuasion. Proper training before marriage, proper public responsibility after marriage, will hold them there.

But there are other parents—downright brutal fathers and mothers who are morally unfit to be with children; whose stupidity or viciousness is a family menace. Is it better to keep children under the influence of such parents than it is to "break a home?"

Dear Miss Robinson:

I want to tell you the story of one home where there was no divorce—and what happened to the children.

My mother was the prettiest, sweetest little woman, but she forgot how to smile. Why? Because my father's domineering crushed her spirit. After years of living with him, my only recollection of him is of a big, handsome, domineering man to be admired—and feared.

He was very affable and expansive with outsiders, but with mother and us children—well, we were subservient to his every wish and command. And such trivial things would bring his wrath upon us!

Now I'll tell you just what this did to us. In my childish mind I likened his face, darkly flushed with anger, to the black clouds of a thunderstorm, only I feared the storm far less. He paralyzed me.

STILL SUFFERING

I am the youngest of eight children. I can only speak definitely for myself and two next older sisters; but for us I can truthfully say that our home life was so detrimental that we are still suffering from it. One sister, like father, is fiery, rebellious and belligerent. The other grew up into a shell, just as I have. We hated and feared men and boys alike, and developed such a bias that we were almost excluded from any social contact, even when we were grown.

Our whole outlook was warped and twisted, and we've had to spend a large portion of our energy trying to unlearn what our early training put on us through our discordant parents.

It is true that I never heard my mother retaliate in any way. There was no open quarrel. But, oh! The bitter, useless tears I have seen her shed. And today my feelings toward my father, even in memory, are bitter and antagonistic. It would have been far better, I am sure, if we could have all been far removed from his influence.

I am not young. When I was a child divorce was almost unheard of. But as I sit here, writing, I am wondering—if we were living my childhood years over again—if my mother wouldn't leave him.

I think it's unjust and unfair to raise children in an atmosphere like that. Divorces are not so good, it is true, but I think raising children in a "living hell" is far worse.

MOTHER CAN SUCCEED

I know children of divorced parents who have grown up with father and mother alone, and who are happy and good citizens, free from the terribly warped and twisted outlook that our early life gave us.

It isn't easy for a mother alone to raise children right, perhaps; but if she has common sense and uses it, I don't see why she can't succeed. I never would allow a child of mine to grow up in the kind of environment I had. And I don't think it would turn out either "disillusioned" or a criminal, either.

META.

Nor do I think so, Meta. Youngsters can be brought up finely and sensibly by mother alone—if mother herself will work at it. There is no more reason for such a child to get a wrong slant on life, than there is for one in a regular home—if mother herself has the right slant.

But remember also—it isn't only the former who is sometimes an unfit parent. Many and many a time it's the mother who wrecks the home by her unreasonableness, her spinelessness, laziness, meanness or extravagance.

It isn't always easy for children to realize that. Indeed, it is almost impossible, for mother can always put Dad in the doghouse. Yet it is true.

And many a child would be the better for it if the father had its training.

But—whether it's the father's fault or the mother's—many a home is a hell for the children in it. So then, what?

You tell.

Girls' Honest Claims Often Shouted Down, Asserts Fay King

HOW CAN I PROVE IT? — BUT IT IS TRUE!
NO WOMAN CAN "OUTSMART" A SMART MAN UNLESS HE IS WILLING THAT SHE SHOULD AT THE MOMENT!
ARE YOU TRYING TO BLACKMAIL ME?
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When any woman raises her voice in private or in public to demand some justice from a man who has deceived and defrauded her, she must expect to be shouted down as a "blackmailer."

She has little chance at retaliation.

The more important a man may be, the louder will be the cries that he is being "framed."

Friends, associates and the powers that be usually stand by him. For in protecting him they protect themselves.

Many a girl has had righteous reason to expect fair consideration and proper compensation from some man. Most times she received nothing, however, but degradation.

When his ardent interest in her cools, how successfully he can deny the promises and pursuit that won her in spite of her better judgment!

Women Open Verbal Battle With Veritzen

So Philip Veritzen had seen behind the cheerful mask which Mary and Noel had drawn over their real feelings when he outlined his munificent and elaborate plans for their honeymoon.

"I will go directly to Mary," I promised quickly, "but I am sure Mr. Veritzen must be mistaken. I think they're very much thrilled at the prospect of the new car, and Mary's fur motor coat, and the big check, and the extra time—and—everything."

"Everything except the plans he has made for their time," she said. "Don't try to draw any wool over my eyes, Margaret. I'm too old and experienced a woman. You see to it that Mary comes to her senses and pretends to like those plans, even if she loathes them."

I wondered what my mother-in-law would say if she knew that Mary and Noel were ready to flout Philip Veritzen's plans.

"I'll get hold of Mary before the coffee is served," I hold her.

"See that you do," she called after me. "Come up the first thing in the morning, and tell me how it turns out. I'm too tired to hear anything more tonight. H-m-m. This hot milk is good!"

A FANCIED SLIGHT

"Promise me, darling, that, no matter what happens, neither you nor Noel will say anything to his father about your objections to his honeymoon plans for you."

"Oh! You know we'll promise you anything, Noel and I," she said warmly, and I went on into the kitchen, where Lillian was putting the finishing touches to the coffee trays.

"I'd rather the old boy hadn't suspected anything," she said. "He's had time to begin to feel injured because of the fancied slight to his plans. Let's get some of this coffee down him as soon as possible, and I'll tip the wink to Harry to get the Dicky bird away from the battlefield as soon as possible. Your father will disappear as soon as he's had his coffee, and you can be very sure Noel and Mary won't be in evidence, so we can tackle Phil with no innocent bystanders in the offing."

Her plans functioned smoothly. While she dominated the conversation without appearing to do so, as she alone knows how to do, it came about that she, Philip Veritzen and I were left alone before the fire in the big living room.

"Do either of you realize what time it is?" he asked.

"I, for one, don't care," Lillian retorted. "I have something to say to you."

ASKS FAVOR

He caught her nonsensical cue and tossed it back.

"To me?"

"Yes, to you. I have something to say, and it concerns a great favor I want you to do Madge and me."

His eyes were suddenly wary, but his smile was quick and genial.

"My dear Lillian!" he said. "You know that anything within reason is yours, 'to the half of my kingdom'."

"That's just it," she said, laughing. "I'm afraid you'll think there's no rhyme nor yet reason in what we're going to ask you; but it's something we want very much, nevertheless."

He looked from her face to mine.

"For yourselves?" he asked.

I felt the answer drawn from me by his suddenly probing eyes.

"No," I admitted, "but—"

He made a sudden, impatient gesture.

"I thought so," he said. "Those ungrateful children—"

"Hold it!" Lillian admonished, jumping to her feet and putting her hands upon his shoulders. "Nobody has said anything to anybody. This is just something we've doped out by ourselves, and if ever you were young in your life, and if you ever loved either or both of us, as you so often have protested, you'll listen to us now."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

New Method of Treating Tuberculosis Is Beneficial

"Is collapse of the lung in the treatment of tuberculosis successful? Is it painful? Do any ill effects follow? I have been advised to have this treatment but am worried about it."

Dr. Copeland

This quotation is taken from a letter written me by a sufferer from tuberculosis. I have received many similar inquiries. Perhaps it will be useful to explain this method of treatment.

Some letters refer to the treatment as "gassing of the lung." In reality, it is a collapse of the lung by injection of gas into the chest cavity. The procedure is usually spoken of as "pneumothorax treatment."

Recently I visited a tuberculosis sanitarium in the country where my farm is located. I saw there several patients who have been greatly aided towards recovery by this method.

I assure you that this form of treatment is extremely beneficial in suitable cases. It is now extensively used in the large tuberculosis sanitariums throughout the county. But bear in mind that it is only of value in a certain type of cases. It is used for the patient who has a cavity of the lung.

In these cases great benefit is derived when the lung is collapsed. The collapse of the lung permits nature to heal up the cavity. Then there is no place for the germs to multiply. In consequence the disease does not become more extensive. The procedure has been a blessing to many sufferers from this dreadful affliction.

The involved lung is collapsed by puncturing it with a long needle and allowing the air within the lung to escape. Then the lung is kept collapsed by passing air into the chest cavity outside of the lung. In this way the chest is refilled.

The first procedure must be done in a hospital, but the "refills may be given in the doctor's office. The treatment has become so much simplified that the patient continues with his daily work. The results have justified the opening of clinics equipped with the necessary instruments. These are now being established in all large cities. This will enable afflicted individuals all over the country who are suited to the treatment to receive the proper care.

It is not to be expected, of course, that complete cure can be assured in every case. The success of the treatment depends upon the location of the cavity and the general health of the patient. Often, too, the sufferer does not appear to benefit at first, but as the treatment is continued marked improvement is noticed.

In certain cases, collapse of the lung by air is difficult or impossible. In such cases it is often advisable to subject the sufferer to an operation called "thoracoplasty." In this operation the ribs are first removed and the lung then collapsed. Remarkably beneficial results are obtained from this unusual method of treatment.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. A. K. Q—What causes a soreness in the chest and occasionally the pain shoots through the left arm?

A.—Have a careful examination to determine the cause.

Mrs. W. B. H. Q.—What do you advise for an acid condition?

A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

M. M. Q.—What causes a beet red face?

A.—This may be due to poor circulation or possibly high blood pressure. Have your blood pressure tested.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to be married and I would appreciate knowing whether it is good form to place resident cards of the bridal pair at the supper table. Y.

I never heard of this being done, and I don't believe, on second consideration, that you would think it very appropriate . . . Instead of this way of announcing the news of the new address, I suggest that the double visiting-cards be sent at any time after the ceremony, if "At Home" cards are not sent with either the invitations or the announcements. I mean the Mr. and Mrs. cards, the cards larger than the individual visiting cards. The engraved names are in the center . . . Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wells Brown . . . and the address in the lower right corner.

A Gift for the Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a bridge party in honor of a friend who is going to be married in about two months. Is it necessary to present the girl with a gift at the party? I want to give it to her a few days before the wedding. There has been an argument about this. Some girls told me that I have to present this girl with a gift at the party that I am giving for her. I believe that it is not necessary.

R.

I agree with you . . . it is not at all necessary for you to give this girl a present at the time of the party. If you prefer to wait, and to give your wedding gift at the appropriate time, this is correct.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Even the Experts Err

Card reading is supposed to be one of the attributes of the expert. Average players perhaps are inclined to give the expert too much credit for his ability to read distribution and possible honor strength, but it is undoubtedly true that a person cannot be a good Bridge player unless he knows something about this phase of the game.

Mr. Raymond Balfe, one of the expert Bridge players of New York, ordinarily is a very fine card reader, but after reaching a vulnerable contract of seven notrump on the hand below, he failed to display his unquestioned skill.

North, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

♠ Q 10 6 3
♡ A K 9 4 3 2
◇ A 3
♣ Q

Mr. H. Schenken

♠ J 7 4 2 ♡ 10 8 7 6 ◇ — ♣ 10 7 6 4 2

♠ 9 5 ♡ — ◇ Q J 10 8 7 6 5 2 ♣ J 9

♠ A K 8 ♡ Q 5 ◇ K 9 4 ♣ A K 8 5 3

Mr. R. Balfe

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
5 ◇	Double	7 N T	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's bid of five diamonds was not conventional. However, North and South were not using the Four-Five Notrump Convention, so this bid was designed as a rather poor substitute for other methods of reaching a Slam. When Mr. Balfe saw his own strong cards and knew that his partner had a rebiddable heart suit he decided not to temporize further, which explains his bid of seven notrump.

Mr. Howard Schenken, who held the West hand, made the rather unusual lead of the heart 8. Mr. Balfe won with the Queen, then played the hearts to break even, and was defeated 1 trick.

Actually, he could have made the Grand Slam without guessing had his play been more careful. The first thing he should have done was to learn something about the distribution of his opponents' hands. He thus should have played the Ace of diamonds from Dummy. If he had he would immediately have learned that East had eight diamonds. With knowledge of freakish distribution, South could have further explored the hand distribution by leading three rounds of clubs and three rounds of spades, winning the last of course, in his own hand. When East on the third round of each of these suits failed to follow suit, the finesse in the heart suit would have become plainly marked and the Grand Slam would have been made.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Both sides are vulnerable and my partner and I have a part-score of 60. I open the bidding with one spade and, with no adverse bidding, my partner responds with three diamonds. I hold:

♠ A Q 10 8 ♡ K 10 3 ◇ J 5 3 ♣ K 10 6

What should I bid?

Answer: Three notrump. Although your hand is close to an absolute minimum you must respond once to your partner's Forcing Takeout, even though, due to the part-score, you have already reached game. Your partner may have a Slam in his own hand and merely wish a choice of suits.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

A good afternoon frock is most useful in any wardrobe, especially if it is colorful and not too elaborate. Such a frock is a model in rust pebble crepe. The skirt has ruffled tiers lined with rose-taffeta and the cap sleeves have the same lining. A rose-colored velvet flower is posed at the neckline.

It is a rare treat to find a sports coat that can be used as well for a luncheon in town as a walk in the country. Such a coat is a model in black and white checked tweed of a fine weave. It is done on fitted lines but has easy shoulders and a large collar of deep creamy snow leopard, an exquisite pelt.

Household Hints

Old muslin curtains may be washed and cut into squares to be used to hold lettuce, celery, etc., in the refrigerator. They also make lovely soft dusters.

Don't think parsley cannot be had in off seasons. Save some while you can obtain it, cut in small pieces and dry and it will keep for these times.

Clothes which have become yellowed can be whitened by sprinkling with water and spreading on the grass in the sun. Articles slightly discolored can be soaked in cold water and then boiled until white.

Mutton fat can be rendered tasteless by adding one part of pure lard to two parts of mutton fat, passing this through a food chopper and melting it in a steamer with a quarter of its bulk in skimmed milk and a pinch of sweet herbs. Strain through a piece of fine muslin.

Screw tops on bottling jars are often difficult to remove, but a much firmer grip can be obtained by having a damp cloth in the hand when trying to unscrew. If this is not successful, a little salad oil poured round the stopper, which should be slightly warmed, will help to ease it. When the metal screw part is removed, carefully coax a thin knife between the rubber band and the glass top until air is let in.

FREEDOM
"Regular" pain brings little sympathy, nowadays. Midol ends such suffering, as many women know. Any woman can now be herself at this time, without a single twinge of pain. Midol's direct action brings quick relief, and You need not have one moment's discomfort. Midol is certain relief, and complete relief. And it's perfectly safe, it contains no narcotics. So it is folly to suffer any longer. But do not be deceived by any general remedies being offered as a specific for this pain. Your druggist has Midol tablets.

WHY HOSPITALS USE A LIQUID LAXATIVE

The dose can be measured to the drop, and the action controlled. Pills and tablets containing drugs of violent action are hard on the bowels, and frequently habit-forming.

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know why?

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it.

Can Constipation be Overcome?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, used in this way, has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic taken so frequently that you must carry it wherever you go!

How to Choose a Laxative

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know anything about a preparation, ask some physician about it. The temporary relief you get from a synthetic, habit-forming cathartic is apt to irritate the kidneys.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation with nothing to conceal. Its ingredients are stated on the label. By using it, you may avoid all danger of bowel strain. You may keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You may make constipated spells as rare as colds.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, as you use more and more of these habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief. It's perfectly harmless, perfectly safe.

NRA

A FRANK STATEMENT

by the Makers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

We believe the unwise choice of laxatives is the most common cause of chronic constipation.

We believe the use of crude salts, and powerful drugs in the form of pills or tablets is rapidly giving way to gentle regulation of the bowels with a liquid laxative.

NRA WE DO OUR PART

DON'T be fooled into believing that your teeth are naturally dull, off-color, or susceptible to decay simply because brushing fails to make them white or keep them sound. Remember this: Any preparation that polishes teeth and fails to kill germs—millions of germs that cause so many tooth and gum troubles — ONLY HALF-CLEANS TEETH.

One dental cream in the world that kills troublesome germs as it cleans the teeth is Kolynos. Try it—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Soon your teeth will look cleaner than ever before.

This unique, scientific dental cream contains two priceless ingredients that give the teeth a DOUBLE-CLEANSING. As one foams into every crevice, over every tooth surface and washes away food accumulation, stain and tarnish—the other kills millions of germs.

Thus, in a remarkably short time, teeth are cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel—without injury. They look more attractive than you ever believed possible.

TREE OF LIFE PATTERN 580

An Old Quilt in Simple Pattern

This beautiful design, one of the very oldest in the art of quilt-making, comes from Vermont. It is one of the numerous Tree of Life patterns which were originally inspired by the Tree of Life motifs so recurrent in Oriental rugs. At the present time, quilts of this design are very rare, and to make one would be to create a priceless heirloom. Since this quilt is simple to make, there is as much enjoyment in making it as there is in being the proud possessor of so lovely a piece of handicraft.

Pattern 580 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Rare Rabbit Ill Appears in State

RIDGWAY, Pa., Nov. 9.—A case of tularemia, a rare disease, has occurred here. The infection is caused by skinning rabbits. The germ gains entrance into the blood through a cut in the skin, and is followed by fever, and enlargement of glands of the body.

This case of tularemia which has occurred in Ridgway is believed to be the only one reported in the state.

CONCERT GIFT FUND BEGUN

A gift ticket fund started today by Sidney A. Teller, Irene Kaufmann Settlement director, will enable the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra to distribute concert tickets to at least a few unemployed music lovers this year.

In a letter to the Symphony Society, Teller wrote:

"Some provision should be made for the many music lovers—young students and older persons—who, through unemployment or some other reason, lack the funds to attend concerts."

A check to start the fund was enclosed.

The society will arrange to distribute the tickets through settlements, Y. M. C. A.'s, schools and churches.

ALIEN AWAITS DEPORTATION

Speros Psaros, alias Sam Fisher, a Greek, of New Kensington, released yesterday from jail where he served a five-month term imposed in the Federal District Court for fraudulently obtaining naturalization, was turned over to immigration authorities for deportation.

When the sentence was imposed the court directed cancellation of his naturalization certificate. It was testified in Psaros' trial that in an affidavit before a naturalization examiner he withheld the fact that he had been arrested and served a sentence for aggravated assault and battery.

In coming to this country Psaros embarked from a port in Italy and will be returned to that country.

RIVER COLLISION DAMAGES ASKED

An admiralty suit is being heard by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to determine whether there was negligence on the part of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation in a collision on the Monongahela River during a flood March 14 when a coal-laden steel barge belonging to the company broke from its mooring at South Twenty-ninth street.

George Vang and V-L. P. Shriver, receivers of the Iron City Sand and Gravel Company, filed the suit charging the concern's fleet, moored at South Twenty-first street, was damaged by the runaway barge. The two receivers and owners of other craft brought actions seeking damages.

McNair Success Hinges On Appointments

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

While the first consideration of the average citizen as he considers the results of Tuesday's election is the prospect of improved and more sympathetic government under the direction of the Democratic Mayor-elect, William N. McNair, there should be no overlooking of the patronage which comes under control of the new administration.

Certainly some of the Democratic faithful, as well as the converts, are thinking about this. And the average citizen might do so as well, for upon his appointments will depend much of the success of Mr. McNair. Of course he will sweep out the present Republican cabinet, the heads of the various departments.

But these are only the smallest portion of the positions which probably will be changed. Mr. McNair has said he has promised jobs to no one. His primary election statement that he would clean every Republican out of City Hall was never accepted seriously, and Mr. McNair himself later explained that he referred only to deadwood—of which there is plenty, the performance or lack of performance of some of it being responsible for the voters' determination to toss the Republican party out.

There are clerks thoroughly familiar with their work who are necessary to the proper conduct of public business, and it is not assumed they will be molested. They can make or break a department head or sub-executive.

Rewards Heretofore For Vote Delivery

But the Mayor will have the appointment of his secretary at $4,170, and the police magistrates, whom Mayor Herron in an unfortunate moment referred to as the "agents of the Mayor." There are eight of these, paid from $3,000 to $4,000 a year. Heretofore they have, in most cases, been rewarded politicians whose chief capability was in the line of delivering votes.

Two chief clerks in the Treasurer's office receive $3,300 each.

The City Solicitor has nine assistants receiving from $2,500 to $5,000.

Ten property assessors get $4,500 each and the chief is paid $6,500.

Three civil service commissioners are paid $3,600 each.

The chairman of the Board of Adjustment gets $3,340, two other members, $3,000, and the secretary-engineer, $3,000.

The director of the Supplies Department is paid $6,500 and his chief clerk, $3,000.

The chairman of the Board of Water Assessors gets $4,500, two members, $3,600, and the chief clerk, $2,300.

The Director of Health has one superintendent at $4,590, another at $4,170 and an accountant at $3,000.

The Department of Welfare, with Mayview and other services, has a rich list of executive and semi-executive jobs.

The chief clerk of the Department of Public Works gets $3,500 and the chief city engineer $6,250. This department has many subbureaus with well paid chiefs.

The Department of Public Safety is, of course, the widest field for patronage. Mr. McNair said during the campaign that not a single police or fire executive had been selected for fitness, but each was given a reward for political activity. That presages cleaning out.

Chiefs Report Direct to Mayor

The director of the Department of Public Safety gets $8,000 a year. In the political system of the Republican organization the director was merely a figurehead, an effort at a veneer of respectability. The police and fire chiefs reported directly to the Mayor, this being especially true in the case of the police chief. In this department the director seldom knew what was to be done until after it had been arranged. It remains to be seen how Mr. McNair will handle this department.

The police superintendent gets $5,420, the assistant $3,750, traffic inspector, $3,000; 14 police captains $2,650; 41 lieutenants, $2,450 each; traffic lieutenant, $2,450; inspector of detectives, $3,000; captain of detectives, $2,750; lieutenants, $2,650; 45 detectives, $2,450; fire chief, $5,420; chief engineer, $5,000, and to this list is added several subordinate executives.

The Detective Bureau has been a rich field for political rewards as have the higher places in the police department. It is history that before elections there have been customary shifts, "for the good of the service," usually meaning political service.

Mr. McNair has said there will be no shananigan in this department. His task here alone is of great magnitude.

The above list is only a surface scratching. It includes the most important positions, not alone in the nature of patronage, but as they are of vital import to a Mayor who wishes to establish a record for good work done. And Mr. McNair is going to find that while he and some of his closest advisors are going to have good government as their central theme, there are many who have worked long in a barren vineyard who will want a cut of the crop.

It's a job.

BUS PASSENGER ROBBED WHILE ON STROLL

Visitor Third Victim Of Bandit Pair Downtown

The bandit pair preying on visitors arriving at downtown bus terminals held up another last night—the third within a week.

Milton Zeigler, of Red Lion, near York, was robbed of $30 after being dragged from Ninth street into Exchange way by the thugs, who threatened to shoot him, a police report said.

Stopping off to change buses, Zeigler went for a stroll, he told police.

A man loitering in the station followed him to Ninth street and Exchange way. There the stranger and an accomplice seized Zeigler, dragged him into the alley and took his cash after threatening him with the revolver.

The other two victims, robbed in a similar way in Ninth street, during the week, also were bus passengers who stopped off to change coaches.

Threatened with a revolver and blackjack by two bandits, D. Wells, manager of a chain grocery at 9 Judicial street, Mt. Washington, was robbed of $20 last night. They forced Walls into a back room after rifling the cash register.

3,700 GRILLED IN SLAYING

ROCKPORT, Mass., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Thirty-seven hundred alibis were being prepared here today.

State police were called on to interview every resident—there are 3,700—and ask:

"Where were you on the morning of November 1?"

The reason is that Mrs. Augusta Johnson, 55-year-old widow, was slain on that date. Her bed had been set afire, evidently in an attempt to hide the crime.

Officials decided on the house-to-house canvass last night after public clamor for a solution of the mystery became strong.

Sacred Heart Opens 40 Hours Devotion

The ceremony known as the Forty Hours Devotion opened in Sacred Heart Church, East End, with a solemn mass at 9 a. m. today. A procession of the choir and altar boys and the pupils of the grade and high school in blue medieval gowns with white veils formed in the church. The male choir sang, under the direction of Edgar Bowman, organist and choirmaster.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Tammanee, Tammanee, big chief got to get out of his tepee, to make room for the Italian La-Guradee. Tammanee, Tammanee, swampum, swampum, voters got no wampum, out goes Tammanee. I have known this little La Guardia for years. He is quite an American. He used to be considered a radical, but a radical of those days is a long-haired, hard-shelled die hard in these times.

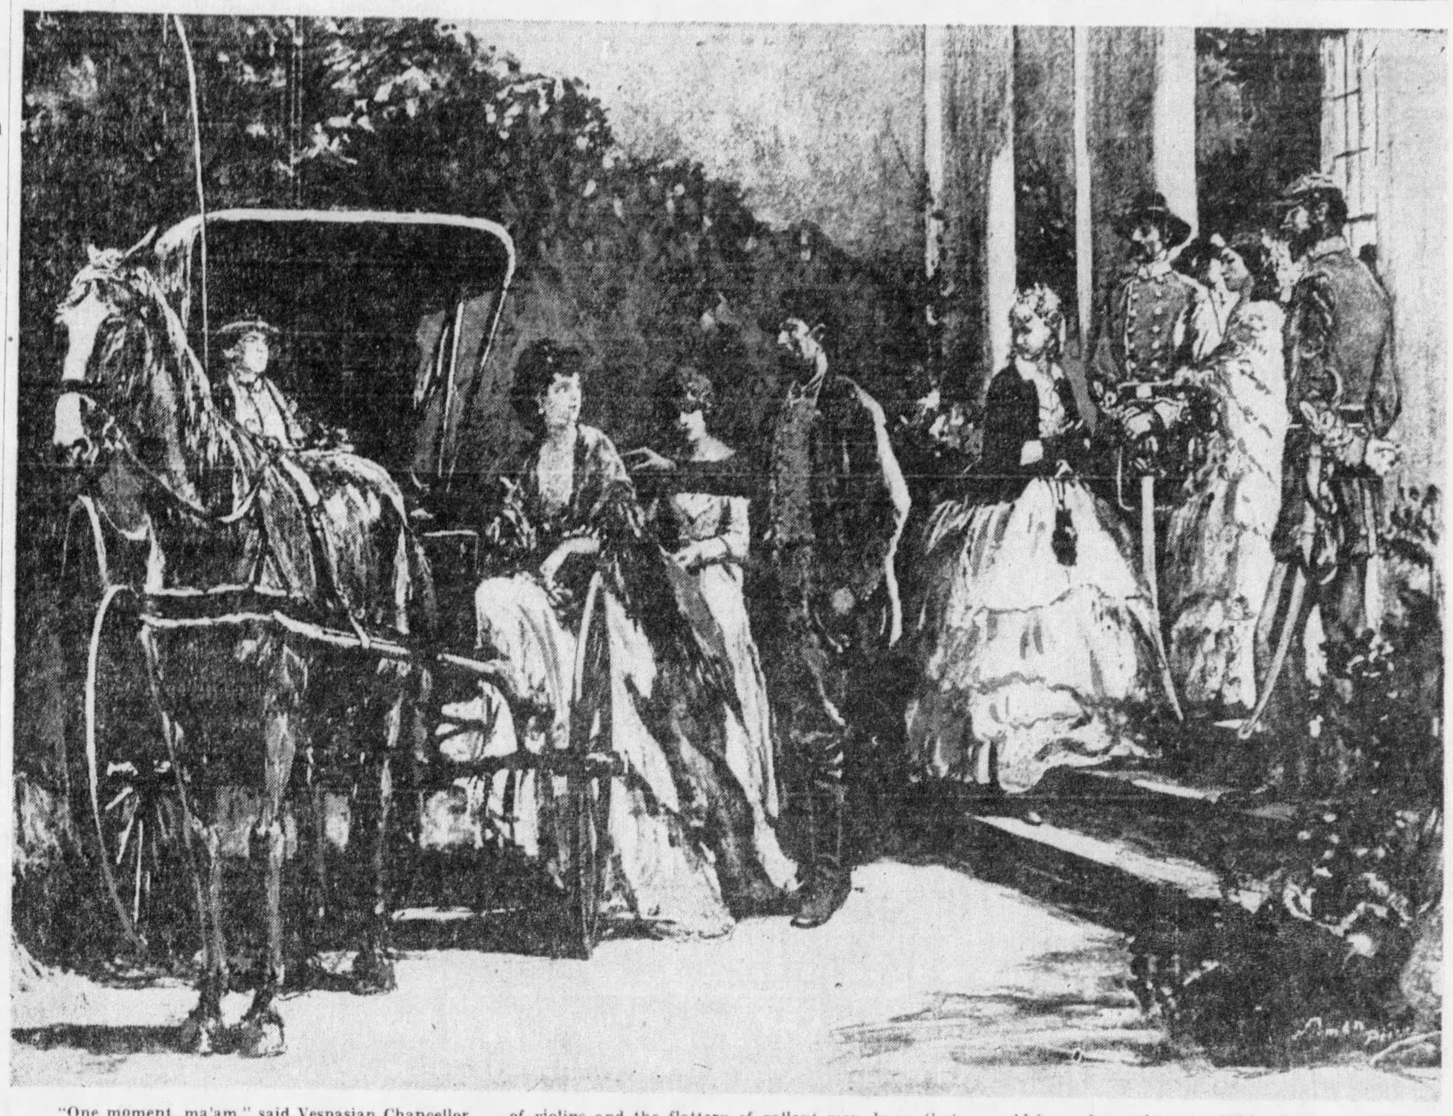
Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS



"One moment, ma'am," said Vespasian Chancellor, the enemy's chief of secret service. "I am sorry, but the provost marshal wishes a word with you." And Pauline Cushman, her ears still filled with the music of violins and the flattery of gallant men, knew that now she heard the freezing voice of death. For Pauline Cushman was a Union spy. Somewhere she had erred, overlooked some vital detail in her pretending. There could be no hope of mercy. This is an incident in today's chapter of "Operator 13," Civil War story by Robert W. Chambers, which you will find on this page.

Girl Spy Thrills To the Kiss of Deadly Enemy

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

"I'll kick and scratch," said she. "Maybe I'll bite."

He looked around. Nobody was near. "I think I'll do it now," he threatened.

"Yuh go 'long," she said, "and let me be. I gotta do the Gin'ral's wash. Pears lak Bob's in a awful hurry. I reckon the cavalry is ridin' somewhere right soon."

"So it is," said Jack Gailliard. "Will you give me a kiss, Lucille?"

"Where you reckon they goin'?" she inquired, scrubbing away.

"Oh, somewhere to chase Yankees," he said carelessly.

"I heard talk they is gwine off to catch Abe Lincoln in Washington. Yuh hear that talk, cap'n?"

He laughed.

"Some," she persisted, "say as how they is ridin' a raid into Pennsylvania."

"Where did you hear that nonsense?" he demanded sharply.

"Niggers talk."

"Too damn much," he muttered.

"Is we-all sure gwine to Pennsylvania?" she asked wonderingly

Gruff Warning

"You listen to me," he growled, "and mind your own business or somebody will give you a spanking!"

"No, suh," she retorted defiantly. But her pretty eyes dared him; then she turned again to her soapsuds.

When at last she rose with her basket of wet clothes he got up, too, and passed one arm around her slender body.

"Yuh quit pesterin'," she said. "Ain't yuh shamed o' yuhse'f, Cap'n Jack?"

But she had been taken at a disadvantage and was helpless, holding tightly to the basket of clothes in front of her; and the young fellow laid one hand flat on her pale brown cheek, turned her shapely head and kissed her.

They felt the shock of it, both of them; unprepared for such sensation.

Neither of them spoke. Presently she moved on lightly, gracefully, with her basket of wet clothes. A little way along the path she looked back at him.

Disturbed

The west wind was swept with the odor of ripened apples. But the pretty dark girl he had kissed smelled like apple bloom in April.

The boy stood unquietly, looking out over the valley—or clusters of valleys—to the eastward. Across that shining river lay a huge Yankee army, perplexed, undecided, still shocked from the crash of the great battle where 10,000 gray jackets lay dead among 12,000 dead blue jackets in the lovely and fatal valley of Virginia.

As he stood there, Vespasian Chancellor, Jeb Stewart's chief scout, came loping along on his scrawny horse. "Nice view, ain't it?" he said politely, drawing bridle.

"Yes. I want to ask you something, Vespy; you know a mulatto or a quadroon when you see one?"

"I reckon."

"You can always tell, no matter how white they seem?"

"Yaas, suh."

"How much white blood does a quadroon show? Enough to take the blue out of the half-moon on the finger nails?"

"I reckon not, suh."

"It's always bluish and never white?"

"I don't guess it's ever white like ours."

They turned and proceeded toward the tents and shanties of the Confederate Secret Service, Gailliard walking with one hand on the cantle.

"Mr. Gaston sent for me," remarked Chancellor. "Reckon they's a Yankee spy in the valley."

"He sent for me, too," said Gailliard.

They found General Lee's chief cipher operator talking in his tent to Col. Stoddard Johnson, Forrest's chief of spies.

"Chancellor," said Mr. Gaston, "did you get through to Frederick?"

"Yaas, suh. I jes' rid in."

"Any record of a Mary Vail there?"

"Thar wuz a Mary Vail thar, suh. She left when the Yankees arrived."

"Did you get her description?"

"Yaas, suh. I reckon she's the same lady that's bo'din' over to Claybourn's in Martinsburg."

All in Order

"Are all her papers in order?"

"Yaas, suh."

"Then you are satisfied that she is all right?"

"No, suh," drawled the spy.

"Why not?" asked Gaston sharply.

"I can't say, Mr. Gaston. I jes' don't reckon she's all right."

"Well, then, watch her closely. There's too much talk going on in this camp. The very niggers are discussing secret orders from Richmond. Anybody can pick up enough to damage this army and damn the Confederacy." And, to Gailliard: "Captain, did you learn anything about the mulatto laundress that Gen. Stuart's Bob picked up in Martinsburg last week?"

"She gossips like all—niggers. That's all, sir," said the boy. He had reddened and choked a little at the word "nigger."

"What did she gossip about?" demanded Mr. Gaston.

"She said she'd heard that the cavalry were going to raid Pennsylvania. Wanted to know if 'we-all' were going."

Gaston said angrily to Col. Johnson: "I told you how it is in this damn camp. How do you keep your own camp clean of gabblers?"

"Lock 'em up," replied Johnson, tersely. "Bragg's orders.

"He's damned right! Vespasian, if you hear a word out of this Vail woman, lock her up! And you, Jack, find that yellow girl and tell her to shut her mouth or go to the calaboose! I want you to watch her, anyway. She has been seen talking to the Vail woman. I've sent for Rose O'Neil. I'm turning her loose on Mary Vail. She's in Martinsburg now. Any least sign, any loose talk about the cavalry and Pennsylvania, and you fetch both these women to me—the mulatto Lyndon and Mary Vail, I mean."

Starlight drenched the Valley of Virginia with a thin, silvery luster. From the great mansion with its lighted windows came the sound of dance music at intervals, or the solo clang of Joe Sweeny's banjo ripping out "Ben Cotton's Walk-Around" or "Oh, Lord, Ladies!"

Always where Stuart stopped there was dancing, and pretty women. Wherever he halted in town or hamlet, country girls put on their best calico and Quality its loveliest rag of treasured silk, to dance to one of his cavalry bands.

Gay Scene

Jeb Stuart, in his gayest uniform, yellow sash, patent leather boots and gold spurs, was dancing every dance; and his boyish gayety swept every laughing girl into a scented vortex around him. Here all hearts loyal to the scarlet battle flag with its blue saltier and stars, beat wildly, defiantly, as the gray-uniformed youngsters whirled beauty in the dance. Here also was a wonderful source of information to those reckless enough to seek it.

And here, Quality and village maid, Dandridge and dairymaid, danced and laughed and pirouetted and footed it to banjo and cavalry band. And here, lovely, flushed and sparkling, was Pauline Cushman, known as Mrs. Vail in Martinsburg, dancing with Von Borcke, who never before had held so enchanting an armful of floating grace to his gold-laced breast.

Bob, in full African elegance, was there to help out the Dandridge servants. And by his side, in snowy kerchief and starched white, tripped Lucille, headquarters laundress to Maj. Gen. J. E. B Stuart—to fetch and carry and wait upon the gay and great; and to listen with all her small ears for a word that might ruin the flower of the Confederacy, cavalry, some golden October day—God willing.

Once she caught a whispered word from a staff lieutenant—Channing Price—to another boy, John Pelham; something about taking two guns of his own and two from Hart's battery . . . Once she heard something about a Col. Imboden in West Virginia—something relative to getting the enemy away from the Potomac fiords. Twice she caught phrases relative to cutting railroads; and the name of a town, Chambersburg.

Mrs. Vail, dancing with a very young officer, was suddenly thirsty. Oh, no; no toddy; merely a glass of Madeira.

In all the engaging glory of her billowy crinolines she stepped out to the veranda—and farther out among the Cherokee roses in the thin, silvery starlight where great phantom oaks stood lacing the dewy lawn with intricate shadows.

Close to her glided a slim shape in starched white. "Pauline?"

"Quick, then!"

"When?"

"I don't know. Tonight, I believe. Is John Babcock here?"

"Yes. Go back and listen."

The little laundress slipped away among the massed roses as white as her starched dress and kerchief. The young staff officer was already looking along the veranda for Mrs. Vail, two slim brimming glasses in his hands. She came slowly out of the starlight to meet him. She kissed his lifted glass solemnly. She said: "To the cause, captain. God go with horse and guns, tonight!"

The lad looked at her pale and startled. Then his stiff, scared face relaxed and cleared.

Gail Loveless, just 20, had had thorough training as a character actress under the tutelage of her friend and fellow-artist of the stage, Pauline Cushman. Miss Cushman had served as a spy for the Union Army. Now it was necessary for her to go again into the Confederate lines at Martinsburg, Va. Gen. J. E. B. Stuart needed watching. It was feared he intended to lead his raiders into Pennsylvania on a devastating raid.

Miss Cushman asked if she might take Gail Loveless with her. Pinkerton, head of the Federal Secret Service, and his aide, Col. Sharpe, seeing the young girl impersonate an octoroon, were convinced of her ability to fool the Southerners. They said she might go and assigned to her, as an agent of the Secret Service, the number 13, which had been borne by another spy, recently captured by the Southern Army and hanged.

A few days later Gail Loveless, as Lucille Lyndon, "yaller gal" laundress, had the good luck to be assigned to the headquarters of Gen. Stuart himself. And there, while she washed a shirt in a swift little river, came Capt. Jack Gailliard, foremost of Gen. Stuart's spies, to flirt with her lazily in the mellow sunshine. "You look," he said, "like a pale yellow rose. Some day I'll catch you and kiss you, too."

PILOT SUCCEEDS IN CHECKING NOSE-DIVE

Freak Mishap Baffles Army Fliers on Trip From Here

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—One of the strangest of air accidents, in which a plane pulled itself out of a spin after a passenger had leaped with a parachute, and just as the pilot was preparing to follow him, was reported to Bolling Field last night.

Lieut. Fabian Pope was piloting a Curtis Army plane from Pittsburgh to Bolling Field yesterday. In the cockpit was Private Robert Gault, of Langley Field, whose mother lives in McKees Rocks.

The plane was functioning perfectly, until it headed across the mountainous country near Cumberland, Md.

Leaning back, he motioned Gault to jump. Gault leaped from the plane and pulled the rip cord. Pope prepared to follow him as the ship, the wind whistling through its struts, plunged earthward.

But when Pope climbed out on the wing, prepared to leap, the ship suddenly righted itself. Pope believes it was the shift in weight.

Pope climbed back into the cockpit and brought it under control. He saw the parachute drifting close to the rough, wooded country.

Since it was impossible to land anywhere near this point, Pope flew here.

Bolling Field authorities said Gault, although injured, managed, after several hours, to reach a farmhouse. As the Army ordered a search for the missing private, a wire from Cumberland, Md., said he was recovering from his injuries, which are not serious, in a hospital there.

DROPPED PISTOL KILLS DRUGGIST

Richard Schoonover, 47, a druggist, of 112 South Fremont avenue, Bellevue, was dead today, a victim of an accidental shooting, according to a coroner's report.

Deputy Coroner John Artz, who investigated, said Schoonover was putting away his automatic pistol when it fell to the floor and discharged, yesterday. The bullet penetrated his heart.

Mrs. Schoonover told Artz her husband kept the pistol under his pillow as a protection against prowlers, and upon arising would lock it in a trunk.

Schoonover's daughter, Lucille, 10, witnessed the tragedy.

Carolinas Both Stay Loyal to Mountain Mule

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

The boys voted against changing the prescriptions.

What we can't understand is why cities vote wet and farms vote dry when one drink makes both of them look alike.

Let's get back to Carolina mule. It ain't a bad destination. It's a jug-handled contract that holds a gallon. The old firm is still doing business at the edge of the woods.

Take one drink of it and you will sail down Main street like you had an outboard motor strapped to your coat tails.

So you can see that the Carolinas were simply voting against inferior substitutes.

Denny Resents Pastor's Sermon on Hill Vice

In a letter to the Rev. M. B. Fuller, Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., yesterday charged that the minister's sermon on vice conditions, preached in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday, was "an attempt at sensationalism and not an effort to improve conditions by constructive methods."

The Rev. Mr. Fuller, in his sermon, revealed alleged vice conditions in Clark street, as a result of a tour of that district Halloween night.

Denny called attention to 27 arrests in the neighborhood as well as a raid Monday, which resulted in a $100 fine to the proprietors of the place.

He criticized the minister for not making formal complaint of conditions to himself or to Superintendent of Police Franklin T. McQuaide.

STRAW BALLOTS IN SCHOOLS ACCURATE

Pupils Pick Winners For Mayor, Council And Courts

Politicians of the future, or at least some of those who usually "have a little bet down on the result" would like to take a peek if they could at the results of the ballot in the Pittsburgh public schools for advance information.

Uncanny or otherwise, in two "straw" ballots taken among some 40,000 students of the school system the election results have been forecast with little variation.

The student straw vote on the principal offices in Pittsburgh was taken on Monday, but the results which forecast the tremendous upheaval were not announced until Tuesday evening. The students had picked William N. McNair by an overwhelming majority, just as their elders did at the polls.

COUNCIL CHOICES

All five victories in the councilmanic race were predicted, as were Gustav L. Schramm's election over Charles G. Lane Jr. to judge of the newly-created Juvenile Court and M. A. Musmanno's tremendous lead over all other aspirants for the Common Pleas bench. In addition, John Heinz, who gave Frank I. Gollmar a stiff fight, was given the majority vote for Sheriff. The approximate ratios of single victors' totals in the students' balloting, as compared with unofficial election results, tabulate as follows:

	Schools	Election
McNair	3 to 1	10 to 7
Schramm	3 to 1	16 to 9.5
Heinz	2.5 to 1

In the student poll Musmanno's ratio to the next high winner was more than 4 to 3; in the election he scored about 9 to 5. Ralph H. Smith and Harry H. Rowand, taking second and third places, respectively, were relegated to fourth and fifth places by the pupils, however, who voted John J. Kennedy and A. Marshall Thompson to second and third.

WRONG ON COUNTY COURT

On the other hand councilmanic victors were named in exact order of election, with the exception of John J. Kane and Thomas J. Gallagher, who reversed places in the school vote.

Pittsburgh's youthful intelligensia hit far and wide of actual results in their selection of County Court winners. Benjamin Lencher and Frank A. Pickarski, victors in the real election, came in third and fourth with James L. O'Toole and Austin L. Staley taking the straw vote leads.

But on repeal and Sunday sports the students knew their stuff. The wets numbered 4 to 1, and sports fans drowned a 3,313 dissenting vote with 17,718 "yeses" in favor of modification of the Blue Law Amendments No. 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12 received a favorable vote with a very close vote on amendment No. 6.

When the student balloting became compulsory under an edict issued by the Board of Education more than a year ago, to educate the students in the principles in citizenship, the first straw vote indicated the victory of Franklin D. Roosevelt over President Hoover. At the time they polled nearly 11 to 6 in favor of Roosevelt. Official returns made public a month after the November (1932) elections gave Roosevelt an 11 to 7.5 victory.

Other predictions at that time included Edmund F. Erk's surprise defeat as Representative from the Thirtieth Congressional District at the hands of the Democrat, Twing Brooks, and the victory of Matthew Dunn, Dem., all over Guy E. Campbell, veteran Republican Congressman in the Thirty-fourth District. The students' senatorial vote favored Lawrence H. Rupp, Allentown Democrat—which might be construed as indicative of Rupp's strong fight over United States Senator James J. Davis, Republican and Liberal candidate re-elected with a plurality of 174,729 over Rupp's final total of 1,200,760.

PICKED ROOSEVELT

Attempts to explain the uncanny ability of the students to forecast the McNair landslide by pointing out that they possibly reflected the views of their parents on the issue do not seem to stand up. The counter-reminder remains that the same students predicted Roosevelt's election, the Campbell upset and the victory of Brooks, a political newcomer, who in advance election forecasts was conceded little chance against Erk.

Participation in the presidential and congressional straw vote was limited to students of junior high, high and trade schools in the city. Elementary schools also participated in this week's poll. R. O. Hughes, curriculum study official of the Board of Education, is director of the enterprise in which all the formalities of a real election, from registration to secret balloting and the election of students to serve as election and return boards, are observed.

Because it was impossible that this pretty Maryland woman could know about a flying battery of horse artillery and 1,500 reckless horsemen destined to terrify half a continent.

"To God and the guns, and loveliest eyes on earth," he said. Then he bowed and drank to the "trinity."

Farewell Song

She broke a white bud from its stem and gave it to him, and the boy blushed and drew the stem of the Cherokee rose through a small gold-edged slit in his buttoned cavalry jacket.

Banjo string fiddles now, and Jeb Stuart's clear, joyous voice leading the singing of the "Stirrup Cup":

"Wine in the cup and cup to lip!
Goodby, dear heart, goodby!
Saddle and sword and spur and whip,
And a glance of the eye—goodby!
Here's a cup to the Stars and Bars,
And a cheer and a laugh and a sigh—
Venus adieu, salute O Mars!
Goodby, goodby, goodby!"

Then the silvery finale of the bugles ending the evening; and the ball at the Bower was history.

Mary Vail curtsied to host and hostess and took her graceful leave. The little laundress carried her cloak out to the buggy, where her homespun driver sat waiting to take her back to the boarding house in Martinsburg.

The driver was John Babcock. The little laundress could have clapped her hands—and herself into the guardhouse.

Hand of Fate

Then as Pauline Cushman set a silver-slippered foot upon the buggy step, she felt a touch on her gayly shawled shoulder, and turned slowly to meet the somber gaze of Vespasian Chancellor.

"One moment, ma'am," he said.

There was a ghostly silence.

"What is it you wish?" she managed to ask him.

"I'm sorry, ma'am, but the provost marsha, wishes a word with you. Pray step this way, ma'am."

Pauline Cushman paled, but she lifted her head calmly. "Will you lend me your arm, sir?" she murmured.

John Babcock, slouched in the buggy seat, looked after her dumbly as she moved away on the arm of the Confederate chief of scouts. The little laundress also was looking after her.

Officers and ladies gathered on steps were watching the scene gravely. Somebody said to Babcock: "There are other carriages behind you. Drive on and pull up under the trees over there."

He sat up stupidly, shook his reins, and the buggy creaked ahead and drew up among the oak trees. He sat stupidly motionless. And so, him in a little while crept a sun shaft through the gloom and mist—the little laundress, barefoot once more, and in her simple faded garment.

Kerrian Cole, she said softly. It's a night of stars, sir.

He recognized some of the yacht pass phrases of Pinkerton operatives and replied. Yes, it's a night of stars and bars. How many stars do you count?

Thirteen, she whispered.

Add thirteen to a hundred and six."

"Done. And the answer is?"

"The Union forever. What has happened to No. 11?"

She has been arrested. They have her in the provost tent. Stuart, Borcke and Pelham have been there to question her. Vespasian Chancellor and Capt. Gailliard have discovered evidence against her in her room in Martinsburg. I don't know what the evidence may be, but there is a military court sitting drumhead now. You had better try to get away."

"If I go it will look bad for her," said Babcock quietly.

"If you stay they will hang you, too; and that won't help her. Have you a horse hidden?"

"Yes."

"Then get back to Maj. Allen and tell him that Stuart's cavalry and Pelham's artillery leave tonight and cross the river. The talk is of Pennsylvania and Chambersburg. Imboden is to draw our cavalry from the fords. Leave your buggy there. For God's sake hurry!"

"Are you involved in any suspicion?"

"Not that I know of."

"You remain to take your chances?"

"Yes."

He got out of the buggy, tied the horse. "I'll see you through with me if you say so," he whispered.

"No."

HUEY LONG FOES BEATEN DURING LA. RIOT

MONROE, La., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long spoke here last night in the midst of riotous disturbances during which skulls were bruised and men were thrown out of the auditorium for heckling the speaker.

Before Senator Long started speaking, men began asking him questions from the floor until he shouted to D. M. Doughty, an insurance man, that he would have him thrown out if he didn't keep quiet. When Doughty refused, Joe Messina, the Senator's bodyguard, and highway police rushed toward him but he was rescued by the superintendent of police, who escorted him to the street.

GROCER EJECTED

Later the Senator was forced to stop his speech when E. M. Steen, a grocer, called him a liar. The grocer was rushed by the bodyguard and the highway police and led from the auditorium by State Senator James Noe, of Monroe.

Both Steen and Doughty said they had been struck by Long's guards. Steen bore cuts and bruises about the left eye. The hecklers stood in front of the building until Senator Long left, surrounded by a score of men who escorted him to his hotel.

Other lesser disturbances occurred during the meeting, but Senator Long finished his speech on the redistribution of wealth and proposed new state taxes.

QUIZZED ON HOSPITAL

The first disturbance occurred when Long announced there were vacant seats in the front and invited those in the rear to move forward. Doughty spoke up:

"While you are resting, I'd like to have you answer some questions. What about this charity hospital for Monroe? If you believe in representative government, why don't you hold an election in the Sixth Congressional District to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Congressman Kemp?"

During a verbal exchange, Joe Messina leaped over the footlights and started toward Doughty. Policemen moved toward his seat.

Sympathizers started to aid Doughty and a serious situation threatened. Doughty said he would leave with the policeman but he would not let the bodyguards throw him out. L. V. Tarver, the police superintendent, said he took Doughty to the street to "prevent his being beaten up."

Senator Long plans to make other speeches before turning to New Orleans at the end of the week.

WAR IN EUROPE HANGS BY THREAD

Grand Duchess Marie, cousin of the last Czar Nicholas, who has just returned from Europe, where she made an intimate study of conditions in Europe, discusses the prospect of another war in Europe in the December Cosmopolitan. She states:

"It is upon the solution of the problems which preoccupy France and the Franco-German issues that today largely depends the future of Europe. Naziism is the culmination of the spirit of bitterness and protest which has been brewing ever since November 11, 1918, in Germany. It is more difficult than ever to expect any amelioration of feelings between these two countries."

France, she says, has one major preoccupation, he security. Some of her citizens, however, are protesting against excessive militaristic preparations, and there is talk about national Socialism.

Germany has a new generation which did not take part in the war and is not defeated. It demands a right to live. Hitler is a hero for every man, woman and child, she believes, and all classes are behind him.

England she finds peaceful, on the whole, forgetting the World War in a struggle to defend her markets. But her ties with her dominions have been loosened if they are not openly unfriendly. England has undergone a social revolution and is witnessing the growth of radicalism.

Italy's foreign policy has angered France, but Italy, under Mussolini, does not deviate from her course of making herself secure also on the Mediterranean and the Adriatic.

The Grand Duchess feels Russia should avoid war at any cost, as it would spell disaster to her present regime. A new Russia, she believes, is coming to life, and she is a power to be reckoned with.

The Orient? The Grand Duchess is confronted with its intricacies, but she says:

Forester, 75, Falls Dead From Fatigue

KANE, Pa., Nov. 9.—(INS)—Thomas B. Dougherty, 75, recently set to work by the government in Allegheny National Forest, was dead today from sheer exhaustion and a weak heart. He fell among trees that he was marking in a woods near here yesterday, where a foot of snow had impeded his work.

Coroner S. B. McCabe started an investigation today. Fellow workmen reported Dougherty had been in normal health a few hours before they found his body.

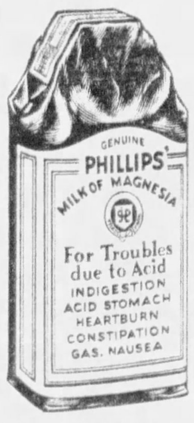
How to Find Out If You Have Acid Stomach

And Quick, Easy Way to Correct It

The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness	Neuralgia	Indigestion
	Auto-intoxication	Nausea
	Frequent Headaches	Sleeplessness
	Feeling of Weakness	Mouth Acidity
	Loss of Appetite	Sour Stomach



WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Some 80% of the people of today have Acid Stomach, according to many authorities! This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," "biliousness," are the usual indications. So you can easily tell if you have Acid Stomach.

You Can Quickly And Easily Correct It

But if you do have it, don't worry about it. Today it can be corrected in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE 2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or, you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid.

What This Does

That's all you do. But do it regularly, EVERY DAY.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy you feel.

Everywhere people are doing this—doctors advocating it. Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips'" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia

MRS. GARAVINI'S STORY

But the red-haired Mrs. Garavini told a different story:

"I pulled the trigger of the gun just to see if there were any more loads in it. Mr. Garavini did not have a gun. I can't help what Glenn testified. It looks like a bribe. Mr. Garavini told me his gun was hidden."

When Magistrate Jones attempted to learn whether Swartz carried a permit for the .32 caliber, pearl-handled job, the bookie's attorney, Sam Silverman, refused to allow the prisoner to answer.

Twice Silverman, attempting to question Garavini's wife, referred to her as Mrs. Swartz. The ex-Mrs. Swartz not only corrected him but added:

"I don't want to talk to him."

SWARTZ HELD

Swartz was held pending developments in Garavini's condition. Mrs. Garavini, Glenn and a taxicab driver, Cornelius Weyman, were turned over to the homicide squad to make statements. It was Weyman who found the revolver, which appeared to have been crushed beneath a street car after the shooting.

Swartz insisted that Garavini had begun the proceedings by slugging him on the "noodle" with the blackjack. At any rate, Swartz had a bump on the head, for which he was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

Albert Conway, of 1637 Methyl street, and John Foley, of 1505 Rockland street, Beechview, had just turned the corner at Grant and Sixth when the shooting occurred.

Conway said:

"The little guy (Swartz) suddenly started shooting. So did the other man. Then the big man staggered and the little fellow ran past us and down Sixth avenue."

Foley said:

"That's the way it was. We didn't try to stop the fellow because it was all too sudden and, besides, something hit me on the head."

The something was a bent piece of metal which apparently had been knocked off the hotel door trim by a stray bullet.

Swartz was arrested a half hour after the shooting not the scene, but at Fifth avenue and Dinwiddie. He said he was on his way to the police station to surrender and, in the meantime, had borrowed $250 to get out of jail, the police reported.

Caravini was shot in the abdomen, hospital authorities reported. To police who hurried to the hospital, he said significantly:

"You know what caused this."

BAD BLOOD BETWEEN 2

Probably they did know, for every bellhop in the William Penn Hotel and every hacker in William Penn way, where Garavini operated, knew of the bad blood between the two. When they passed each other usually they exchanged pleasantries not to be ofund in McGuffey's Reader. Just last week, outside the hotel, they had a fist fight.

Swartz's wife divorced him a year or so ago. Soon after she married the hacker. The Swartzes have two children. The 9-year-old daughter has been living with her mother and Garavini in the expensively furnished home Garavini bought in Seminole Hills, Mt. Lebanon. The son has been taken care of by his father, who has been living in the Saybrook Apartments in Craft avenue.

Ince Told to Make Payments to Wife

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—William T. Ince, son of the late Thomas H. Ince, film producer, was ordered yesterday by the Superior Court to pay Ada Williams, screen player, $75 a month temporary alimony pending trial of her suit for separate maintenance.

Steamer Aground In West Indies

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The S. S. Golden Mountain, small American freighter, was stranded early today in the West Indies and asked Coast Guard assistance.

A wireless picked up by the Radio Marine Corporation before dawn said the vessel had gone aground on outer Mankhes. She was bound from California to Baltimore and Philadelphia.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Youns, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

WOMAN BACKS FIRE TRIAL ALIBI

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Georgi Dimitroff's abili, that he was not even in Berlin on the night last February when the Reichstag Building was burned, received further probing today at the trial in which he and four others are accused of incendiarism.

A German woman, Fraulein Roesler, testified today that she talked to Dimitroff during a train journey to Berlin on the night of the fire.

She said Dimitroff introduced himself as Herr Hediger, which was the name on his passport. When the passengers read of the fire in the newspapers the following morning, she said Dimitroff merely shook his head.

Later, she testified, he said he did not believe Communists had started the blaze.

SURGEON CURES CANCER PAINS

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—An operation that Dr. J. P. Greenhill said relieves the pain of cancer sufferers was described by him before the Chicago Medical Society as having been successful in 23 cases.

Speaking at a cancer symposium last night, he said the operation consisted of removal of the hypogastric plexus, the collection of sympathetic nerves lying against the backbone below the stomach.

With the aid of his associate, Dr. H. E. Schmitz, he said he had brought relief to 23 women suffering from incurable cancer of the womb. He said the nerves involved convey sensations of pain from the lower abdominal organs to the brain.

Dr. Greenhill emphasized the fact that the operation is not a cure for cancer, but only a means of relieving pain.

TALKS ON NRA BY PASTORS

Frank C. Harper, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh NRA compliance board, announced today that three Pittsburgh ministers in Sunday radio talks will answer attacks on the NRA based on interpretation of the Scriptures. All boards in the country have been asked by Washington to cooperate in a nation-wide reply to "misinterpretations of Holy Writ," Harper said.

The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, of the East End Christian Church, will speak over Station WCAE at 1:30 p. m. Sunday. Other talks will be made over the same station at the same hour November 19 and November 26.

Presbytery to Hold Religious Forum

Pittsburgh problems in the religious education field will be a two-day conference discussion topic at the Second Presbyterian Church beginning Wednesday under the joint direction of Pittsburgh Presbytery's committee on Christian Education and the National Presbyterian Board. Philadelphia religious leaders will head the discussion groups.

$1,050 Merchandise Taken From Shop

CREW DESERTS WRECKED SHIP

International News Service.

MANISTEE, Mich., Nov. 9.—Aground in heavy seas and a blinding snowstorm, the steamer T. S. Christie, of Chicago, was abandoned by its crew of 12 this morning, according to advices from the Coast Guard.

The Christie, 150-foot wooden pulpwood-carrier, owned by the Herman Hetler Lumber Company, went aground last night in the snowstorm, 1,500 feet off the Lake Michigan shore, four miles north of here.

The crew immediately signaled for help with the ship's foghorn and whistles, but an offshore wind prevented coast guards from hearing the signals until dawn. Rescuers then took the men off the stricken ship.

$2.25 Check Case Dropped in Court

Judge Sylvester J. Snee nolle prossed a $2.25 bad check case, brought in Criminal Court against H. M. Fox, of Northumberland street, when the prosecutor asked that the charge be dropped. The District Attorney joined in the motion because of the small amount involved. The Highway Service Company had charged Fox gave a bad check after having his battery charged.

Veterans Organize 'Amputation Post'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The Veterans of Foreign Wars is forming an "amputation post" for the District of Columbia, with a membership restricted to ex-service men who have lost an arm or a leg.

The injury may have been sustained subsequent to war service. The veterans' organization estimates that 200 men in the district are eligible.

Spain 'Cracks Down' In Election Plot

MADRID, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The government "cracked down" today against extremists reported to have plotted a campaign of terror preceding the national elections.

The plot, government agents disclosed, contemplated a general strike and wide disorders in an attempt to interfere with the Spanish elections, November 19.

FREEDOM ENDS WOMAN'S FAST

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lida Auvill's hunger strike in the city jail ended yesterday when the 25-year-old woman, serving time in default of fine imposed for posting Communistic signs, was released. Later in the day Earl Conard, 29, convicted of the same charge, was given his freedom.

Mrs. Auvill and Conard were locked up last Thursday after they refused to pay fines, claiming that they were convicted unjustly. Originally their term was set at 25 days. It has not been the custom, however, for city prisoners to serve more than 10 days at the most when jailed in default of fine.

Mrs. Auvill, in protest against the sentence, went on a hunger strike and had been without food or drink for nearly 144 hours when Mayor A. G. Martin, after a talk with her husband, Ray Auvill, ordered the release.

Auvill then carried his wife from the jail to a car. She appeared weak and made no effort to walk.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yawitz until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

S. R. O.

I like the way you love and run away,
Like bees that sip a petal and are gone;
You romance like a lover in a play:
"The scene is ready; let the show go on!"

And then the curtain falls, and you, my star,
Have vanished, like a glowworm with the dawn;
You twinkle, then I wonder where you are,
You make your exit like a frightened faun.

Your love is like a route of one-night stands,
Although the plot is old, it entertains,
And tho' you've starred in towns and hinterlands,

—Tito Coral.

Minor Offense!

The complete inadequacy of "Under Glass," in which Ethel Barrymore Colt played her first major role, has the show in Cain's warehouse after a few brief performances. But what we wanted to report is an aisle conversation between Percy Hammond and a veteran first-nighter.

"I'm surprised," averred the premier fan, "that Leona Maricle steals the show."

"Yes," replied the unsurprised critic, "but even so, it's only petty larceny."

From the Left-Hand

Richy Craig, Jr., encountered Benny Meroff on Michigan Bl the other afternoon and inquired about the prosperity status of the bandsman.

"Oh, everything's coming along great," replied the enthused Meroff. "I've just signed to go on the air for an aspirin company."

"Well, with that line-up you're bound to make good," chirped Craig. "After one week with your band on its program, the sponsor's sales will go way up."

With Toast and Coffee, Too!

With oranges selling eight dozen for a quarter and with Hollywood stars unable to pay the heavy water tax on their swimming pools, Craig suggests that they give up the water and use orange juice instead.

Our Last Pun

Julius Tannen has figured out that President Roosevelt is buying gold in Europe because he's Headin' to Get That Pound-Up.

I Don't Believe It!

Andy Sannella wants credit for the one about the hobo who came up before a New York judge.

"So you're a vagrant, eh?" scolded hizzoner, "tell me something—did you ever earn an honest dollar in your whole life?"

"Yeah," was the reply terrible. "I voted for you twice at the last election."

Revival

Arthur Murray reports as his own (a practice not uncommon on Broadway) the story made popular seasons ago by Harry Hershfield.

Two loafers were standing outside the stage door of the "Vanities" when one of Mr. Carroll's pretties came out.

"I feel like going out with that girl again," said the first.

"Again?" questioned his friend, incredibly.

"Sure," came the quick reply. "Once before I felt like it."

Among My Telegrams

"Regarding your column a few days ago," wires Sylvia Sidney from Los Angeles, "I am not under contract to Ben Schulberg and therefore am not tiffing with him over salary. Stop. If I were under contract to him, I would work for him for less money than any one else. Stop. Please try to be a little more accurate in the future."

Miss Featherspy, shoot this wire to Miss Sidney immediately:

"Dear Sylvia: I'll not discuss the accuracy question now. But what I can't understand is why, after this contemptuous reprimand to me, you closed your message with 'Regards.'"

And by the way, Miss Featherspy, close by sending my regards, too.

Only Colossal

The constant usage of the same word by radio masters-of-ceremonies—due naturally to a lack of vocabulary—annoys not only us but Aimee Semple McPherson as well. Immediately after Jack Benny's broadcast the other night on a new commercial, she hurled this wire at him:

"Enjoyed your broadcast very much. Liked everything but the word marvelous. Am sending you a list of words you can use in place of marvelous. Outside of that you were marvelous."

It Is Not a Fairy Tale, Sir!

"You know everything, Paul," specials Jack Arthur. "Perhaps you can tell me about Kate's myth. I can't get anyone to tell me the story."

Add Similes

Ouch!

A Broadway monologist who had worn a dent in the concrete between broadcasting stations finally became so desperate that he phoned the program director of a second rate station with this appeal:

"Say, my family's starving and I need money right away. For $200 I'll give you a stunt that will make your station the most-talked-about in years—I'll commit suicide in front of the mike."

Columnist's Lament

My fate is an eternal coquette,
I like good girls, and good girls are all I ever get.

The Four Sins

The following toast is popular in Chicago, they say, where it is distributed by Gibby, one of the better cafe impresarios:

"Here's to the four sins of life. Lying, gambling, stealing and drinking. When you lie—lie for the honor of a woman. When you gamble—gamble fair and square. When you steal, steal away from bad influences—and when you drink—drink with me."

This Age of Ours

Bill Parker put one of his life-long buddies on a transcontinental plane headed for Hollywood at noon yesterday. He arrived home an hour later and found a Western Union message from Philadelphia which read:

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Husbands have been warned to walk warily this week, for one of the world's famous vamps is in town—Pola Negri, who is playing in the Nixon in "A Trip to Pressburg." Pola has the glamorous personality of the famous vamps from Cleopatra to Ninon de Lenclos. And she is interested in all of them, intending to write her autobiography in the frank style of Marie Bashkirtseff and Isadora Duncan.

Mr. Seibel

Another reason for husbands to walk warily, remembering what happened to the candidate for Senator in S. N. Behrman's comedy, "Biography."

Stage vamps have usually been the sinuous, languid, serpentine type. Some of them have been great actresses—though some actresses could never be vamps. Charlotte Cushman, greatest American actress of all, was a very ugly woman. Ugly men have a fascination for the other sex—made up partly of pity and partly of fear—but men are more esthetic and want their women perfect according to the prevailing mode, whether it's cushions or laths.

The best actress and vamp of the American stage was probably Fanny Davenport. Think of her ensnaring Robert Manteil when he was very young and handsome, in that melodrama of Russian Nihilism, "Fedora." That was some vamping and some acting!

She had a whole gallery of vampish roles written for her and Sarah Bernhardt by Sardou—"La Tosca," "Cleopatra," "Gismonda" and "Theodora." Those were the days!

POLA'S OWN IDEAS

"I am firmly convinced that suffering is essential to the making of a great actress," said Pola the other day. "Look at the life of Eleonora Duse, the greatest actress of us all. What torment she went through because of her superb love for D'Annunzio, the Italian poet! And what an artist her agony made of her!"

"But there are other things in life besides art," the interviewer suggested.

"There are only two things worth while in life," she replied vehemently. "One is love, the other is work. And I have finished with love.

"I don't care what anyone has to say about falling in love again. It is possible to fall in love only once in a lifetime. That is granted to most of us. But no more. The rest is just disillusion," she added in a low voice. "Men mean nothing more to me, so far as love is concerned."

STAGE VAMPS OF PAST

Pola Negri knows that the stage vamp who relies entirely on her vamping can have no future though she may have plenty of past. Sex is not an impediment in the theater, but it isn't everything. From Nell Gwyn to Olga Nethersole, the footlight sirens have been good actresses, though they rarely portrayed good women. Those who depended on "It" and red hair were forgotten quickly.

The greatest actresses, like Ellen Terry and Mrs. Fiske, Rachel and Siddons never depended on any physical appeal nor upon publicity of their private lives. Which is as it should be.

Tickets for Kreisler Not Sold Out

Tickets for the Fritz Kreisler concert in Syria Mosque next Thursday evening, November 16, are still available at the box office at Mellor's, and the management wishes to correct the impression that all tickets have been sold. The Kreisler program will include the Grieg Sonata in C Minor, the Bach Chaconne, Schubert's "Impromptu," Mozart's "Rondo," Tschaikowsky's "Andante Cantabile," "Humoresque," by Tschaikowsky-Kreisler; "Hymn to the Sun," by Rimsky-Korsakoff-Kreisler and four Caprices.

Sally Spurns Fan Dance

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9.—Only a few hours after her arrival here, Sally Rand, whose fan dance shocked Chicago and New York officials, mixed in an argument with Paramount studio heads.

The studio wants the actress to make two weeks of personal appearances in Northern California before she begins her picture.

Sally says she has waved her fans for the last time in a theater, and she doesn't want to do the dance but once in a picture.

"I realize we'll have to capitalize on the publicity given the fan dance for a while," she declares, "but, from now on I want to concentrate as much as possible on Sally Rand, the actress."

The slender, golden-haired dancer says that all the money she earned in Chicago and New York went to pay lawyers and to fight the various charges brought against her.

Like most other new players, however, Sally is on the lookout for a house in Beverly Hills.

The gossips insist that Lila Lee and John McCormick are altar-bound, else why did he give her the star sapphire ring? If you can believe John, however, marriage is the farthest thing from his mind, even to a swell girl like Lila.

"Sure I gave her the ring," he said, "but it's a dinner ring. I've had it in the strong box for a long time, and just decided to make Lila a little present."

"No engagement. Definitely no marriage."

The dinner dance tonight in honor of Marie Dressler's 62nd birthday promises to be Hollywood's biggest testimonial. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is remodeling the interior of one of its sound stages for the occasion, and, in anticipation of thousands of messages, Western Union is running a direct wire to the scene of the festivities.

Had you heard that the veteran star will go to the South Seas to make her forthcoming picture, "Mrs. Van Kleek"?

Not all gold mines are phonies. John Miljan and his brother have been developing a claim up above Mojave in the Red Rock district. They've just received an offer to sell it for $40,000, still retaining 20 percent interest in the profits.

The funniest thing about the fisticuffs between Peter Arno and Drexel Biddle Steel is that the two parties had the whole Embassy Club to themselves after the fight and remained to scowl at each other for 45 minutes . . . Now that young Gary Evans Crosby is old enough to leave with a nurse, Dixie Lee has plans to return to the screen . . . You should see the long, shiny car Bruce Cabot gave to Adrienne Ames for a wedding present . . . The honeymooners made their first public appearance Sunday night at the Beverly Wilshire . . . Alice White and Cy Bartlett, who have been missing from the late spots since that trouble over John Warburton, were dancing to Gus Arnheim's music, too.

Did you know: That Preston Foster used to work in vaudeville with Fritzi Scheff?

Chinese Flood Destruction In Hearst Screen News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The horrors of the flood in the Yellow River district of China are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News and are graphically described by the Globe Trotter. Hearst Metrotone cameramen fly over scores of inundated villages where the flood has claimed thousands of lives and left three million persons homeless. At the Yellow River's famous gorges the heaviest loss of life occurred. There are many tragic and pathetic scenes.

Governors Berry, of South Dakota; Langer, of North Dakota; Herring, of Iowa; Olson, of Minnesota, and Schmedeman, of Wisconsin, present their plan for fixing prices for farm products to President Roosevelt, which is later rejected by the President.

A real gold rush is on in Calaveras County, California. The old workings are being dredged for gold that the miners of '49 cast aside. A real gold brick, worth $20,000, is shown as the result of a few days' work.

Odds and Ends

I AM not going to write a long obituary on Texas Guinan. As a matter of fact, I find it very difficult to write anything at all. Because it is almost impossible for me to speak of Texas and Death in the same paragraph.

They don't belong together. They're strangers, totally unknown to each other. Texas was the very spirit of life. It is very difficult for my meager brain to grasp the fact that Death has snatched such a throbbing Life. It doesn't seem fair, somehow.

Texas was very much a part of my life. I think that, over a period of years, I have typed her name more often than that of any ten others in the Broadway picture. The same thing goes, I suppose, for most of the other columnists in the business.

Nobody can completely describe the character that was Texas Guinan. She was exciting. She was plenty human. She had the fastest mind of any human I have ever encountered. She insulted her customers, and made them pay heavily for the privilege. She lived for fun, and she found it great fun to live.

She was surrounded by stews at all hours, and she never touched a drop of liquor in her life. She never went to bed before nine or ten in the morning, and she seldom slept more than five hours a day. Yet I never saw her tired in all the years that I knew her.

For more than six years, Walter Winchell and I spent at least four hours a night in her company. There were probably plenty of occasions when we bored her, but she never failed us. Because she was always new. Always alive. Always laughing. Always a dynamic personality that will never be duplicated.

I kidded Tex a lot, but I always held an undisguised admiration for the woman. I think I understood her a little better than most.

She never lost her sense of balance. I saw her laugh that liquor case out of Federal Court when the United States government was definitely out to get her. I've seen her stand up against the toughest racketeers in the world, hand them three or four verbal slaps—and then have them laughing with her five minutes later.

I've seen her wade into night club brawls, and I've seen her pay thousands of dollars for an old piece of lace. I've watched her make chumps out of some of the biggest names in America, and I've listened to her as she swore that she'd quit the whole racket at any time for a guy she loved—and a baby. I never wrote that last item. I was afraid I'd be kidded too much. But, strangely enough, she meant it.

I'm not going to write any more. I could fill this column and a hundred more — with anecdotes and stories about Texas. But I think I'll leave that for the other boys. I'd rather keep her in a very special place in my memory, and let it go at that.

Texas Guinan wasn't a part of Broadway. She was Broadway. I wish she hadn't died. We've all lost a lot of laughter—and a great gal . . .

FRED ALLEN forwards the tale of the well-known doctor and the prominent minister who recently teed off for a golf game at an outlying club.

"Well, sir," said the doctor, "what are we playing for?"

The minister smiled.

"It's a little out of my line to bet," he observed.

"That's right, too," returned the physician. "We ought to play for something, however. I'll tell you what I'll do—I'll put up a prescription."

The minister sighed.

"Okay," he asserted. "And I'll put up a prayer." . . .

A most unusual thing happened to me last night. I was standing on the corner of Forty-seventh street and Broadway when an old woman approached me. She carried a small basket, and was vending chewing gum and candy. It was chilly and the wind must have been piercing the small shawl that covered her shoulders.

I handed her a quarter and turned away. She plucked at my coat, took five packages of gum from the basket and attempted to give them to me. I told her I didn't want anything.

"You take, mister," she insisted, "or I no take money."

And she meant it, too. When I would not accept the quarter back, and also refused the gum, she placed five pieces of candy on a newspaper stand that was close by. She smiled wanly as she turned to leave.

"I leave candy there," she murmured. "Thank you, mister. But I no beg. I sell."

And she walked away. A rare episode, my friends. Very, very rare . . . .

IN a local speakeasy the other night one of the dizzier chorines was attempting to reach her boy friend on the telephone. Said boy friend lived but a short distance away, and the chorine could have walked to his hotel in less than a minute. But she chose the phone route instead.

Some trouble developed on the line, and the damsel couldn't get the number she wanted. Suddenly she grew peevish.

"You must be awful dumb, operator," she cried angrily. "I don't see why you can't get me that number. The hotel is just around the corner!" . . .

Ink No Help To Raymond

Gene Raymond was under contract to one studio several months without an assignment before he did "Ladies of the Big House" with Sylvia Sidney. He seems to have done so well in "Going to the Chair" that they overlooked his preference for light comedy, and when future assignments looked unpromising Gene arranged to leave.

Jesse L. Lasky meanwhile had become an independent producer for Fox, and he offered Raymond a Fox contract. Having found that he could do very well as a free lance, selecting the parts he liked, Raymond preferred to stay clear of studio contracts. But he entered into a verbal agreement with Lasky, giving the producer first call on his services for any picture that Lasky deemed suitable for him.

Considering that Gene has made eight films in the last ten months, a "date book" would appear to be necessary. His first for Lasky was "Zoo in Budapest" and now he is with Lilian Harvey in "I Am Suzanne."

Such an agreement, novel to Raymond, is not new to Lasky. For some 13 years the late Guy Oliver, character actor, worked in Lasky films with no contract other than the producer's word.

What Would You Say?

IF 37,000 families on relief last November swelled to 76,000 families by the end of last winter, to what numbers may we reasonably expect the relief figure to go by the end of this winter from a starting point this month of 59,000 families?

Yes, state and federal funds will provide food and a few shoes. The whole gamut of human needs which attend the need of food must be met by the agencies of The Welfare Fund. The rise of the need of food is but the indicator for the rise and intensity of deeper needs.

We have, then, for our neighbors, an increasing number of individuals who have not daily bread, nor roof over their head, nor shoes on their feet, nor decent covering for their bodies, nor a flame for their stove, nor medicine for their illness, except as they receive it by the grace of others. For two, three or four years they have faced the undermining necessity of paying for the bare necessities of life, not with money, but with their self-respect.

The numbers rise. The days fly. And what move do we make to salvage the still unbeaten majority? Shall we in Allegheny County carry 60,000 to 80,000 beaten families—300,000 to 400,000 beaten individuals—with us into the future as our neighbors? Can we achieve Recovery for Any of Us, if we do?

THE $2,837,000 budget of The Welfare Fund to be raised November 13 to 28 is the first organized proposal for a program of Family Reconstruction, for a program of attack NOW while there still is a chance to save thousands of homes from a permanent place on the wrong side of the community ledger?

Shall we wait until we have by our own hand forced 300,000 good neighbors into permanent dependency, or shall we vote NOW for Family Reconstruction with an increased pledge

Air Offense Duke Threat. | Hockey Season Arrives.
Pitt Has Anxious Moments. | High Ranking for Gallus.
Sunday Games Spell Boom. | Decline of Fight Gates.

SKILLFUL PASSING LAYDEN'S TRUMP CARD

The possibility that it will be a very difficult matter to hold the brilliant Art Strutt in check in his cutbacks isn't the only angle of Saturday's big gridiron battle with Duquesne that is giving the Pitt coaches and players anxious moments. Another serious threat is the forward-passing of Al DeLuca, crack left-halfback of the Hilltoppers, and Quarterback Joe Cutrona. DeLuca not only has the speed to make him one of the most dangerous backs around here when he is running with the ball, but as an accurate passer the Blairsville lad has few equals in the district, and his skill in that department is among the main items offering a chance for a Red and Blue victory. Cutrona is equally to be feared.

Al DeLuca

In fact, it is Duquesne's aerial game, more than any other feature of the Layden attack, that threatens trouble for the Panthers. The latter admit it has them worried, and their defensive practice is mainly along these lines. One Pitt man expresses the opinion that as much as 75 per cent of the Dukes' gains will be made through their overhead offense. A six-man line on defense, which will add a fifth player to the backs to lessen the chances of DeLuca's or Cutrona's passes being completed, will be Coach Sutherland's hope of stopping a sky drive. But other strong defenses have failed to keep the Dukes from scoring through the ozone, and the same contract is certain to tax the Panthers.

SUNDAY GAMES MEAN BOOM TO SPORTS

Baseball and football are bound to profit by the action of the voters that has made Sunday games legal in Pittsburgh and many other municipalities in this state. It means new followers who did not have a chance to attend those sports under the old conditions, and new followers mean new interest and a general healthful growth.

A particular boom is promised in amateur and sandlot circles through a chance to play Sunday games, and in baseball especially the greatly increased number of boys taking up the game will start the development of a fresh supply of future timber for the minor and major leagues, material that has fallen off in recent years.

Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania will help both major leagues in their entirety, as well as the three clubs particularly benefited; it will give new life to the minor league clubs in the state; it will improve the pennant chances of the Pirates, who probably will play their first home Sunday game on April 29, by relieving them of the handicap of many extra railroad rides on Saturday and Sunday nights; it will give recreation to many thousands who never had a chance to get it before, and in many respects it is one of the most welcome features of the general new deal.

HOCKEY STARTS AGAIN WITHOUT PITTSBURGH

A year from now, perhaps, we'll be back in the parade, but for the present Pittsburgh continues on the sidelines as the National Hockey League prepares to open tonight another major championship season in the ice sport. With this city's old berth remaining vacant, the league again starts out with nine clubs. The New York Rangers, Chicago, Boston and Detroit form the American group, with the international division comprising the New York Americans, Montreal Canadiens, Toronto, Montreal Maroons and Ottawa. Three games are scheduled for tonight, the New York Americans playing in Chicago, Boston in Toronto, and Detroit in Montreal against the Canadiens. The season will run to March 18, the first three clubs in each group to qualify for the play-offs.

Ottawa shows the only managerial change, with George Boucher replacing Cy Denneny. Former Pittsburgh players figured in the most important two trades of the off-season, Lionel Conacher going from the Montreal Maroons to Chicago in exchange for Teddy Graham, and Hec Kilrea being shifted to Toronto. A proposed deal to transfer another ex-Pittsburgh

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER
Member All-America Board of Football. (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Another Saturday has passed with the usual crop of tie and low-score games, and one is forced to admit that Pop Warner is right in his contention that something must be done to help the offense. The defense has run off with the game. Football always has run in cycles with the defense predominating toward the end of every cycle. The rules committee, of course, is the only agency that can be of aid.

Bill Alexander

Some suggestion has been made that we do away with the present fumble rule and go back to the old method of allowing any player to scoop up and run with any sort of fumbled ball. This no doubt would increase scoring and would tend to do away with many tie games. It would make the offense even more conservative, however, and also would work to advantage of the team depending on the "punt-pass-and-prayer" method.

It might be of advantage to leave the present fumble rule in effect on running plays and passes, but to put the old onside kick back in the game. In 1911 we played under the rule that any kicked ball that struck the ground was a free ball.

CHANGE ADVOCATED

Under such a rule a team is forced at all times to employ a safety man well down the field and also is forced to have one or both defensive halfbacks at least 10 to 15 yards back of the rush line in order to handle well-placed kicks. This would practically force a six-man defensive rush line with only two close-up backs to reinforce this six-man line. This would help the rushing game immeasurably, and would at the same time induce more and better kicking into the game.

It would put the foot back in football.

Punts also would have to be handled, and we would have no more uninteresting plays on a kick where the safety man lets the ball fall dead and the other team gathers about and looks at the ball, because, under our present rule they cannot secure possession until it has touched a member of the receiving team.

In defeating a hard-fighting University of Florida team by two touchdowns to none, the University of Georgia on Saturday emerged to lead the Southeastern Conference undefeated and untied. Georgia's superiority over the others hereabouts is firmly established, and Southerners look forward confidently to the Bulldogs invasion of the Yale Bowl Saturday when another intersectional victory seems almost certain to be added to the Southern string.

DUKE, GEORGIA LEAD

Duke and Georgia now stand as the southern teams undefeated and untied in the race for the national championship. Georgia plays a tougher schedule than does Duke, and if the Bulldogs can win them all, they will be given wider recognition.

The nearest inhabited cities, Ispahan on one side and Shiraz and Kirman on the other, are hundreds of miles away. Communication with the outside world is very difficult. The city is built of mud dried in the sun. Its houses, doors, furniture, toys, breadbaskets, firepans all are fashioned of that same sun-dried rough mud. In the days of the Turkish sultans, a prime minister of Turkey never resigned. If he incurred the displeasure of his sovereign, he was removed with the aid of "poisoned coffee" (known as the "Beverage of Death"), which was served in a jeweled cup at a farewell dinner given him by the emperor for this purpose. More than 700 successive heads of Turkish governments were removed in this fashion with the aid of the jeweled cup between 1453 and 1908.

TOMORROW: THE GREAT SURPRISE OF THE WORLD WAR.

New York to Seek Legal Race Betting

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—With the treasuries of 15 states receiving financial benefits from pari-mutuel betting at horse race tracks, turf leaders are planning a campaign for a bill legalizing wagering in the Empire State.

Faced by a loss estimated at $200,000 and the possibility of closing Belmont Park, the Westchester Racing Association has postponed the closing of such rich stakes as the $50,000 Belmont stakes, the $100,000 futurity and the $35,000 Lawrence realization until a relief bill is passed.

Racing men say the only means of relief is to be found in pari-mutuel betting which will give the tracks a "cut" in all money bet at the tracks.

Favorable action on racing at Tuesday's election in at least 11 New Jersey counties set racing men to talking about the possibility of building tracks there if the New York Legislature again fails to legalize betting.

RIVALS BRUSH UP ON AIR ATTACKS

By JESS CARVER

A great general—maybe it was Napoleon, and maybe it was not—once said, in effect:

"Pop 'em in the middle and you've got 'em."

Such tactics likely will be carried out by Pitt in the game Saturday, the big, big game, with the Dukes. Popping 'em in the middle has been a favorite stunt of the Panthers this fall, and, what is more, they've popped 'em with telling effect. So far, no team has been able to withstand entirely the drive of the Pitt attack directed at the center of the line. Minnesota managed to stave off a touchdown, but the Panthers gained a mile or so of ground between the tackles in the fiasco at Minneapolis. Notre Dame couldn't take it in the center of the line, and neither could West Virginia, Navy or Centre.

DUKES' DEFENSE WEAK

At the same time, the Dukes have not shown any great ability to stop sorties directed at the guards. Wash-Jeff broke its fullback and quarter through several times last Saturday. Bucknell was able to pick up plenty of ground using the same method, and Detroit also slammed that part of the Dukes' defense for considerable yardage.

It was on a slant at Notre Dame's left guard that Mike Sebastian broke loose for his 75-yard touchdown run. With Mike, Heinie Weisenbaugh and Izzy Weinstock smacking into the center of the line, the Panthers will keep the Duquesne secondary defensemen on the old jump, and will be bound to create opportunities for the use of Dr. Sutherland's not inconsiderable forward passing attack. Pitt, a far better passing team than it generally is credited with being, passed with success against the Dukes a year ago and has improved its aerial game greatly since.

Howdy O'Dell has developed into a fine tosser. Indeed, the little Iowan is rated as being a better passer now than Heller ever was.

ROUGH WORK OVER

Rough work is over in both camps. Yesterday, after a long drill on pass defense, and a somewhat shorter one on offense, Coach Sutherland gave his Panthers a scrimmage session under the lights. Munjas continued to run the team from quarterback with O'Dell and Sebastian at the halves and Weinstock at full. Hub Randour spelled O'Dell at left half, Dick Matsic went in for Sebastian at right, Weisenbaugh took Weinstock's place at full and Hogan took over Munjas' duties midway in the drill.

The Dukes too had a thorough aerial drill yesterday, and as was the case at Pitt, the boys were handicapped considerably by the cold, but for the most part, they held on to the ball in fine style and the passers flipped the pigskin so accurately that the receivers either had to nail the oval or have their teeth knocked out.

Coach Elmer Layden and his able assistant, Josie Bach, have not let a day pass without warning their charges that they are going to be in for a long, difficult afternoon, win, lose or draw. The Duquesne coaches do not share the optimism of many of the school's alumni and adherents; as far as that goes, the players them-

PEABODY, SOUTH HILLS LOOM AS CHAMPS

LOCAL LEADERS IN BIG DUELS TOMORROW

By JULIUS LEVIN

With the regular season scheduled to come to a close tomorrow afternoon, C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the city high schools, has announced that the post-season battle for the local title will be staged a week from tomorrow, probably at Peabody High School, the scene of last season's championship contest.

The site of the game rests with the two contesting schools, which, from all appearances, will be Peabody in Section I and South Hills in Section II. Should South Hills, provided it clinches the title against Langley tomorrow, object to playing on Peabody's home field, another field will be selected.

CLOSE SEASON TOMORROW

Four schools in the City League wind up their regular league schedule tomorrow, while two others complete their programs by playing non-league contests.

Peabody will be out to clinch the Section I crown by disposing of Schenley on the Schenley Field, while Westinghouse entertains Allderdice in the Section I duels.

Section II contests find South Hills striving to clinch the title in a battle with Langley at Langley, while Perry engages a sectional rival in Oliver.

Fifth Avenue is the attraction at Mt. Lebanon and Carrick plays at Brentwood in the two non-league games involving City League schools.

SCOTT MEETS ERIE

Scott High School, of North Braddock, its campaign for the class A crown closed with an unbroken string of victories, meets an old antagonist in a night duel tomorrow at North Braddock when Erie Strong Vincent is the attraction. This game has no bearing on the W. P. I. A. L. title fight, but looms as one of the toughest on the Scott schedule. The Erie gridders are said to have a strong team.

The two schools have split even in their last two football engagements, Scott winning two years ago, 12-6, while Erie Strong Vincent won last year's duel, 7-0.

PITT'S POWER PLAYS THREAT

selves are not kidding themselves. They haven't been fooled by an opponent to date, and have not entered a single game feeling other than that they were going to be in for a tough ball game.

It must be recalled that it took a late break for the Bluffites to beat a sluggish Bucknell eleven, 6 to 0, and Bucknell does not figure to be as powerful or to have as well rounded an attack as that of the Panthers.

PUNTING DUEL LOOMS

A fine punting duel is in prospect as Silvio Zaninelli, Duquesne's fine booter, matches kicks with Munjas and Hogan, of the Panthers. Munjas and Hogan, perhaps, are the world's worst practice booters, but in the ball game and under fire, they have the old stuff. Zannelli is a consistently fine kicker and will force the Pitt men to the greatest of exertion if they are to keep pace with him.

And what a good punter can do for a football team is plenty.

All this talk about Duquesne's main hope of victory depending on its aerial game isn't fooling the Pitts to any noticeable extent. The Panther scouts, who have been watching the Dukes all fall, are well aware that in DeLuca, Strutt, Zaninelli, Filingham, McDonald and Zaneski, the Bluffites have some nifty ball toters, and what is more, said ball luggers have a husky and well-drilled line in front of 'em.

Duquesne, you know, will be able to match, if not edge, Pitt in weight on the line, with the exception of the wings, where Skladany and Rooker will have a big edge on Krankota and Baker. Sinko and Niccolai, the Dukes' tackles, are as husky as Walton and Meredith, the Panther stars, and Rado and Weinberg are heavier, combined, than Onder and Hartwig. Ciccone and Shotwell are evenly matched, but Pitt will have the advantage at center if Nick Kliskey starts.

TECH LEAVES TONIGHT

The entire Carnegie Tech varsity squad will depart tonight for East Lansing, Mich., where on Saturday the Tartans will engage Michigan State.

The Tech mentor appears definitely to be set on starting Lib Lewis at his old position a right end. Lib seems to have fully recovered from the leg injury he suffered in the Notre Dame game. He also has given young Charley Spisak, brother of the left halfback, some attention as a quarterback this week. Should anything happen to Angelo Bevevino, the Plaid will be in a bad way for a quarterback who can pass. Spisak is a fair passer and may develop into a better one.

JOHN D. HOLAHAN

Pitt or the Dukes?

Which do you like?

How about the crowd? What is the sentiment of the fans? What do the men behind the game themselves think about it?

Tune in on Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and his Trained Seals over WCAE at 7 o'clock this evening and you'll get a whole earful about this game of the year for local teams.

The guest speakers will be Bill Kern, former Pitt tackle star, now ace scout for the Panthers, who knows his football onions, and John D. Holahan, energetic graduate manager of athletics of Duquesne University, who will tear himself away from the task of trying to supply all of the ticket demands of the army of Duquesne followers long enough to participate in the program.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Wouldn't it be just like that football game at the Stadium, day after tomorrow, to catch the spirit of the times and go Democratic for a Duquesne victory over Pitt? . . . The next big surprise will be Ted Yarosz getting a crack at the middleweight title, now that all of the muggs in that class know how tough he is.

A letter from Luke Carney, in California with the Zivic brothers, says that Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, has opened a classy grill in Los Angeles . . . And Mushy Callahan, former junior-welterweight champion, is an assistant director for Warner Brothers . . . Sig Keppen, former Beaver Falls boxer, conducts a news stand in Los Angels, and blind Monte Attel, well known to the old fans here, sells articles out of a satchel . . . Al McCoy, former middleweight champion, is a trainer and rubs the Zivic brothers after their workouts . . . Guy Salerno, Jack Perry's middleweight from the Coast, who was around here a few winters ago, has quit the ring and is a salesman in Los Angeles.

George Kelly, the Duquesne University publicity chief, took advantage of a pal to win a one-buck bet on the election, the wager being made in the wee small hours of the morning after . . . The friend wouldn't believe Mayor Herron had been beaten and insisted upon betting, so, as Kelly puts it, "he asked for it and he got it—the works." . . . Edouardo Duarry, Negro welterweight, of Erie, who boxes Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the windup at the Moose Temple next Monday night, has shown here twice, at Motor Square Garden, where he stopped Marty McHale and then ran afoul of the very-hard-to-fight Joe Marcus . . . Since then he has won a decision over Tony Herrera in Erie . . . There will be no boxing at the Arena tomorrow night, as planned, or until a bond is posted, it was announced following the failure of the reorganized club to get up a bond by yesterday, which was the deadline set by the boxing commission.

LAIRD RITES SATURDAY

Funeral services for Susan Laird, former Homestead swimming star, who died in Mercy Hospital yesterday, will be held Saturday morning at her former home, 323 West Fifteenth street, Homestead. Requiem high mass will be held at St. Mary's Magdalene Catholic Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Miss Laird was a member of the 1928 U. S. women's Olympic relay team and was the national junior 100-yard champion in 1926. She was director of physical education for women at Homestead High School at the time of her death.

Her death was preceded by an illness of eight weeks, due to a general physical breakdown. Several blood transfusions failed to save her life.

Susan Laird, the Lenore Kight of a few years ago at the Homestead Carnegie Library Club, who died yesterday in Mercy Hospital after a confinement of seven weeks, put up a game battle for life, according to those on the inside . . . She submitted to nine blood transfusions, but failed to show any improvement, and, when pneumonia set in, she passed away.

Back in 1928, "Sue," as Miss Laird was known to her friends, was a member of the United States Olympic team at Amsterdam, along with her clubmate, Miss Josephine McKim . . . Her lingering illness had its inception in an injury suffered in a fall while she was attending Temple University in Philadelphia, where she prepared for a career as an athletic coach . . . An infection of the blood stream developed which led to anemia.

In her day, Miss Laird was the leading free style swimmer of the district, holding the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. records . . . Like Miss Kight, the present National champion, Susan was a protege of Jack Scarry, the Homestead swimming coach, under whose tutelege she came 10 years ago at the age of 15.—HARRY KECK.

Holmer, Raskowski To Play Sunday

The Pittsburgh Pirates will present two new stars in Walter Holmer and Leo Raskowski, Sunday afternoon, when they meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in a National Football League game at Forbes Field.

Holmer is a tall and husky halfback. He hails from Moline, Ill. He was graduated from Northwestern University and then joined the Chicago Cardinals. Owner George Marshall, of the Boston Redskins fancied him and bought his release from the Cards. When the Pirates played in Boston, President Art Rooney tried to buy Cliff Battles and not being successful, did purchase Holmer by laying a good sized chunk of coin on the line.

Raskowski is a giant linesman, who made a big reputation at Ohio State before going to Brooklyn.

California Boy Wins Golf Title

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP.)—Mat Palacio, Jr., 17, of San Rafael, (Cal.), High School, today was announced as the winner of the first national scholastic golf tournament conducted by mail under the auspices of the high school magazine, Scholastic.

Palacio, California state junior champion, shot a 65, seven under par, on the Ingleside public course in San Francisco to win the prize.

The tournament was judged on the basis of comparison with par on any standard course of over 6,000 yards.

WEST VA. CHIEF DENIES NEW COACH YARN

The complacent Harry Adam Stansbury, athletic director at West Virginia University, is as busy these days denying rumors of replacements for both himself and the much-attacked football coach, Greasy Neale, as he is in running the athletic affairs of the university.

Today he is credited with two new denials, one concerning Neale and the other himself.

According to a report from Fairmont, carried in the Fairmont newspaper, a coach to succeed Neale already has been selected and an offer tendered him. The new coach is said to be of the Chick Meehan or Howard Harpster type, young and with a lot of color. He is said to hail from outside the state.

This Stansbury denied in one of his periodic telephonic talks last night. He said no person connected with the university in an official capacity has made any move toward securing a new coach.

He also took time to comment on his own situation. A report from Morgantown Tuesday was to the effect that an alumni group was planning a meeting Thanksgiving Day for the purpose of drafting a resolution demanding his removal in favor of a graduate manager.

This, Stansbury said, merely was another move on the part of some of the disgruntled alumni to give vent to their feelings. None of those concerned appear to have any authority to hire or fire anyone.

York in Quandary Despite Sunday Sport Vote

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Odd situations confront some baseball managers in the wake of Pennsylvania's vote to permit Sunday games in most of the large cities.

In York, home of one of the teams in the New York-Pennsylvania League, fans are wondering just how much good it did them to win the fight for a liberalized Sabbath.

The city voted in favor of Sunday sports, but the team may have difficulty playing on its present field for it is situated in an adjoining township which voted against the sports issue.

A similar situation may be solved in a novel manner in Great Bend borough and township, Susquehanna County. The township voted down Sunday baseball, although Sabbath games regularly had been played there.

Baer May Quit Ring for Movies

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—If Max Baer, California heavyweight, doesn't get a match with Primo Carnera for the world title soon he may abandon the ring for the movies, his manager, Ancil Hoffman, declared here last night. He said:

"It would be better for him to be making love in a studio than to be cutting out paper dolls behind closed walls while waiting for a chance at the world championship."

Hoffman said he would like to get a crack at Carnera, but insisted Baer was becoming impatient. He said the curly-haired Californian's recent debut in a cinema production promised to be a success.

Bazzone Brothers On Card at Moose

Tony Di Piero, former Duquesne University football player, now a heavyweight boxer, will meet Mike Bazzone, of McKeesport, in one of the six-round preliminaries of the Edouardo Duarry-Joey Bazzone card at the Moose Temple next Monday night.

The Bazzones are brothers.

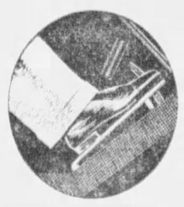
QUICK STARTING

QUICK STARTING depends upon the presence in a motor fuel of a group of very "light" liquids. These, as they are found in unfinished gasolines, are seldom in the proper proportions and usually contain gaseous and too volatile fractions which cause power loss and vapor lock.

The precision-controlled Blue Sunoco refining process retains only the desirable, easily ignited liquids in exactly the proper proportions.



ACCELERATION

BLUE SUNOCO gives brilliant acceleration because it contains exactly the right amount of "medium light" liquids which are selected from the multitude of hydro-carbons that compose crude oil.

Precision control—an exclusive process used in manufacturing Blue Sunoco motor fuel, protects it from any deviation; resulting in what we believe you will find to be the liveliest, quickest acting, and most satisfactory motor fuel in the world.

KNOCKLESS POWER

GASOLINE must be knockless because when a motor knocks, it loses power. BLUE SUNOCO'S exclusive process for the perfect control of refining heats and pressures achieves a high knockless rating by taking apart those hydro-carbons which ordinarily cause knocking, and reforming them so they burn more slowly.

Therefore this motor fuel explodes less violently and delivers uniform power throughout the entire piston stroke.

LONG MILEAGE

BLUE SUNOCO'S long mileage is due in the first place to its knockless power and in the second place to its exclusive manufacturing process which takes apart and rebuilds the "heavy" particles so that they actually deliver more usable energy. This plus power is responsible for plus miles per gallon.

And since Blue Sunoco sells at regular gas price, you will find it gives the utmost in economical performance.

BLUE SUNOCO
THE ONLY TRUE BLUE MOTOR FUEL

THE 'PASS-WORD' OF THE ROAD

MESSAGES OF CONFIDENCE CHEER ANDERSON

IRISH ALUMNI LOYAL, HUNK DECLARES

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The man who shouldered one of college football's toughest assignments when Knute K. Rockne crashed to his tragic death almost three years ago, Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, broke his long silence as his wistful eyes peered out of a veritable pile of telegrams and letters on his desk.

But he didn't reply or attack his critics. Instead, he talked of loyalty—the loyalty of Notre Dame's alumni. He said:

"These are trying days for Notre Dame football and for me, but when I'm through with the game I'll never forget these."

GREAT INSPIRATION

He pointed to the letters and telegrams.

"There are telegrams and letters from all over the country in that pile; they are proof that the greatest, finest bunch of almuni that ever trod on a campus are those of Notre Dame. Kickers? There isn't one in a thousand! Instead of pointing out faults, these alumni of Notre Dame send messages of cheer and hope. 'Keep your chin up,' 'don't let 'em get you down,' and 'we're all for you.' That's what those letters and telegrams say. And you can just tab it in your hat that they provide the inspiration of a lifetime to a fellow who happens to need some inspiration right now."

The "haunted man" of Notre Dame football leaned back on his chair and a grin spread across his face. He continued:

"What do you think? Last midnight I was awakened by a long-distance telephone call. It was from a bunch of alumni at Burns, Ore. 'Keep your chin up, we're with you,' was their message. Another night I got a call from Atlanta, Ga., and from Chicago, New York and Los Angeles. Yesterday I got a night letter from a group of alumni at Peoria, Ill."

MERELY SAWING WOOD

A trifle sadder, perhaps, than when he hustled the big Rambler lines for Rockne as an assistant, Hunk is merely sawing wood these days as reports and rumors of a change in the Notre Dame football coaching situation stare at him in glaring newspaper headlines. He gets to his office around 9 or 10 a. m., answers his heavy pile of mail, and discusses plays with his players until drill time arrives. Then, as if Notre Dame were still undefeated, he bounces out to the practice field and does his best.

Chillysauce
By Chilly Doyle

With Babe Ruth in Hawaii, Frank O'Doul preparing for a jaunt to Japan and with minor league clubs playing before big crowds in Mexico and other Latin countries of this continent, it would seem that our national game is taking on international color in no small measure.

At this writing, Canada appears to be making a bid for major league recognition as Montreal negotiates for the St. Louis American League franchise. Personally, I believe the sport would profit both from financial and artistic angles were Montreal admitted. It is an open secret that St. Louis cannot or will not support two franchises.

During a discussion involving the students of Duquesne University and this writer the matter of foreign baseball appeal was touched on. It seems a bit strange that while Canadians and French Canadians are keen for the diamond sport, their mood is not shared by the citizens of the mothers countries, England and France.

England in particular has a "cockeyed" slant on our game. If you will peruse the expression And Casey Stengel's reaction to the reaction of Britishers toward baseball is worth printing here. The ace humorist of the National League was an outfielder on the last baseball entourage that played in England. Stengel marveled at the viewpoint of the English. He noticed that after an infielder had made a phenomenal one-hand stop of a grounder the multitude remained in silence. A moment later a batter went out on an ordinary fly to the outfield. As the latter made the easy capture the stands broke out in with applause.

The expression Stengel bounced out of the moment he grew surprise as to inquire:

"This is the league for Casey—how long has this been going on?"

Catcher Tom Jenkins of the White Sox was a member of a team of Yankee baseballers that played near London. The King was on hand. He had a good view of the proceedings as Babe Ruth stepped to the plate. Ruth hit a long drive to centerfield. Casey got under Ruth's homer passed right over the royal box.

As Ruth rounded the bases on his way to be mobbed up to the plate of home Said the teammate:

Tom retorted:

"That's hard luck—I'll get him next time."

Bill Benswanger, Pirate president, accompanied by Mrs. Benswanger expects to leave in a few days for Galveston, where the minor leagues will conduct their annual powwow next week. Manager George Gibson also will attend the convention of the men of the smaller baseball circuits. The Pirate president received many congratulatory messages on the passage of the Sunday part mutuel from Judge Landis and other baseball dignitaries.

PICK VANDERGRIFT MAN ON BIG TEN TEAM

Among the players from Western Pennsylvania standing out in the front ranks of intercollegiate football this fall, Joe (Coddie) Gailus, of Vandergrift, has continued to shine even more brilliantly than in 1932. He plays right guard for Ohio State, and started so consistently last season that he was mentioned in connection with several of the all-America team selections. This season, as a senior in his third year on the Buckeye varsity eleven, he has kept up his great work so steadily as to win recognition in all directions as one of the best guards in the country.

Joe Gailus

Many of the critics in Big Ten circles are picking the Vandergrift star on their all-Western Conference teams, and some of them express the opinion that he deserves consideration in the all-America ratings. In the latest all-Conference selections for the year, offered by a Chicago writer, Gailus is named at guard, with Golemgeske, a Wisconsin sophomore; Fehring, of Purdue, and Rosequist, of Ohio State, are placed at the tackles; Petoskey, of Michigan, and Larson, of Minnesota, at the ends; Bernard, of Michigan, at center; Laws, of Iowa, at quarterback; Lund, of Minnesota, and Everhardus, of Michigan, at the halves, and Purvis, of Purdue, though playing halfback, is picked for fullback.

MASON RECALLS PILOTING GREB TO TITLE

Red Mason writes from Chicago to say that no excuses can be offered for the passing up of the Lou Brouillard match, which cost Ted Yarosz the middleweight championship. He adds:

"The main objective of any boxing manager should be the championship. It is his duty to steer his fighter there as quickly as possible. The financial returns at the time do not count. The title chance is the thing. The money will come later. When I took Harry Greb to New York to win the middleweight crown from Johnny Wilson I accepted $2,500, just training expenses, in order to get the match, and they made me put up $10,000 that Harry would make the weight, which they thought he could not do. It was then only a short time until we got $47,500 for the Walker fight, and later we received $33,000 for a second bout with Wilson. Yarosz had nothing to lose, and everything to gain.

"It looks as though the Pirates will be in the running for the pennant next year. I am glad they signed Gibson again, as he is all right, and better than anyone else they could have found. I am sure the Cubs will have many new faces. Your story about the deal for Klein was one day ahead of the Chicago papers. I know for sure that the Cubs will get Klein, and maybe others. Babe Herman surely will go. The best ballplayer in the world today, I think, is Jimmy Foxx. He can do everything—hit, run, field, throw and think. I saw him play shortstop as well as anyone could have played it, in addition to his first-base play. They are moving the plate at the White Sox park nearer to the fences to help Al Simmons. I have seen all the latter-day grounds, and I'll take Forbes Field for mine when it comes to a fine playing field."

BIG DROP IN FIGHT RECEIPTS SINCE 1926

The extent to which the fight game has been hurt by the times and other things is brought out very forcibly in the competition for the world light heavyweight championship. When Jack Delaney and Paul Berlenbach fought for that title in 1926, the show drew $450,000. When Maxie Rosenbloom defended the same crown against Mickey Walker recently, the house grossed only $18,800, with a net of $15,604.

Maxie Rosenbloom

New York critics still are discussing the surprising action of Referee Eddie Forbes in giving his vote to Walker and crediting Rosenbloom with only four rounds, when the two judges and most of the spectators figured Maxie had won from Broadway to San Francisco. Forbes has one defender, who says the referee's ballot was correct and just, and agrees with Forbes that Rosenbloom forfeited most of the rounds by violating the rules through slapping and flicking with his open gloves. This critic insists that under the rules Maxie never won a single fight or even a round in his life. The majority of the other scribes, however, contend that this was one occasion when Maxie kept his gloves closed and put up a fight with which no fault could be found, actually outpunching Walker.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Right in the midst of the hullabaloo over football hockey, king of winter sports, slip into the picture formally with the opening of the National Hockey League season.

Chicago, where the Black Hawks defeated Toronto, 3 to 1, in a return of Monday's game, Toronto and Montreal are the scenes of the second hockey games. By the end of the week all nine of the league clubs will have played at least one game. Detroit and Montreal are the scenes of the first game for the Canadiens.

A number of players have been the victims of injuries during the early season workouts and it is hoped will be in shape for the opening games. Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers, Lester Patrick's eyesight has made the new rule, bringing his instructions to referees. This year they are to watch particularly offenses alleged to be committed over which for the present season the referees have no jurisdiction, such as when players jump their positions or when players use their sticks to injure opponents.

STOCKS JUMP ON DOLLAR DECLINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Wall street's bulls fed in inflationary pastures today and climbing stocks and staples apparently reflected another sharp slump in international dollar rates and rising gold prices.

Equities, particularly those that may benefit by further depreciation of the monetary unit, were in brisk demand in the early hours and the ticker tape frequently lagged behind floor transactions.

Profit-taking shaded the best advances, but trading slowed down on realizing. Gains of 1 to 2 or more points predominated. Sterling soared to around $5.06, up around 8 cents, and French francs reached a new high at 6.22 cents. Wheat jumped about 3 cents a bushel and cotton and other commodities displayed strength. Government bonds were heavy, but speculative issues followed stocks upward.

The continued slide of the dollar was the principal topic of conversation in financial circles and there were many guesses as to just how far the slump would be permitted to go. Some foreign exchange dealers, usually in close touch with the London trend, were of the opinion that the Bank of England might allow the pound to get as high as $5.25 before training the equalization fund battery on the dollar. Most bankers admitted, however, that it would be quite difficult to forecast the British attitude at this time.

In addition to some uneasiness regarding the effect of possible English retaliatory measures, Foreign observers were not neglisting the potentialities of a French gold embargo. It was pointed out, though, that the French still have gold valued at around 80 billion francs, or almost sufficient to cover currency in circulation and that, even with the current steady drain on the country's stock, it might require considerable time to shake the republic loose from the gold base.

Some concern was expressed by bankers over the recent weakness of United States government securities. Several of the long-term issues have dropped more than 3 points from their peak prices of a few months ago. The shorter-term treasury notes have also declined to levels where they begin to show relatively substantial yields.

The financial district was interested in reports that the Treasury was considering plans for the offering of short-term obligations in exchange for the called Fourth Liberty 4¼s not presented for conversion into the current 10-12-year refunding issue. Of the $1,875,000,000 of the called Liberties, it was understood that about $900,000,000 have been offered the Treasury for exchange.

The American-Soviet parley at Washington, while not exciting any great enthusiasm in Wall street was being watched hopefully in the light of probable trade benefits which may result. It was generally felt that the extension of large credits to the Russians might require lengthier negotiations than those pertaining to recognition.

WHEAT JUMPS TWO CENTS

CHICAGO Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Wheat jumped 2 cents a bushel today the moment trading began. Startling upturns in British exchange, together with a fresh advance of Washington quotations on gold, gave the impetus to buying of grains. Opening 1 cent to 2 cents up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ¼ to ⅞ gain, and continued strong.

Wheat soon showed three cents a bushel rise overnight. Enlarged buying of wheat carried that cereal to the highest level since October 5. Contributing to improved trade sentiment was the fact that domestic primary receipts of wheat today totaled but 246,000 bushels, the smallest aggregate yet this season. Corn and oats paralleled wheat price upturns, and were responsive also to Illinois reports that 1933 corn yields were the poorest that had been seen in recent years. Provisions went higher with grains.

BRITISH POUND REACHES $5.14

NEW YORK, Nov. 9. (AP.)—The American dollar again reached new low levels in foreign exchange markets today as the government stepped up the domestic gold price 10 cents an ounce to $33.15 and stocks and commodities advanced briskly.

The British pound sterling reached another post-war peak at $5.14, up 11½ cents; French francs jumped .12 of a cent to 6.28 cents, a new top since the official devaluation of this currency; Dutch guilders spurted 1.25 cents to $64.75 and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs advanced about ½ cent each. Strength was displayed by German marks, Canadian dollars, the Scandinavians and Far Eastern funds. The Mexican peso, however, dropped about ⅛ of a cent at 27.92 cents.

In terms of the French money, the dollar was valued at approximately 62.42 cents, whereas its theoretical value, as measured by the new RFC gold price, was about 62.35 cents.

MARKET RALLY ATTEMPT LIKELY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Those interested in the stock market have to recognize that we have been going through one of those periods of uncertainty and hesitation when it is impossible to say definitely what the probability is.

One can never know, but frequently one can reason rather definitely and arrive at a probable outcome. The wise man, however, must now recognize that unforseeable political action is too much of a factor to allow even this.

For example, the market averages have been forming one of those "triangles" which frequently precede an important move. Ordinarily a skilled economist could appraise the general situation and form a reasonable opinion as to the direction of this move. At present the outlook for business and earnings would suggest a decline in stocks.

RALLY ATTEMPT LIKELY

But now business and earnings are probably not the controlling factor in the market. The controlling factor is government policy particularly with reference to inflation. And I am inclined to think this factor is likely to bring an attempt to rally the market which will probably have some success.

Unquestionably there are handicaps and unfavorable factors. The weakness in government bonds is highly disturbing since government credit is now the main factor in our financial setup.

The NRA program is a drag on immediate business recovery and tends to offset the working of inflation. Government price-fixing is hardly consistent with rising prices, and high costs don't go with high profits. Even the American Federation of Labor complains that wages have not risen as much as living costs.

BULL INDICATIONS

But on the bull side of the stock market argument one can say:

1—That, aside from the utilities, the market has been acting as though it were trying to go up. We have had two days of dullness on decline, and the periods of little spurts of activity have attended rising prices. The secondary reaction last week was stopped above the preceding low.

2—There are a number of "stimulants" at work, which, while of doubtful soundness from a long-run point of view, may be effective in the near future.

I refer to the buying of steel rails by railways, the early approach of prohibition repeal, release of deposits in closed banks, and government payments to cotton, corn and hog raisers.

3—And don't forget inflation, for it still remains the most important potentiality affecting the future of the stock market.

FRANCE LOSES MORE GOLD

PARIS, Nov. 9.—(AP.)—Gold continues to flow from the Bank of France, according to official statements today.

One quarter of a billion gold francs were withdrawn in the week ending November 3, making a loss of 1,250,000,000 francs since the cabinet crisis two weeks ago which resulted in the ascension of Sarraut to the premiership. The drain on the Bank of France gold reserve is accredited to the subsequent public discussion of the franc's danger.

The gold hoard is less by 1,500,000,000 francs since the September 1 high of 82,277,000,000 francs and is the lowest since last April 7.

The gold circulation in France last week increased by more than 1,000,000,000, while the bank's deposits of francs shrank by 1,666,000,000 francs.

Most Banks to Vote On Preferred Stock Sale

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WITH ONLY A FEW exceptions, banks in Allegheny County within a short time will call special meetings of stockholders for approval of plans to sell preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

This action is now being studied by banks as a result of a resolution adopted by the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association on October 30, indorsing the RFC program for increasing the nation's bank capital through the issuance of preferred stock or capital notes.

The plan has been launched by the federal authorities for two purposes. It is expected that the new capital will make it possible for banks to be more liberal in granting loans. The new capital also will make it possible for shaky banks to qualify for deposit insurance which is scheduled to go into effect after January 1.

All Banks Asked To Join Movement

WHILE ONLY a few banks throughout the country actually need to sell preferred stock in order to qualify for deposit insurance and the extent to which new capital will expand loans is uncertain, all banks in leading cities have been asked to join in the program.

If only the weaker banks should sell preferred stock or capital notes, this would reflect on their position. In order to avoid this, banks, whether they need new capital or not—whether they like it or not, have been requested to take the same action as the weaker banks.

Pressure first was put on the big New York banks and later was applied to leading banks of other cities, among which was Pittsburgh.

State Law May Obstruct Plan

NATIONAL BANKS in the Pittsburgh district will have no difficulty in securing approval of stockholders for the sale of preferred stock before January 1. Only five days' notice is required for the calling of a stockholders' meeting. But Pennsylvania state banks must give 60 days' notice. This will make it impossible for all except the few which called meetings at an early date to secure approval for capital increases by January 1.

So far as the Pittsburgh banks are concerned, it is improbable that this difficulty will cause any inconvenience. The weeding out of weak banks during the holiday was taken with such care that the remaining institutions, in nearly all cases, should have no difficulty in meeting deposit insurance requirements.

REFUEL PLANE SPANS SEA

International News Service

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—Successful completion of the first trans-Atlantic airplane flight with a mid-ocean stop for refueling was announced today by the Deutsche Lufthansa, German commercial flying organization.

The flight was made by the Dornier-Wal flying boat Monsun, piloted by Kramer von Clausbruch and carrying a crew of three men and one passenger.

The plane flew from Bathurst, British New Guinea, to Natal, Brazil, crossing the South Atlantic in 15 hours and 5 minutes. The craft alighted by the side of the steamship Westfalen, stationed in mid-ocean, refueled and took off again.

Von Clausbruch and his party left Bathurst at 9.30 a. m. on Tuesday. The plane descended in mid-ocean at 3.45 p. m. the same day, refueled and remained overnight by the side of the steamer and proceeded to Natal at 10.05 a. m. yesterday morning. The craft arrived at Natal at 6.55 p. m. last night.

CHAPMANS FAIL TO AGREE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 9.—(AP.)—The divorce court judge who failed to effect a reconciliation between Ben Chapman, star New York Yankee outfielder, and his pretty young wife, last night took under advisement her plea for separate maintenance.

Although protesting their mutual love in testifying, the couple after two hours in Judge William Walker's chambers yesterday could not reach an agreement.

The suit was filed last spring after Mrs. Chapman alleged her husband went away with the Yankees on March 29, leaving her with only $2.87. She also charged he refused to give her a home away from his parents.

Chapman's answer charged his wife with extravagance and "nagging conversation" at night which prevented him giving his best efforts on the baseball field.

The Girl Who Won

CHAPTER XXVII.

Gay mosses made a carpet for their feet. Inquisitive rabbits peeped from the undergrowth.

There was no sound to interrupt the stillness, but the cry of plovers and of waterfowl, and the occasional plop of a fish.

It was as though all nature was hushed for their romantic meeting. . . .

The sun shone down upon that handsome, hatless head of his, making his hair polished lacquer.

"And it's YOU!" breathed Nollie Day, and her heart that had palpitated so, rose in exultation.

Fate had sent him here. Oh! this was meant to be. At last, God had been good to her.

"So—you DID come back after all. You didn't marry that chap in Europe?"

"Who? What? I—I don't understand you."

Tony didn't try to shake hands with her.

"The Count What's-his-name . . . or the Marquis Thingammyjib. These men were reported to be your suitors."

"Where did you hear such a story?"

"I read it in the papers. Even though you went off like that, playing me a trick and all, I was just dumb enough to look out for every bit of news about you I could gather."

And with a light in those handsome Irish eyes of his—a look of eagerness and excitement and a kind of triumph—he came closer to her.

NOLLIE THRILLED

For the second time he had mistaken her identity.

"Because I say so. You tricked me once, and now I want to have a good square look at you."

It brought out auburn lights in Nollie's pretty hair that was naturally curly.

"You're more of a colleen than ever, here in the wilds. And your hair's the exact color of the bracken when it's turning in Killarney."

She laughed. She suddenly felt extraordinarily gay and light. "So you have kissed the blarney stone yourself, Mr. O'Brien!"

"You little spalpeen!" He took her elbows in his two strong hands and stared down at her. "Are you REAL, or are you going to vanish into air? Oh, I could shake you."

"Please don't. It's the most extraordinary thing in the world, meeting you like this. Such a—a coincidence!"

Her voice shook as she spoke. And her heart shook, too. That touch of his thrilled her.

"A coincidence? Not in the least. I'm camping here because I expected to see you."

What could she say to that, but explain to him who she was? And how best to begin it?

She had yearned for this moment, oh! so long. But it was hard to know how to handle it.

But wonderful to know he had come here, because of his urge to see her again . . . because of the magnetism between them.

WANTED TO SEE HER

A teasing, inner voice said to her—"Are you sure of that? Mrs. Judson has a great deal of money . . . and he thinks that YOU are Mrs. Judson!"

She must set things right. But she couldn't bear that he would turn from her.

"So you really came here because you expected—you wanted to see me?" Nollie raised those blue, blue eyes of hers to his. With the sun slanting down on her, bringing out the wild rose flush on her soft cheeks, she looked delightful.

"Sure I did. I left New York a week ago. By easy stages, and stopping wherever the spirit moved me and the fishing was good. I came here in my old car."

"You knew, then," Nollie stammered, "that I would be here?"

"I knew you were returning from Europe. Read it in the Herald-Tribune . . . Paris cable . . . and I figured out that with the heat and all, you'd be pretty certain to make immediate tracks for the ranch."

She said: "You're quite a Sherlock Holmes, aren't you?" She gave a shaky little laugh.

"No. If I were, I shouldn't have let you slip away from me the way you did. Something in your eye would have told me that blessed night at the theater that you were going to double-cross me . . . that you were darting off to Europe."

SLOW TO CONFESS

"You were angry about it, then?" asked Nollie, perturbed.

"Not so much angry as awfully disappointed."

"Then—since you're such an energetic young man—why didn't you follow me?"

"Because I happen to have a job of work to do—unlike the marquises and the counts and the aristocrats you've been hobnobbing with."

She gave another shaky little laugh. How could he be so dense? She who had been working overtime all through the hot weather in a busy downtown office.

She drew away from him. Oh! she must tell him now. Stupid to go on with the camouflage.

But the words that she desired to speak wouldn't come.

"See that smoke over there. Is that where you live?"

"Yep. That's my shack. I do my own cooking and all. Come along and I'll show it to you," said the young man.

When he knew she wasn't the rich Mrs. Judson, would the glamor that she had for him go? Would he lose all interest in her?

He slipped a hand under her elbow and piloted her on the winding path.

"I do," said Tony O'Brien slowly, "I think it's a wonderful setting for one beautiful girl."

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling, of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee, is jealous and warns Nollie. Mrs. Judson returns and gives Nollie a letter Tony had written her abroad. They learn that Tony is on vacation. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Many dentists are of the opinion that the solution of tooth decay problems will be found in the field of dietetics. Certain foods make for the well being of human pearls. There is need of calcium which is found in milk, oranges, carrots, eggs, celery and cheese. Eat your bread crusts and the crustier they are the better. If gums bleed don't delay the trip to the dentist who will dig away tartar deposits that are pressing upon sensitive tissues. Twice a year there should be this oral housecleaning. No matter how carefully teeth are brushed, tartar will form.

Distorting the contour of the feminine shape is a favorite diversion of Mrs. Fashion. The wasp waisted corset did it. So did the bustle. And there was a time, along about 1894, when slender women bunched themselves out with hip pads. Now shoulders are catching it. Those lifted epaulets, organ pipe pleats and hoisted rolls that raged during the summer season are still carrying on, making some women look like scared cats with their backs up. Well, it's all jolly enough, these changes. But gown and coat selecting is no trifling matter. Be cautious and be canny.

BOOTH, PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S MURDERER, LEAPS FROM PRESIDENTIAL BOX

Amidst rejoicing over the ending of the Civil War, President Lincoln was assassinated by a half-crazy actor, John Wilkes Booth, at the Ford Theater in Washington (April 14, 1865). Booth entered the presidential box, shot Lincoln in the back of his head, then leaped to the stage. Although breaking a leg, he escaped, only to be shot shortly afterward in a barn. Lincoln, mortally wounded, was carried into a nearby home, where he died the next morning.

His assassination was part of a plot against high Union officers (Seward and his son were wounded the same night). The plotters were captured, tried and four of them hanged.

Their miserable scheme to destroy Lincoln made the Great Emancipator and saviour of the Union a martyr whose memory will be revered for ages. (United States History)

SOME PARASITIC PROTOZOA

One species, the Plasmodium vivax (left) attacks the red blood corpuscles of man, causing malaria. It is transmitted by the anopheles mosquito.

Another protozoa (right) the Leptospira Icteroides, causing the dreaded disease, yellow fever, was discovered and photographed alive through the ultramicroscope (3,000 diam.) by Noguchi (Japenese), who prepared a vaccine to prevent this disease.

THE CAPTIVE NAPOLEON I ON THE "BELLEROPHON" (June, 1815)

With Napoleon's return from Elba his "Hundred-Day Reign" began, overthrowing temporarily Louis XVIII, brother of the executed Louis XVI (young Louis XVII had died a prisoner). Though Napoleon promised no more conquests, the Allies united their armies against "the enemy to world peace."

Under command of Gens. Wellington and Bluecher, they defeated Napoleon at Waterloo (1815). He abdicated again and surrendered to the British, who carried him to England and then to the island of St. Helena, where he lived as prisoner to see his military achievements undone (d. 1821). His body rests now in the French national shrine: Palais des Invalides, Paris, among torn flags, only trophies of his battles. (Webster: Modern European Civilization) (World History)

Desire for power at the cost of others' rights and lives brings punishment both from within and without. Shakespeare presents this in "Macbeth," a tragedy painted with blood, fascinating through its supernatural elements.

Macbeth, army leader—encouraged by his wife—kills Duncan, king of Scotland, a relative, whose sons flee. Macbeth is proclaimed king. He hires murderers to kill Banquo and his son, who, witches predicted, will become king. The son escapes.

Years after, during which Macbeth tries in vain to numb his remorse by bloody tyranny, the sons of Duncan return with an English army. They advance toward Dunsinane, the stronghold of the tyrant, carrying tree branches as camouflage. Macbeth perishes in the battle, when, as the witches predicted, Birnam Wood came to Dunsinane. CALCIUM BY ELECTROLYSIS

Calcium (Ca) can be produced by electrolysis—like sodium or potassium—from its chloride ($CaCl_2$), which is obtained as a by-product of the Solvay soda process (Pct. Ed., Oct. 21).

ROOF FRAMING (Gen. Science)

Building roofs generally have a continuous surface (sheathing) carried by the roof framing (trusses, rafters, purlins) shown above, to support the roof covering, which is of shingles, slate, metal or composition. The sheathing boards may be square edged, ship-lapped or tongue-grooved, one inch thick for sloping roofs and two inches for flat roofs.

It Will Be Hard to Handle

We approve of midnight closing time. Starting cross-country on a chalk line a man should reach home by dawn.

That's a good idea about having clear glass in front of the saloon so the policemen can look in and the barflies can look out. Admiration should be mutual at all times.

Also thoughtful to keep the toe-twister in sealed bottles to prevent the barkeep from watering the stock. Mixing whisky and rain in a bottle is like a general associating with second lieutenants.

It's a problem. And one that will never be solved by either prohibition or repeal.

The board considers changing the name of the saloon to bar, tavern or grill. That merely complicates the wandering nomenclature without changing the contents.

What difference does it make whether you are grilled at the bar or taverned in a saloon? In case you stick your chin out you could also get a buffet in a cafe.

After a non-stop flight off a precipitous curbing, your oldtimer would pick himself up and say, "Now, lemme see, I remember going into the first place. That was a grill. But was the second place the third tavern or the fourth cafe? That code business is all wrong. A man can't have no fun if he's got to keep books."

You can see how things can be complicated, magnified and ruined by too much gum on the label.

Better far to allow nature to pick its own detours. There is going to be confusion, gluttony, over-indulgence, rioting and a roaring of the ocean in the clam's ears.

There always is when the government throws open a new homestead tract. So, the best thing to do is for the troops to line the homesteaders up on the frontier, blow a whistle and let the land rush start.

Prohibition's Repeal---a Relief to the Nation

WITH TUESDAY'S election thirty-six states have voted to abolish the Eighteenth Amendment, and in accordance with the terms of the Constitution, prohibition comes to an end.

Thirty-six states out of thirty-nine states voting having declared against prohibition, thirty-three in succession without a single vote in prohibition's favor. This makes it clear that the demand for repeal was practically unanimous throughout the nation, and proves that millions of those that advocated the prohibition experiment have yielded to fact as opposed to theory and abandoned their hope that a nation could suddenly be forced to total abstinence, by law.

Sobriety and other virtues are the growth of time. Assuming that it is desirable for everybody to abstain from alcohol, the fact is that a majority cannot be made "good" by the fiat of a minority.

The whole nation, including such sincere prohibitionists as facts can convince, realizes now the futility of the attempt to change human nature by law.

The Hearst newspapers for years before prohibition had advocated temperance in innumerable cartoons and editorials, advocating the theory of Thomas Jefferson that drunkenness could be fought most successfully by encouragement of light wines and beers. These newspapers hoped, although they did not believe, that temperance might be the result of an attempt to prohibit all alcoholic drinks.

FOR YEARS W. R. Hearst would not permit in his newspapers any attack on prohibition, or those that favored it, or any articles demanding repeal.

Convinced of the sincerity of those supporting absolute prohibition, he felt that the experiment, hastily begun in the excitement of war, was entitled to a fair and, if necessary, a long trial.

But theories and hopes must yield to facts. And these, unfortunately, are the FACTS concerning prohibition of which the nation has now rid itself.

It was announced by advocates of absolute prohibition that "generations would grow up, ignorant of the taste of alcohol."

That was the hope. The reality, unhappily, was that for the first time in the history of the United States, drinking spread even among children in high schools, and drunkenness became common among young people, not only boys but girls.

Millions that voted against prohibition include thousands of fathers and mothers, formerly believers in prohibition, that have seen children returning from parties at which young boys appeared with alcohol "on the hip" and respectable boys and girls became intoxicated.

There is no THEORY about that; unfortunately, it is fact. Everybody knows it.

THOSE THAT demanded absolute prohibition predicted "prohibition will empty the jails, the hospitals and the insane asylums."

That was hope and theory. The fact is that prohibition built up a crime wave in this nation such as no country has ever seen. It made necessary the erection of new jails. Federal prisons were packed with assorted criminals, from the "millionaire bootlegger" to the petty hangers-on of the bootleg industry, and of other crimes financed by bootlegging.

Prohibition was to put an end to drunkenness, and the country has seen drunkenness such as never existed before, hundreds of deaths from poisonous alcohol, thousands of constitutions ruined, many in the insane asylums, and CRIME ORGANIZED THROUGHOUT THE NATION AS A GIGANTIC PROFITABLE INDUSTRY.

The nation is worried about a debt of ten thousand million dollars that Europe refuses to pay. Government statistics show that the cost of crime in the United States under prohibition is THIRTEEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR. Crime costs this country each year three billions more than the total debt of Europe.

Every police official can testify that under prohibition the criminal has moved up from the gutter to the private room of the bank president, negotiating loans to carry through bootleg enterprises. Criminals have their luxurious cars, in which are taken victims for murderous "rides," and worst of all crime has established as a new industry KIDNAPING FOR RANSOM.

THE NATION was awakened to the horror of that crime by the dreadful kidnaping and murder of the child of Col. Lindbergh. It read of old men and young men, bankers and oil men, public gamblers and bookmakers, anybody able to pay ransom, kidnaped and held, mouth and eyes closed with adhesive tape, wrists and ankles bound with wire.

Tens of thousands of business men suddenly found themselves obedient slaves of innumerable "rackets," reputable business paying tribute to thoroughly organized crime.

The curse of crime that has come upon the country in the wake of prohibition is such as could not possibly have been imagined.

It is not necessary to argue concerning prohibition's effects.

A country with a crime bill of thirteen thousand million dollars a year, a well-established kidnaping industry, drunkenness spreading among children, "respectable" citizens boasting of law violation, business and labor unions in the grip of racketeers—no "argument" is needed.

Now, thanks to the votes of thirty-six states prohibition, which should never have been made part of the Constitution, ceases to be the law of the land.

The unhappy, disastrous effort to change men's habits and coerce them against their will has once more proved to be impossible of accomplishment.

PROHIBITION IS DEAD, but unfortunately the crime wave, racketeering, kidnaping, intensely organized bootlegging, remain.

To deal with that situation is the immediate task of federal and local governments.

Federal justice has acted efficiently, putting kidnapers in jail for life and in some cases sentencing them to death.

Local police and local law have unfortunately in many cases shown more of the influence of the criminals than of judicial righteousness.

Prohibition, mother of the crime wave, has come to an end.

Rooting out crime, discouraging criminals, ending the kidnaping era and reforming youth that has become accustomed to strong drink will take time. But it will be done.

Meanwhile, thank Heaven for the end of the prohibition era and the "experiment" that has produced such disastrous results. One lesson has been learned.

Recovery Paramount

The Federal Administration Should Be Purged of Professional Business Baiters.

To the extent that the activities of the Roosevelt administration have offered a field holiday for radical visionaries, the process of economic recovery has been impeded.

The loading up of government departments and special emergency administrations with impractical theorists, who are hostile to the American system, has spread confusion.

Accordingly, the high confidence of the spring and early summer has ebbed.

The psychological assets, which inhere in the willingness of the commercial, industrial and financial classes to co-operate, have been dissipated.

We appeal to President Roosevelt to act quickly to remedy this situation while there is yet time.

Two steps are urgently needed.

One is to clear the departments and emergency administrations promptly of the professional business baiters.

The second is the enunciation by the President of the doctrine that the making of a Utopia must be sidetracked until the country has convalesced from the scars of the depression.

Until business volume and employment reach normal proportions, the long-term controversial issues must be held in abeyance.

If the administration is to achieve the mandate of the American people to accelerate economic recovery, such as is under way in various foreign countries, including Canada and England, it must begin to judge economic policies by their effect on near-term gross volume of business and employment.

Such a fresh orientation would entail new emphasis on the economically sound, business-building steps in the Roosevelt program, including bolstering up the purchasing power of farmers, stimulating the capital goods industry through acceleration of public works and through government financial aid to private interests, mortgage relief to home owners, a managed currency along scientific lines, and strengthening the fountains of credit and inducing them to function again.

Such a clear definition of objectives would at the same time entail calling off the radical wolves in the government service who have been rendering businessmen psychologically impotent to aid in recovery because of insidious breaking down of the American tradition.

The tall talk about revolution by young radicals in the NRA is well known.

The same spirit of hostility to private business, as such, extends to other government services.

Under his constructive leadership, definite progress has already been made, especially in regard to the cotton and tobacco crops.

But leaders of the tobacco industry, who pay $400,000,000 in taxes, found vague hostility toward them within the government service.

Radical dissenters within the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who are suspicious of the essence of the profit system on which our modern competitive economic society rests, have been delaying the making of helpful, price-raising marketing agreements with processors who buy the great agricultural staples.

It is elementary in government and in business management that the executive be permitted to surround himself with aides who are sympathetic to his major objectives.

It is inexcusable to continue within government agencies hostile and conflicting elements, who impede the swift movement toward a stated objective.

Mr. Peek has a single-minded devotion to the price raising objective, and, with the sense of a practical executive, he is willing to let minor issues wait.

Mr. Roosevelt should realize that the opportunities for social regeneration and economic stability will be enormously heightened after business has been lifted from the bogs.

On the other hand, if business is handicapped with insupportable burdens at the early stages of recovery, economic deterioration is threatened, and that inevitably means social decay and a lowering of living standards.

Drive It Out!

(Copyright, 1933.)

As prohibition is on its way forever out public officials report that rum runners and liquid bootleggers are turning to "dope" as a means of prolonging their lawless and nefarious profits.

At the same time, by strange coincidence, Manchukuo and Jehol become the new world centers of the illicit narcotics traffic—and smuggled morphine from Asia appears in our Pacific Coast ports.

Its most important step will be to restore the former appropriations of the Federal Narcotics Bureau. That Bureau is the entire nation's first line of defense against alien "dope."

As a second measure, every state that has not done so should enact as soon as possible the Uniform State Narcotics Law and BACK UP the Federal Government in this new war against the narcotics vices.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Even with the Rialto's dwindling shows, the first night free list grows slimmer. It is now confined to regular critics and a few columnists. Once it included friends of producers, stars and friends of the playwright and even costumers.

At the Winter Garden, the largest of the musical show houses, there were only 61 complimentaries for the opening night. John Chapman reports even Joe Cook, the star, laid out $660 for 100 friends and relatives. Five years ago all down stairs seats of any choice were "Annie Oakleys."

Noel Coward is reputedly the stubbornest of the sticklers for a limited first night list. He wants it confined only to critics. Earl Carroll wants to go Coward one better and make critics pay full tariff just like the rest of the folk.

Producers must pay because most theaters and producing organizations are now controlled by financing organizations—cold-hearted bankers who see no reason to cut down their intake. The idea is, of course, splendid for those who participate in royalties. Free tickets were getting out of bounds.

Upton Sinclair was the most frequently interviewed literary figure of the year on his recent visit to New York. The reason is simple. He makes copy. The reporter who visits him with no idea at all finds that after a few words Sinclair has tossed him a lead. He bivouacked among the literati at the Algonquin. Heretofore his hangouts have been around The Village.

The old Wendel home on Thirty-ninth street and the avenue continues to furnish its decaying shudder to passersby. Since passing of the final member of the strange household and the more recent demise of the dog "Tobey," the musty brick structure in its mortal lapse has taken on a shadowy, thoughtful gloom. Imagination has given it an aura of something portentous within—mysterious closets, secret stairs, hidden panels. On the south side a broken shutter flaps in a stiff wind. Curtains upstairs are soiled and the panes suggest a henhouse window.

There was a clear summer night walking a dog on the avenue around midnight that I saw one of the Wendel sisters. The street was desolate of traffic and pedestrians. I saw a light blob in the hall while passing across the street. Finally the door opened and a shawled head protruded, looked up and down. A policeman come from around the corner, as though timed. She called to him and handed a letter out. He took it to a mail box, dropped it in and went on whistling. I told the cop of my curiosity. "Every Tuesday around midnight," he said, "she has a letter posted. That was Miss Ella."

There has developed a how-have-you-been with a high-hand-shake attitude about the Middle West in New York of late. Of course, it's petty jealousy, but something should be done. Glen Frank has perhaps the best solution. He suggests renaming the area "the Central Empire." That will high-tone 'em.

Flirting, which was the pre-war substitute for modern petting, seems to have given a girl just as much of a kick, without leaving her with that "Now-I-wonder-if-I've-been-a-sap" feeling.

"Repentance" is what a man calls the wistful pleasure he takes in "confessing" the wild follies which his rheumatism will no longer permit him to commit.

European lovers may be more romantic and subtle; but the American husband is still the only husband in the world who will stand for back-seat driving, and eat all the things he dislikes, because they are good for his wife's figure.

Joseph B. Eastman and Henry L. Mencken, Gentlemen Who Stand Out from the Crowd

By Edwin C. Hill

STRIDING along in the van of the news are various gentlemen who stand out from the crowd because they decline to be bound by the opinions of the crowd. Gentlemen of original mind and vigorous intellectual honesty. For example: Joseph B. Eastman and Henry L. Mencken.

To Mr. Eastman, the President has handed the Herculean labor of restoring prosperity to the railroads, now well-nigh on the rocks. Stupid legislation, unrestricted competition and crazy financing have been wrecking an industry upon which at least 10,000,000 people depend directly or indirectly for their bed and board. The Big Bad Wolf is puffing his cheeks at their front door.

And now comes big Joe Eastman to save them from being gobbled up. He is one man who believes that public office is a public trust. For 14 years, as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, he fought tooth and nail to keep the railroads from getting the best of it, but fought just as hard to keep them from getting the worst of it. He knows the railroads up and down and across the middle, all the good of them and all the bad of them.

He deals in facts and knows what he knows. He believes that government ownership has got to come, but that it can't be rushed. Meantime the roads have got to be co-ordinated. They have got to quit wasting money on flamboyant competition. They have got to get rid of banker control. It is pretty much the measure of the man when he says:

"It is my profound conviction that the best things which have been done in this world have been impelled by higher motives than the desire for gain."

Mencken's Sense Of the Ridiculous

OF all the gentlemen who have gleefully thrown monkey wrenches into the droning machinery of rigid ideas, Henry L. Mencken, the plump sage of Baltimore, is by far the most entertaining. He never poses. He never struts. His sense of the ridiculous is too keen to permit him ever to stand upon a public platform like a Sinclair Lewis and defy the Almighty to strike him down. His poise forbids him to puff his cheeks and blow out rage like a Theodore Dreiser.

His weapon has always been the rapier of wit and ridicule. His clever thrusts were made always with a twinkling eye and a gay chuckle. Like George Bernard Shaw, he delighted to shock the stodgy and startle the cocksure. But infinitely more sincere and honest than the white-bearded old harlequin of literature, Henry Mencken created a school which will live long after a shaft rises for him in the City of Monuments.

A good fellow, as well as a brilliant mind, he has broadened and mellowed with the oncoming years. He has acquired the most valuable thing almost that we need in this world—tolerance. He knows now that the world has a place for both boobs and Babbitts.

And so he gives up the editorship of the American Mercury, after building its circulation up to 75,000; leaves to continue his role as the jovial philosopher, loving life and playing all about him with his inexhaustible impishness.

Courage Needed In Ordinary Life

COURAGE is always an absorbing topic. Prof. William Lyons Phelps points out in his new book, "The Courage of Ignorance," that courage is as necessary in the ordinary daily living as it is in high adventure. Women, he thinks, have more courage than men, because they need it more. It takes courage just to be a woman.

He doesn't think that courage is the greatest of the virtues, because so many abominable persons have it. Courage is something which blazes out above all reason and common sense, deriving from the mysterious fountain of the soul rather than from the careful processes of the brain.

Robert Clive, who won India for England, was not only an obscure clerk for the Honourable East India Company when he sat down one night to a game of cards with British army officers, the only civilian. He saw that one of the officers, a captain, was cheating. Nine hundred and ninety-nine humble clerks out of a thousand would have kept their mouths shut. Clive made an instant accusation, refused to be snubbed, and a few minutes later found himself facing the accused officer in a duel with pistols.

At the first breath of the word, Clive fired and missed. By the rules of duelling his opponent had the right to a free shot. He aimed his pistol and, holding it pointed toward's Clive's heart, called out:

"Tell me now. Did I cheat?"

The young clerk snapped back without an instant's hesitation:

'Go to hell"

No shot was fired. Robert Clive lived to be the conqueror of India and its Governor General—and to die at 50 by his own hand.

The Courage Of Marshal Ney

COURAGE of the superb quality, the courage that triumphs over fear, was the spiritual gonfalon of the Great Marshal Ney, whom Napoleon called the bravest of the brave. In the Battle of Waterloo, as he was about to lead the great cavalry charge which broke against the invincible wall of British defense, a dreadful fear chilled the marshal as he climbed into the saddle.

His hands were icy with it. His knees shook. Try as he would, he could not control those shaking knees. But as he made ready to give the command for the great charge, he looked at his knees.

"Shake away, knees," said the great marshal. "You would shake worse than that if you knew where I was going to take you."
